Ship Strike On Saturday Ordered by AFL Union

Masters and Mates Break Off Contract Talks Sponsored By U. S. Service

By The Associated Press

The AFL Masters, Mates and Pilots Union said yesterday it has broken off Government-sponsored contract talks in New York and plans a strike of Atlantic and Gulf Coast shipping at midnight Saturday.

Capt. Charles F. May, general president of the union, told reporters he has advised approximately 4000 members of the union to walk out for lack of a contract.

May said the union has been trying to negotiate a new agreement since last August and has four times postponed a strike at the request of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The union chief accused the conciliation service of "stalling" and said Atlantic-Gulf employers had consistently refused the union's demands.

Union's Principal Demand

May said the union's principal demand is a union shop for deck officers, except ship masters, and seniority preference in promotions, hiring and layoffs.

Under a union shop, all the officers of the ship, except the captain, would have to be members of the union. Seniority preference would require that the man who had been on the job the longest would have first right to it in event of layoffs, and in event of promotions, would be given first consideration.

May said his union had dropped a demand for a wage increase.

90 Percent of Coast

He said a strike will cover approximately 90 percent of Atlantic-Gulf tonnage. He said nine companies, operating also on the West Coast, had agreed to the union terms in the West Coast agreement for their Atlantic operations and would not be involved in the expected walkout.

Military vessels, such as transports, will be exempt from strike and picket action, May said, as will all types of tankers, private and Government owned.

May gave reporters a statement he has submitted to the Federal Conciliation Service calling further negotiations "futile" but suggesting that Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal service, might call new negotiating sessions in Washington to avoid a walkout before Saturday midnight.

In New York, Federal Mediator Charles T. Estes, who has been handling the negotiations, declined comment on May's statement that the mediation and conciliation service was "stalling."

He said no date had been set for another meeting of the parties.

POLICEMEN EXAMINE UPSET AMBULANCE AT 12TH AND F STS. NW.

Men Quizzed In Relays on Store Slayings

Detectives continued to bring relays of men to police headquarters last night as they kept up their manhunt in connection with the Good Friday murders at the Lansburgh department store.

As rapidly as the stories of some men were verified, other men were brought in, fingerprinted, given a benzedrine test to see if invisible marks of blood would show up and taken behind closed doors for questioning.

Lieut. Richard Felber, acting head of the homicide squad, who has been working almost without respite since two watchmen were found stabbed to death at Lansburgh's early Friday morning, said:

"We've questioned or requestioned another 100 persons today. It's a continuing process. If some of the stories don't check out, we bring them back for questioning."

In four days, police have questioned, or requestioned, a total of more than 300 employes and former employes of Lansburgh's in their search for the killer of the watchmen, John C. Carpenter, 66, of 506 G st. sw., and Oliver E. Hess, 57, of 1324 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Police believe there is a strong possibility that an attempt to get at cash in the cashier's cage on the mezzanine floor at the store was a motive for the murder of Carpenter.

Several hours before he was killed, Carpenter had supervised the removal of money bags containing silver coin from the cashier's cage while cleaners did their work.

Carpenter later returned the key to the cage to a hook in the watchmen's room on the main floor. His killer, however, may not have known that. When Carpenter was found, his pockets had been turned out. The pockets of Hess had not been disturbed.

Police did not disclose how much cash was in the cashier's cage but said to the best of their knowledge none had been stolen.

Meanwhile, the bodies of Carpenter and Hess were released to relatives yesterday by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald. There will be a brief memorial service for the two victims at the store at 11 a. m. Wednesday.

Crash Overturns Ambulance; Doctor, Driver Are Injured

An Emergency Hospital ambulance en route to an accident scene was turned over on its side yesterday at 5 p. m., slightly injuring the driver and ambulance physician, when a private car struck the hospital vehicle at 12th and F sts. nw.

Frederick Smith of 1140 Neal st. ne., the ambulance driver, was hurled from the vehicle and suffered back injuries.

Dr. Lou Menning of Emergency Hospital, the other occupant, climbed out the free door of the vehicle and was taken back to the hospital with Smith in a police scout car. She was treated for scalp cuts.

Dr. Menning and Smith were answering a call to an accident at 7th and F sts. nw. The call was canceled shortly afterward when it was found no one had been injured.

Gilbert L. Huff, 60, driver of the automobile involved, was driving north on 12th st. nw. through the F st. intersection as the ambulance with siren sounding was traveling east on F st. Huff, who apparently was unhurt, had the green light, according to police.

Huff, who lives at 1614 17th st. nw. and heads a plumbing supply firm, said the ambulance came into the intersection from behind a streetcar and stated he did not see it until just before the collision. Both drivers will appear for a hearing in the Corporation Counsel's office. No date has been set.

The accident attracted crowds of homeward-bound pedestrians.

Two Injured

Two persons were injured last night at Crain hwy. and the Marlboro bypass south of Upper Marlboro, Md., when a car operated by Mrs. Gertrude M. Martin of Norotton, Conn., collided with a car operated by Maurice M. Sisson, Baltimore, Md., police said.

Miss Lucia Martin, daughter of Mrs. Martin, who suffered a broken leg, and Sisson, who had a cut on the forehead, were taken to Prince Georges General Hospital by the Marlboro Rescue Squad.

Total traffic deaths, 1949....71

Caught by his own auto which suddenly rolled downhill over him yesterday, Benjamin Tash, 52, a retired grocer, died at Casualty Hospital.

Mr. Tash

His was the 23d traffic death of the year in the District, one more than registered on the same date last year.

Police said Tash had the hood of his car open and was working on a defective battery near his home at 320 Atlantic st. se., when the emergency brake gave way. His son, Harold Tash, who lives next door, at 318 Atlantic st. se., said the street slopes sharply there.

Police said the car rolled about 35 feet before coming to a stop, and that one of the wheels passed over Mr. Tash's chest, crushing it. He died two hours later. An autopsy will take place today.

Mr. Tash, a native of Russia, was brought to Washington as a child. He lived here through his youth, went to Detroit for several years, and returned here about 12 years ago. He operated a grocery at 9th and B sts. se., until his retirement a year ago.

Navy Builds 'Killer' Subs Of 750 Tons

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Navy disclosed yesterday that it is counting heavily on using small "submersible submarine killers" to hunt and destroy enemy snorkel-equipped subs in another war.

An announcement said that two new types of American submarines are under construction and listed a few details as to their characters. One is a new 1500-ton "Fast Attack" class, designed for use against surface vessels. The other is an "SSK" anti-submarine submarine.

"As a result of their small size—they will be 195 feet long and will displace 750 tons—the SSK will be adaptable to mass production," the Navy said.

First Word On Size

Though the Navy previously had revealed it was building an anti-submarine submarine, this was the first official word on their size or that they figure so prominently in anti-submarine warfare planning that mass output of the type is scheduled.

The craft will carry advanced sonar and electronic detection equipment, and will have at least one great advantage over surface vessels and aircraft in hunting down enemy subs. Their detection gear won't have to penetrate through the surface layer of water, which often deflects sound waves.

Especially designed for quiet operation themselves, the SSKs would lie in wait for enemy underwater commerce raiders or approach them stealthily and fire torpedoes into them before being detected. Duels to the death far below the surface are considered likely with development of the new type.

Three of the 750-ton craft are being built, and the first will be delivered next year, it was said. They will have no names, but be known simply as SSK-1, SSK-2 and SSK-3. This is the smallest American submarine built since World War I.

Six of the new "Fast Attack", or SS-563 type, are under construction—the Tang, Trigger, Wahoo, Trout, Gudgeon and Harder. Like the SSKs, they will be equipped with snorkels. Shorter than the present 1500-ton, 311-foot fleet submarines, they'll have larger battery compartments for greater submerged speed.

Fiftieth Anniversary

This guarded lifting of the secrecy veil on underwater warfare plans came on the fiftieth anniversary of the Navy's acceptance of its first submarine. On April 11, 1900, the 53-foot, 74-ton USS Holland—named for its American inventor, John P. Holland—was taken over from the builders.

The Navy said it has converted 21 submarines under the "Guppy"—greater underwater propulsion—program. All but two are equipped with snorkels. One of them—the USS Pickerel—recently completed the record-breaking underwater voyage from Hongkong to Pearl Harbor in 505 hours.

Nine other submarines have been converted for special functions—radar picket work, troop and cargo transport, for launching and control of guided missiles and "milch cow" craft for refueling other subs.

That was the effect of the refusal yesterday of the Supreme Court to consider the case of Hollywood writers John Howard Lawson and Dalton Trumbo. Both declined to answer before the House Un-American Activities Committee in 1947.

The Supreme Court refusal was announced in a brief order which noted that Justices Black and Douglas favored a review of the GOP Charges Crime Inquiry 'Manipulation'

Ferguson Puts Blame On 'High' Democrats; Lucas Calls Session

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A Senate Democratic leadership plan for a "special" joint committee investigation of organized crime yesterday touched off GOP charges of "manipulation" of the crime-investigating setup.

"I'm getting fed up," Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) told newsmen.

"Ever since the Kefauver resolution was introduced there's been underground maneuvering and manipulation to keep the Judiciary Committee from conducting the inquiry, and it comes from high Democratic officials."

Calling a Democratic Policy Committee meeting today to consider the new compromise plan for conducting the inquiry, Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) denied he was trying either to "hold back or sabotage" the investigation.

"I want a fair, thorough and impartial investigation," said Lucas. "It's just a case of having one committee do it instead of two committees duplicating the work."

Last week The Washington Post quoted a top Senate Democrat as saying he feared Republicans would try to use the Kefauver resolution as a "political vehicle" against the Democrats, in Kansas City and elsewhere. He suggested the Kefauver resolution was too broad and should be narrowed to more specific anticrime objectives.

Lucas said yesterday that his plan for a joint committee inquiry would involve introduction of a new resolution providing for a special investigating group of five to seven members.

The group would be composed

Name Is Given To Committee By McCarthy

'Mystery Witness' In Lattimore Charge To Be Subpenaed

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) yesterday made known to Senate investigators the name of his "mystery witness" against Owen Lattimore.

The Washington Post has been reliably informed that the witness is Louis Budenz, former managing editor of the Daily Worker, who has renounced communism and is now a professor at Fordham University.

Taking note that McCarthy had given the name of his witness to the Senate investigating subcommittee, Lattimore's lawyers promptly requested that the hearing be held in public and that they be allowed to cross-examine the witness.

Entitled to Information

The attorneys, Arnold, Fortas and Porter, telegraphed subcommittee chairman Tydings (D., Md.) that Lattimore believes that the public is entitled to full information concerning any accusations that the witness might make.

Furthermore, they said, the "tactics of the McCarthy group have been such that secret testimony would undoubtedly be disclosed in distorted form and used as the basis for additional and unwarranted fabrications."

If they gain permission to cross-examine the witness, the lawyers said, Lattimore in return would submit to cross-examination by committee members, its counsel "or others as the committee may desire."

This last category could presumably include McCarthy, who has repeatedly asked to question Lattimore in public hearings.

Witness to Provide "Proof"

The witness, according to McCarthy, will provide "missing proof" that the Far East expert is or was a member of the Communist Party.

He is the same man, McCarthy said, to whom he referred, without identifying him, in a speech on the Senate floor. He described the man then as a former Red, high in the party hierarchy, who was required to know important party members, and that he knew Lattimore to be subject to Communist Party discipline.

McCarthy gave the witness' name yesterday to Edward P.

$25,000 Bail Set Pending Appeal to Higher Court

Two Aides Sentenced To Two Years Each After Court Rejects Pleas for New Trial

San Francisco, April 10 (U.P.). Harry Bridges, powerful left-wing labor leader, was sentenced to five years in prison today for lying about his Communist Party membership so he could become an American citizen.

His two lieutenants in the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, Henry Schmidt and John R. Robertson, received sentences of two years each, for conspiring with him to obtain his citizenship by fraud.

A move to strip Bridges of his citizenship was postponed until 10 a. m. PST (1 p. m. EST) Tuesday when Government attorneys will press for revocation in court.

Bridges was freed on $25,000 bail pending the outcome of an appeal which the defense has promised to carry to the United States Supreme Court, if necessary. Schmidt and Robertson were freed on $10,000 bail each. All had been free on $5000 bail.

Concurrent Sentences

Federal Judge George B. Harris, denying defense motions for a new trial, sentenced Bridges to two years in prison for conspiracy and five years for perjury, the sentences to be served concurrently.

He sentenced both Robertson and Schmidt to two years for conspiracy and two years for aiding and abetting perjury, also to be served concurrently.

Harris levied no fines against the three, declaring any such fines would have to be paid by the "rank and file" of Bridges' union.

The Australian-born longshore chief, who faces eventual deportation, declared after the verdict:

"It stinks! It's been a frameup from beginning to end and it's beginning to air now. It'll be a while yet before I'll be doing the five (years)."

"Someone to Take Our Places"

Schmidt said he would carry on with his regular union activities. "If we're rendered 'harmless,' there'll be someone else to take our places," he said.

Bridges grimaced as he heard the sentence. Nancy, his pretty brunette wife, had a look of resignation on her face. Schmidt's daughter, Louise, broke into tears.

Bail, in the form of cashier's checks, was produced immediately.

A jury of eight men and four women found the three men guilty last Tuesday after 81 days of trial, the longest in northern California Federal Court history. The jury decided specifically that Bridges lied at his naturalization hearing

Jet Truck Tests Successful, Says Boeing Company

Seattle, Wash., April 10 (U.P.).—The Boeing airplane company announced today it has successfully road-tested a jet-powered truck.

A 175-horsepower gas turbine being developed by Boeing for the United States Navy Bureau of Ships was installed for testing in a 10-ton Kenworth truck.

Boeing said the truck makes less noise than one powered with a conventional Diesel engine of equal power. Exhaust gases are no hotter, the company said, and have no offensive odor.

The turbine runs equally well on gasoline, kerosene or fuel oil, and weighs only 200 pounds. Its makers said this is 2500 pounds less than the weight of standard 200-horsepower gasoline or Diesel engines.

The turbine eliminates the need for a cooling system.

Messenger Sent To Bank Vanishes With Firm's $4000

A trusted employe of the I. Feldman Poultry Co. yesterday disappeared on his way to the bank with $4000 in cash belonging to the firm.

Police broadcast a lookout for William Howard, 30, whose last known address was 2517 F st. nw.

Howard was given $4000 in cash and $6000 in checks at noon yesterday to deposit in the Liberty National Bank at 15th and I sts. nw. and failed to return to the Feldman Market, 1255 4th st. ne.

Police recovered the Feldman truck he was driving. It was parked in the middle of the intersection of 22d and H sts. nw. at 2:30 p. m.

The checks were found in the truck's glove compartment, along with the company coveralls Howard was wearing when he left for the bank.

Officials said Howard had worked for the company about one year.

The lookout for Howard described him as a dark-skinned Negro, 6 feet, 1 inch tall, 200 pounds, with a small mustache and wearing a sailor stocking cap.

Daniel Lyons, company manager, said last night: "Howard may have been held up. We don't know. All we know is the money is missing and so is Howard. He may even have lost the money and be ashamed to show his face."

4 Boys Adrift On Lake Erie In Rubber Raft

Cleveland, April 10 (AP).—The Coast Guard began a search tonight for four boys who drifted out into Lake Erie in a rubber raft, apparently while attempting to retrieve a canoe.

Lightly dressed and carrying no food, the youths were believed to have set out about 6 p. m. An offshore breeze of from 8 to 10 miles an hour pushed the raft out into the lake.

The youths were identified as David Hahn, 14; Richard Baur, 13; Roland Riemer, 13, and William Bonhoff, 14.

Hahn's father, Clarence, gave the alarm to the Coast Guard after he noticed the raft about 1000 yards from shore.

Dust, Ice Storms Hit Midwest Hard; Towns Isolated

Clinton, Iowa, April 10 (U.P.).—Severe dust storms whipped across Kansas wheatlands today in the wake of a Midwest ice storm that wrecked power and communication facilities in this Mississippi River town.

National Guard jeeps and trucks were ordered here to clear away the debris of an Easter ice onslaught that also crippled 124 other Iowa towns and spread northward to the Canadian border.

Moving behind the storm was a powerful gale that touched 60 miles an hour in Kansas and whipped up new dust clouds in the wheatlands.

18 Seamen Feared Lost In Gale Off New England

Nantucket, Mass., April 10 (AP).—Two hardy crews—18 seafaring men from the port of New Bedford—appeared tonight to be the toll of a wild April gale.

The Coast Guard reported no trace of the 64-foot scallop dragger, the Four Sisters, and her crew of 10.

A sister ship, the William J. Landry, was apparently lost with her eight men in the same storm.

Southern Plains Wheat Crop Slashed by Drought and Bugs

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Dry weather and bugs are playing hob with the winter wheat crop in the Southern Great Plains.

Since December 1, they have cut 121 million bushels off this year's prospects. On April 1, the Government Crop Reporting Board said yesterday, the outlook was for only 764 million bushels—the lowest since 1944.

If spring wheat farmers cut their acreage as much as the Government has asked, this year's total wheat harvest may run well below a billion bushels for the first time since 1943—seven years ago.

The reduction may go a long way towards easing the burden of wheat surpluses this fall. It is expected the total will more than make up the drop in wheat exports expected this year.

The report reverses the situation of December 10, when, although wheat acreage had been cut 19 percent, the prospective total yield was down less than 2 percent.

Worst hit by the bugs and drought was Oklahoma. Its prospects went down more than 50 percent, or almost 45 million bushels, since December. Kansas dropped 28 million bushels, or more than 10 percent.

Yesterday's estimate of 764 million bushels compares with 902 million bushels of winter wheat harvested last year, 1007 million in 1948, and 1068—the record—in 1947. The outlook is for only slight-

5-Cent Intrastate Fare Hike Won by Arnold Bus Lines

A five-cent increase on all its fares within Virginia was granted to the Washington, Virginia and Maryland (Arnold) bus lines yesterday by the State Corporation Commission.

The fare increase, which may go into effect with one day's published notice, complements a recent ICC ruling permitting W. V. and M. to raise its interstate fares between Virginia and Washington by the same amount.

The SCC order was issued shortly after a hearing in Richmond, at which Lester R. Conley, counsel for the Arlington County Board, protested the firm's petition for the increase.

The commission said testimony showed that "increased passenger rates, fares and charges are necessary in this case and the petition should be granted."

Effect of the SCC ruling will be to raise fares by five cents per route within Virginia territories covered by the bus company.

The company is being operated now by the State of Virginia, which seized it months ago to prevent interruption of service because of a strike called by operators.

More than 48,000 passengers use the Arnold buses daily, according to company officials, 26 percent riding within Virginia, and 74 percent between Virginia and the District.

Conley, in cross-examining three company witnesses, attempted to support his contention that even if the rate boost is granted the company does not plan to improve its service and will be in no better financial position than it is now.

Bill Offered to Fix Coal Prices at Pits

By The Associated Press

Fixing of soft coal prices at the mines by a Federal commission was proposed yesterday in legislation introduced by Senator Kilgore, Democrat from coal-producing West Virginia.

He said in an accompanying statement that unless Congress acts soon to prop up coal prices, there is danger of a "riotous competitive price situation" in the industry. A similar measure is pending in the House.

Observing that the potential producing capacity of the mines far outreaches potential consumer demand, Kilgore said:

"This unhealthy situation, if permitted to continue unchecked, might easily lead to disastrous cutthroat practices in the industry. Both labor and management would suffer tremendously under such conditions. . . .

"The proposed act would prevent the immediate threatened precipitous drop "in prices which would bring chaos and disaster to the industry."

Kilgore wants to set up a five-member commission to administer the proposed regulations, which would fix the prices of coal producers and distributors but not directly regulate the prices charged by retail dealers.

He said many coal operators and local unions of the United Mine Workers are backing his proposal.

In many respects, his bill is similar in purpose to the old Guffey Coal Act of 1937, which expired during the war.

Kilgore said that his bill, like the 1937 law, would outlaw unfair methods of competition, fixing penalties for producers and distributors who sold below the officially set minimum prices.

Those prices, he said, would be established so as to "yield a return not less than the average cost of producing coal in the minimum price areas.

Under Kilgore's plan, the President would apponit the five members of the commission — two representing producers, two the miners and one (the chairman) representing the public. There would be 23 district producers' boards to advise the commission and carry out administrative duties; a national distributors board to aid in the regulation of coal distribution, and a consumer counsel in the Department of the Interior to give the public a voice in the fixing of prices.

Coal Business Slump Idles 5000 Miners

Beckley, W. Va., April 10 (AP).—A lack of orders brought the posting of "No Work" signs today at three Lillybrook Coal Co. mines where 1000 men normally are employed.

The slump in business also kept 10 mines idle in the Pocahontas field. The number of men affected was estimated at between 4000 and 5000 by the Pocahontas Operators Association at Bluefield in southern West Virginia.

Accuses Agency

A. & P. Denies Monopoly in Suit Reply

New York, April 10 (AP).—The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company flatly denied monopoly charges today and accused the Justice Department of trying to change the Nation's whole economic structure through its anti-trust suit.

In its first formal answer to the Government's civil suit, the food chain told the U. S. District Court that the public would suffer "irreparable injury" if the A & P organization were broken up.

Asking dismissal of the suit, A & P said there is "no justification in fact or in law for the drastic and confiscatory destruction" of the company.

Sees 'Extremist' Principles

The company's 109-point answer said the Justice Department "is asking this court to adopt, by judicial fiat, new and exterminist principles of law which would result in a complete remodeling of the entire economic structure of this country."

The Government's suit, filed last September under the Sherman antitrust Act, charged that the A & P and a group of affiliates were a monopoly in restraint of trade.

In its answer, A & P termed its expansion over 90 years a "natural growth" that came almost entirely from within the company and not by mergers or by buying out competing companies.

A & P, the answer continued, has made great contributions toward revolutionizing the food business "with enormous and incalculable savings to the consumer and especially to the worker families."

Competition Curb Denied

Far from curbing competition, A & P said, its activities have "greatly promoted trade and increased competition."

The food chain said a decree of dissolution would be entirely unwarranted because:

"1. A & P is not a monopoly or otherwise illegal in itself.

"2. There is no clear, willful, serious or continuing violation of the anti-trust laws.

"3. Relief, if any were necessary, could be obtained through other means.

"4. The public interest will be harmed and not served thereby, and competition would not be increased but diminished."

A & P contended that it has done more than any other distributing organization in the world to make food available at low prices.

Trade Outlook 'Excellent,' Sawyer Says

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer said yesterday he considers the outlook is "excellent" for business in the second half of this year.

The Commerce chief, in his first news conference here since he underwent an operation in late February, said his department is drawing up "no specific program" for curing unemployment.

But he said he supports President Truman's proposal for increasing unemployment pay and extending the benefits to millions more people. On other topics, Sawyer said:

He has approved and suggested to the White House a plan, originating in his department's small business committee, for guaranteed loans to small business. He does not know whether the White House will adopt this suggestion or what form of aids to small business it might recommend.

His committee on antitrust matters is studying replies from businessmen to a questionnaire on how antitrust enforcement can be improved and what might be done to make it easier for business to comply with the antitrust laws.

Sawyer does not think any specific level of unemployment should be designated a "danger point." He knows no one wise enough to select the proper point, and sees much harm coming from it if business and the public were scared by unemployment reaching the supposed "danger point."

Basing-Point Foes in Senate Win a Round

By the United Press

Opponents of basing-point legislation won a skirmish in the Senate yesterday.

They defeated, by a vote of 36 to 35, a motion to take up for floor debate a compromise bill that would legalize base-point prices when there is no conclusion among competitors.

Yesterday's victory was only against taking up the bill at this time. It might come up later, at almost any time.

The fight against it was led by Senators Paul N. Douglas (D., Ill.) and Russell Long (D., La.). They led a fight last year that defeated a similiar measure.

Under a basing-point system, manufacturers may set prices on an area basis, regardless of where the product is manufactured.

The Supreme Court outlawed the system for the cement industry in 1948 on Government charges that it was used to fix prices in violation of antitrust laws.

The current legislation was introduced to authorize basing-point systems under certain circumstances. Supporters contended the court ruling might be interpreted to outlaw all delivered prices—including such standard items as candy bars, cigarets and so forth.

Douglas and Long argued that the bill would open the antitrust laws to all kinds of price discrimination.

Green Cool to 'Cooperation'

AFL President William Green yesterday strongly indorsed the idea of merging all American labor unions into a single federation, but avoided taking a stand on a CIO plan for all unions to cooperate politically pending the merger.

Green wrote CIO President Philip Murray that the AFL favors formation of "one strong, well established labor organization" in America.

But he said he was referring Murray's idea of a political-economic coordinating committee to the AFL's executive council for a decision when the council meets at Philadelphia May 8.

Murray proposed last week that the CIO, AFL, railroad unions and other major labor groups join in such a committee and also work for organic unity.

The AFL's traditional position has been that labor organizations should merge first, and that economic-political cooperation would follow automatically.

The AFL executive council, which will give the final answer to Murray, has rejected on a half a dozen occasions the cooperation-pending-merger idea.

Green was definitely enthusiastic over the move toward a single labor organization for the United States.

Pullman Conductors Plan Strike Monday

Chicago, April 10 (U.P.).—Union officials today ordered a strike of 2200 Pullman conductors in the United States and Canada for 7 p. m., EST, April 17.

The strike would prevent movement of Pullman cars on all railroads, they said, because train conductors have been ordered not to move Pullman equipment if the Pullman employes walk out.

Wildcat Strike Halts Work of 2400 at IHC

Memphis, Tenn., April 10 (AP).—A wildcat strike virtually stopped production at the 2400-worker International Harvester plant here today.

Some 1000 workers stayed off their jobs as a climax to a squabble that began March 30 over a substitute worker on the hay baler assembly line.

Service Family Housing Went Without a Cent Till Fiscal '49

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

(Third article in a series.)

Until fiscal year 1949 not one cent of money for new construction to relieve the deplorable conditions under which service families had to live had been appropriated by Congress

Between 1946 and 1949, in fact, the only money for overseas housing provided by Congress was to complete construction begun during the war. In June, 1948, $32,700,000 was included in a deficiency bill for that purpose, of which $29,933,000 was earmarked for Alaska. By 1948, Alaska had become the keystone of the continental defense system, but was virtually unmanned for lack of adequate housing. It remains that way today.

There was no lack of information about the seriousness of the situation in the hands of Congress. Beginning in 1946, and with increasing fervor, officers of the three services had urged the necessity of providing for servicemen and their families at home and abroad. But progress was exasperatingly slow.

In the summer of 1947, the Army asked Congress to authorize appropriation of 247 million dollars for what it described as the most essential housing for itself and the Air Force. The 247 million dollars, to be expended in 1948, had been cut down by a process of elimination from 2 billion dollars which the two services had estimated as their 1948 needs. They told Congress the 247 million would provide for construction at a rate which would not meet all their housing needs before 1962.

Rougher Going in House

Even this estimate, with its promise of overlong delay, failed to inspire action. The Armed Services Committees of both Houses held hearings and, in due course, the bill was reported out of the Senate committee and passed by the Senate January 12, 1948. It provided for the original 247 million dollars requested.

In the House it had rougher going. Reported out of committee July 22, 1947, it remained on the House calendar until the following January, when it was referred back to the Armed Services Committee. There it remained until April 28, 1948, when it was reported out again, this time trimmed to 207 million, and was passed May 20, 1948, by the House. The bill went to conference and then finally was passed in a form which authorized expenditure of $207,930,950, of which $122,044,350 was to be for projects in Alaska and overseas.

Even with this bill enacted the services had no funds to start work on the housing for which they were so desperately in need. There now remained the task of presenting the same requests for the same construction to Congress again, this time in the form of an appropriation bill which had to be defended before the Appropriations Committees of both Houses.

By this time, so slowly had the measure dragged through Congress, the services were convinced it would be useless to present requests for construction in fiscal 1949.

As it turned out, the bill introduced in mid-1947 and passed in the closing days of the Eightieth Congress in 1948 became the appropriation measure for construction in fiscal 1949. The fiscal year of 1948 had been totally lost as far as military housing overseas was concerned.

And the appropriation bill, when it finally was passed did not provide for the minimum of 247 million asked by the services or even for the 207 million authorized by Congress. Between passage of the authorization bill and the appropriation, the Budget Bureau had suggested an appropriation of 181 million and Congress had cut this down to 151 million. Therefore, the 247 million asked by the services had lost 40 million dollars and then 96 million on its two journeys through Congress.

Came Too Late

Even so, the 151-million-dollar bill finally enacted came too late to begin construction in Alaska before the summer of 1949, one year after the measure was passed and two years after the request went to Congress. And of the 136 million dollars cut from the bill by Congress, almost all was for housing.

Here is should be made clear that until the act of June, 1948, making appropriations for fiscal 1949, no permanent housing could be built in Alaska because cost limitations written into appropriations acts were too low to cover costs of Alaska construction. Not only must all lumber, hardware, cement, and practically all other materials be shipped into Alaskan, but wages there are extraordinarily high and workmen must be guaranteed a maximum living expense and facilities must be built for them before large-scale construction can be started.

In addition, there were no utilities and not even roads or streets at many localities where posts and airfields were to be built. Before housing construction could even be started, provision had to be made to haul in the materials, and water and electricity had to be supplied and sewers laid.

Water and sewer mains had to be protected against the perennial frost and foundations had to be set below the 9 to 20-foot frostline. All of these had to be paid for and their cost figured into the price of each dwelling unit.

The result was an average cost 2½ to 4 times that of equivalent construction at home and far above the limitations set by Congress, which varied from $20,000 a unit to $28,500 until the appropriation for fiscal 1949, when the limitation was placed on the floor area of buildings rather than on their cost.

First Steps Taken

With funds in hand at last to start overseas housing, even though they came too late to do more for Alaska than pay for design and planning for 1949, it became possible to take the first steps toward easing the situation foreseen by the services in 1947. They looked hopefully to fiscal 1950 for easier sailing but found themselves instead confronted by the same old troubles.

In March, 1949, the Army presented its 1950 budget request for construction funds to the Budget Bureau, which forwarded it to Congress in May. There it languished, as in previous years, until it got two assists, one accidental and one deliberate. That summer a typhoon struck Okinawa which damaged practically all housing there, and in September the Joint Chiefs of Staff visited Alaska and brought back photographs of the hovels in which servicemen and their families were living.

Two months before, on July 28, Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee had announced he would not press for passage of the 1950 military public works bill, including 152 million dollars for housing, until this year, a decision which would have set overseas housing back at least another 12 months.

Then came the public revelation of disgraceful conditions in Alaska and Congress showed that it could act when it wanted to. Items totalling 80 million for construction in Alaska and Okinawa were lifted out of the 1950 budget.

The authorization was enacted October 27, 1949, and the appropriation the following day.

White House Gets Housing Bill Shorn of Co-op Aid Provision

By the United Press

The Senate unanimously passed a compromise version of the Administration's "middle income" housing bill yesterday and sent it to the White House.

President Truman is expected to sign the legislation, although it was shorn of the one billion dollar program of direct Federal loans to housing cooperatives that he sought.

The main effect of the bill is to revive the now-dormant mortgage insurance program of the Federal Housing Administration, and expand other Government credit aids to private home builders.

The Senate by voice vote after Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) of the Banking Committee said the final product of a Senate-House version conference committee is "a better bill than either house passed."

Main provisions of the bill:

1. Another $2,250,000,000 in additional mortgage insurance authority for the FHA's Title II program for private home building.

2. Two hundred and fifty million dollars more for the FHA's mortgage insurance program for modernizing and repairing private homes. The program would be extended for five years.

3. A total of 150 million dollars in long-term low-cost Federal loans to GIs for homes when they cannot borrow from private sources.

4 A maximum of 300 million dollars in Federal loans to schools and colleges for student and faculty housing at an interest rate of about 2.55 percent.

5. Authority for the Reconstruction Finance Corp. to lend up to $12,500,000 for distribution and construction of prefabricated homes.

6. Mortgage insurance up to five million dollars per project for the FHA's present program on housing cooperatives. The Government could insure up to 95 percent of the cost if 65 percent of the cooperative residents are veterans. Otherwise the maximum would be 90 percent.

7. Five hundred million dollars for applications filed prior to March 1, 1950, under the expiring FHA program for mortgage insurance in large-scale rental housing projects.

8. Disposal of all Government-owned war and surplus housing, including authorized transfer of 43,000 permanent war housing units to local communities for low-cost public housing projects.

ly more than the 759-million-bushels average for the 10 years, 1939-48.

The average yield was indicated as 14.4 bushels an acre, as compared with 14.5 in 1949 and a 10-year-average of 15.7. The average was 18 bushels an acre in 1948, and the all-time high was 18.4 in 1948.

Smallest Since 1939

The average yield per acre forecast yesterday is the smallest since 1939, when the average was 14.1, one of the lowest in years.

Farm work generally, and vegetative development throughout the country, is backward a few days to a week or more. "Little concern is felt yet," the board said, "as more than the usual fall plowing was done and mechanization of farms enables farmers to make rapid progress once they can get started."

Better supplies of meat seem indicated in another part of the report. Farm stocks of feeds grains, it says, are the second largest of record for April 1. "Disappearance of about 28½ million tons of feed grains from farms since January 1 reflects liberal feeding to livestock during the winter."

The report also predicts:

1. Slightly more oranges and tangerines than a year ago; about 106 million boxes, as compared with 104 million in 1949. The average is 97 million; the biggest crop lately was 115 million in 1947.

2. A small crop of grapefruit. The prediction is for only 37 million boxes as against 46 million last year and an average for 1938-47 of 51 million. In 1947 the crop was 62 million.

3. More lemons — 11.5 million boxes, as compared with 10 million in 1949. The average for 1938-47 was 13 million.

Milk production in March exceeded any other March of record, despite unfavorable weather, the report said. Not only were milk cow numbers slightly larger than a year ago, but production per cow continued at a record rate.

Egg production was "relatively large" in February and March, 16.7 millions, as compared with 1.55 last year.

Crop Conditions Given

Crop conditions in States near Washington were given as follows:

Apples: "In Virginia and West Virginia the cold March weather retarded the trees, and buds are still dormant. Trees are not expected to bloom until the last part of April."

Peaches: "In Virginia there was some kill of early blooming fruits in the southern and southwestern counties, but in the commercial producing areas cold weather retarded the development of buds and there has been very little damage as of April 1.

"Trees were blooming the first week in April and are still subject to frost damage as the average day of the last killing frost in the southern counties east of the Blue Ridge Mountains is about April 15, and in the northern counties and in the Shenandoah Valley between April 20 and 25. In West Virginia, some minor fruit damage has been reported to late varieties."

Early potatoes—the Nation's greatest crop headache—were reported slightly below that of a year ago in 10 Southern States and California.

Winter wheat prospects were given as:

Maryland: 5,967,000 bushels, as compared with 6,878,000 in 1949 and an average (1939-48) 6,817,000.

Virginia: 7,582,000 bushels, as compared with 8,732,000 in 1949 and an average of 7,998,000.

West Virginia: 1,353,000 bushels, as compared with 1,502,000 last year, and 1,588,000 average.

New Blow at Reds

Guerillas Hit Coast Of China

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
GEN. LIN PIAO, top Chinese Red general, has been ordered to conquer Hainan, according to Hongkong reports

Taipei, Formosa, April 10 (AP).—A fresh amphibious assault on the Communist mainland 20 miles from Shanghai was reported today by the Chinese Nationalists.

Press dispatches said several hundred guerillas from Chushan Island landed April 5 near Nanhwei, the same place they had struck March 30. They were credited with destroying more than 100 junks and capturing 4 in the face of fierce Communist resistance.

(Shanghai travelers reaching Hongkong reported it looked as if the Reds were planning a new assault on Chushan. They noted the requisition of nearly all small craft in the Shanghai vicinity and the movement of soldiers from Shanghai to Hangchow, a logical staging point for attacking Chushan.)

Nationalist dispatches from Hainan said the latest Red attempt on that big southern island Saturday was smashed with 1000 Communists killed and 20 motorized craft sunk by the Nationalist navy.

New York, April 10 (U.P.).—Air Force denials that "flying saucers" exist are "worth a billion dollars to the Russians in the 'cold war,'" Radio Commentator Henry J. Taylor said tonight.

Taylor said over the ABC network that this country has several unconventional air vehicles that could be taken for "flying saucers."

He described one as a fantastic contraption "in pulsating plastic," as tall as an eight-story building and used to record cosmic rays.

"What has happened to our brains?" Taylor asked. "These denials are worth a billion dollars to the Russians in the 'cold war' . . ."

President Truman and the Air Force both denied similar reports by Taylor last week that "flying saucers" are top-secret United States military inventions.

Taylor warned that if the Russians suddenly announced they were sending "flying saucers" around the world, United States officials would have no way to stem American hysteria.

Taylor said the United States should announce:

"We have no further comment about anything in the skies except that America is creating many helpful and incredible things. All are harmless and good news for freedom-loving people."

And this would be a true statement, the commentator said.

Taylor said that at an airfield near Minneapolis and also at other places, the Navy is "launching into our high skies an enormous and fantastic type of vehicle."

"Nobody is in it," he said, "but it carries 70 pounds of instruments to record cosmic rays . . . It is an enormous translucent thing with a long tail and flies up to 100,000 feet in the air. When the weird contraption is launched off the ground, it is filled to only one percent of its capacity with helium. At high altitudes, expansion causes it to blow itself up into a gigantic monster 100 feet tall and 70 feet in diameter, tall as an eight-story building, all in pulsating plastic."

Taylor said some of these vehicles travel all over America, 20 miles up in the sky. At sunset, the whole contraption glows and can be seen as long as 30 minutes after darkness.

The instruments are floated back to earth by parachute, Taylor said. Then the huge contraption "breaks into pieces in the sky or explodes," showering plastic pieces over the land.

Nehru Lauds Pakistan Pact As Halting Drift to Disaster

New Delhi, India, April 10 (AP).—The new India-Pakistan pact to protect minority groups and end the bloody communal strife on the subcontinent was ratified today by the Indian Parliament.

The agreement also was presented to Pakistan's Constituent Assembly in Karachi.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told the Indian Parliament he was satisfied the pact would halt a drift toward catastrophe.

"We have stopped ourselves at the edge of a precipice and turned our back to it," Nehru said.

Liaquat Ali Khan, Prime Minister of Pakistan, said:

"It is my firm intention to implement this agreement in full. I am satisfied that Premier Nehru would do everything possible to see that life, property, culture, citizenship and other rights of Moslems in all parts of India are safeguarded."

The agreement was drafted in seven days of continuous negotiations between Nehru and Liaquat Ali here last week. It guarantees the security of the Moslem minority in Hindu India and the Hindu minority in Moslem Pakistan. It also permits unhampered migration of both minorities across the borders of the two dominions.

The pact was approved by the Indian Parliament in a voice vote, but its reception was not unanimously enthusiastic. Representatives from Bengal, scene of recent Moslem-Hindu rioting, sat silent while Nehru read terms of the pact.

In a news conference in Karachi, Liaquat Ali declined to discuss the possibility of a non-aggression pact between the two countries at this stage. He said it is not a question for one side to decide.

"If this agreement is not implemented," Liaquat Ali said, "I don't see any chance of settling other issues in the near future."

The pact is divided into two major parts. The first sets forth general guarantees for protection of the rights of minorities. The second deals with specific action to be taken in disturbed West Bengal, Assam and Tripura.

Pan-American Parley Brings New Harmony

A special session of the Inter-American Economic and Social Council closed yesterday with the optimistic prediction its work would lead to improved living standards in the Americas.

Final speeches by delegates from Argentina, Brazil and the United States all emphasized the new harmony among the 21 American republics shown at the three-week meeting.

The speakers said a program for exchange of technical assistance approved by the council was probably the outstanding achievement. They said it should do much to help underdeveloped nations improve their economy and ways of living.

Speakers were Treasury Minister Ramon A. Cereijo of Argentina, president of the special session; Edward G. Miller, jr., assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American affairs and the United States' chief delegate; and Hildebrando Accioly of Brazil, Ambassador to the United States and head of Brazil's delegation.

Results Exceed Expectations

Cereijo, who opened the initial meeting with a warning to delegates not to be too optimistic, said yesterday what had been achieved exceed his expectations.

"What has been done," he said, "will have a real influence, and a direct one, on the life of our peoples."

He laid particular emphasis on the proposed Buenos Aires economic conference, saying the special session here "justifies optimism that the economic conference can lead to big things."

The special session decided to postpone the Buenos Aires meeting at least a year to enable officials to work up adequate data for study.

Suspicions Eliminated

Miller said he wanted to clear up "confusion" about the United States' attitude toward such a conference. The only request the United States makes is that proper information be worked up in advance so there is "a reasonable prospect of achieving our goal," he said.

Belgians Hear Leopold May Return Soon

Brussels, April 10 (U.P.).—Thrown into an uproar by a report exiled King Leopold might return within 10 days, Socialists vowed today to wage "relentless and merciless" war against their former monarch.

Former Premier Paul-Henri Spaak declared flatly there would be a "showdown of strength" between the nation's Socialists and Catholics should Leopold return to the throne.

Reliable sources said Jacques Pirrene, the King's secretary and political adviser, "intimated" to Spaak that Leopold expects to be recalled by a joint session of Parliament, perhaps this week.

Convocation of Parliament is dependent on Premier-Designate Paul Van Zeeland's ability to form an All-Catholic (Social Christian) government which so far he has not done.

Great Britain, Canada Hike Bank Funds

Both the United Kingdom and Canada have agreed "in principle" to let the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development use increased amounts of their currency in lending operations, it was announced yesterday.

World Bank President Eugene R. Black described the action as "gratifying" and one that "broadens the international character" of the finances at the bank's disposal.

He said the power to lend British pounds and Canadian dollars is "a very much needed and useful contribution to our lending operations."

The bank feels, it is known, that such substantial amounts of dollars have already been lent, and that the problems of the "dollar gap" are such that it will be increasingly difficult for some future borrowers to repay loans in dollars. Therefore, the bank must look more and more to making loans in other currencies.

With permission from other countries to use their currencies, this hoped-for kind of non-dollar lending becomes possible.

Black said the British and Canadian action is part of an "encouraging trend' among the bank's member countries. He said he expected other nations to follow suit soon.

The money made available—one million British pounds and two million Canadian dollars—comes from the two countries' subscriptions, in their own currencies, to the bank's capital.

Collins Finds Big Improvement In Armed Forces of Near East

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, said yesterday he was "very much impressed" with the improvement in the armed forces of Near East and Middle East countries in the past couple of years.

Returning from an inspection trip of American military missions in those areas, Collins also declared he was gratified by the evidence of "universal good will toward Americans" he encountered.

None of the countries could defend itself indefinitely or withstand a major power by itself, said the Nation's No. 1 Army man. Turkey, however, he said "could give an awfully good account of itself" and the other countries have made progress, "though much remains to be done."

No Mediterranean Pact

In response to a question, Collins said he knew of no plan for a "Mediterannean Military Aid Pact," similar to the Western Europe Plan. When a reporter wanted to know if this meant "we had written off the Middle and Near East" in event of war with Russia, in favor of aid to Europe, the chief of staff replied.

"I'll answer that this way—in my judgment the most important thing that needs to be done is to reinforce the people of western Europe, morally, economically and with arms. The security of Western Europe is of the greatest importance to the security of the United States."

Collins praised the efficiency of the "close support" bombing and strafing given the Greek army by squadrons of the Greek tactical air force. The Greek fliers, piloting United States Navy planes, he said, got so close to their own front lines in maneuvers staged for him that "they scared our people." They're "as good as our tactical support," he added.

Praise Troops at Trieste

The Army chief also lauded the appearance and readiness of the Greek army units and our own troops at Trieste. He told reporters that when he flew over El Alemein on his return trip, he dispatched the following message to Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery:

"I am flying over the scene of your first great victory. There is little trace of it left save the indelible impression of British valor which not even the sands of the desert can eradicate."

Italy Warns That Sabotage Of Arms Aid Will Be Treason

Rome, April 10 (U.P.).—The government told Italian Communists today that attempts to sabotage unloading of United States military supplies to Italy would be an act of treason, punishable "by the strongest forces at our command."

Tension mounted as the time neared for the arrival of the freighter Exilona, which left New York March 31 with the first military supplies for the Italian army under the North Atlantic Pact. Communists reiterated their charges the arms were for a new war.

Time and place of the Exilona's arrival were government secrets. There was some speculation the ship would put in Wednesday at the southern Adriatic port of Bari, where United States Embassy, naval and air attaches arrived last week.

A government spokesman said the government was banking on the secrecy to block Communist plans for protest action.

The government warning followed appeals by the Communists to dockworkers throughout Italy to strike against the unloading of the arms shipments.

Many Russian Planes, Pilots Aid Chinese Reds, U. N. Is Told

Lake Success, April 10 (AP).—Nationalist China told the United Nations today Russia has sent a large number of Soviet military planes and pilots to Red China.

The Nationalists indicated they want the United Nations to send air and naval observers to Formosa quickly to watch for any Soviet move in the Chinese civil war.

Nationalist Chief Delegate T. F. Tsiang deliberately by-passed the Security Council, where he would face almost certain defeat in any move to condemn Russia on charges of helping the Chinese Communists. He could not gain the necessary seven votes in the 11-nation council since 5 of the council members have recognized Red China.

Tsiang chose instead to put his protest before the little Assembly. This body, boycotted by the Soviet Union since it was organized in 1948, has the Chinese conflict on its work-sheet but has done nothing about it.

At its last meeting February 7 Tsiang called for the air and naval observation group and that is as far as it has gone.

Today Tsiang said in a letter to Secretary-General Trygve Lie that Russian planes and personnel are concentrated in three air bases, at Shanghai, Nanking and Hsuchow. He said the entire signal corps of the Chinese Communists' air force is set up and maintained by Soviet technicians.

Woman Teller Runs Down Man Who Rifles Cage

St. Louis, April 10 (U.P.).—A 118-pound blonde teller spied a thief rifling her cage in a bank today and chased him for two blocks through downtown traffic to recover part of the money. She also drove him into the arms of police.

Miss Audrey Lorenzen, 27, who is five feet four inches tall, tussled twice on the streets with a man who towered over her. Passersby ignored her cries for help, she said.

Miss Lorenzen, a teller at the United Bank and Trust Co., saw the man take the money from her locked cage as she stood on the balcony overlooking the banking floor.

Police identified the man as William R. Evans, 62, Atlanta, Ga.

Miss Lorenzen grabbed $440 from his pockets during the chase. However, the bank reported $1225 missing and detectives were hunting the rest of the money on a theory he might have thrown it away in escaping.

Poland Denounced by Vatican For Campaign Against Church

Vatican City, April 10 (U.P.).—The Vatican broke its long official silence tonight on the persecution of Poland's 21 million Catholics with a bitter admission that all hope had been lost for a church-state accord.

A 14,000-word documented report published in the semiofficial newspaper Osservatore Romano said the Polish primate and his bishops had challenged the Polish Communist regime to "confess openly" that it had "declared war against the church."

The report, prepared by the Vatican-authorized Jesuit review, Civilta Cattolica, disclosed that the Polish hierarchy had written their "last letter" to Polish President Boleslaw Bieut in mid-February.

The letter wrote an end to nearly five years of negotiations by the Vatican to renew the concordat with Poland denounced by the Warsaw government at end of the war.

The review cited scores of examples of persecution against the Catholic Church and sadly recalled attempts by the Nazi occupation forces in Poland to split the clergy "in the same manner." It said "the people of Warsaw remember that day."

The article said the Communist government "has constantly aimed to create a 'Catholic Church' entirely subjected to the state, similar to a decile instrument to enslave souls."

No figures on the number of priests imprisoned or executed were published. Authoritative Catholic sources have said more than 350 preists were arrested last year alone.

Rainmaking Put Off As Reservoir Runs Over

New York, April 10 (U.P.).—New York City will postpone all rainmaking attempts over its reservoir area until one of the reservoirs stops overflowing, Water Commissioner Stephen Carney said today.

The Schoharie Reservoir, paying no heed to the city's "critical" water shortage, began to spill over Thursday night. So far, 1,135,000,000 gallons have gone over the dam.

Carney said the city's reservoirs now measured 75.6 percent of capacity. One year ago today they were 94.8 percent full.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Franco's daughter and husband, the Marquis de Villaverde

Madrid, April 10 (AP).—With skyrockets bursting overhead, 23-year-old Carmen Franco, only child of Spain's generalissimo, was married amid 17th Century royal splendor today to a young Madrid physician.

The bridegroom, 29, is Cristobal Martiney Bordiu, Marquis of Villaverde.

The couple received a fortune in gifts, including a solid gold tea set from King Abdullah of Hashemite Jordan and a Cadillac from President Rafeal Trujillo of the Dominican Republic.

The ceremony, unmatched here in brilliance for more than 40 years, was performed by the Catholic Primate of Spain, Enrique Cardinal Pla y Deniel, in the royal chapel of Pardo Palace, 10 miles outside Madrid.

The bride, wearing a white faille dress designed by Balenciaga, entered the church on the arm of Generalissimo Franco, who wore the uniform of a capitain general in the Spanish navy.

They walked the few yards from the palace door to the chapel through two ranks of dusky Moorish lancers. They were preceded by two soldiers of the palace guard in 17th Century uniforms. Behind came the bridegroom, escorting his mother, Countess De Argillo, who with Franco was patron of the young couple. The groom's father, escorting Senora Franco, brought up the rear.

Two footmen, also in ancient livery, carried the hem of Carmen's 5-yard-long veil.

Her white gown contrasted with the bridegroom's uniform of the Order of the Holy Sepulcher. He wore red trousers, with gold stripe, and a tight cream-colored tunic with a large red cross in the center of the chest.

McDonough Heads VA Chaplain Unit

The Veterans Administration has promoted the No. 2 man in its chaplaincy service to its top religious post.

The agency yesterday said Edward A. McDonough, 49, of Boston, a Roman Catholic priest, has succeeded A. J. McKelway, a Presbyterian, as chaplaincy service director.

McKelway was appointed director in August, 1947, but because of ill health has served in that position for only a few months. McDonough, assistant director, has filled in during McKelway's absence.

A VA news announcement said that McKelway asked to be relieved because of his health. McKelway now is chaplain at the Veterans' Hospital at Bay Pines, Fla. He is a brother of B. M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Star, and of St. Clair McKelway, staff writer for the New Yorker magazine.

McDonough attended Boston College and St. John's Ecclesiastical Seminary at Boston, and was ordained a priest in 1924.

During the war, in which he reached the rank of colonel, he served with Thirteenth Corps Headquarters at Fort duPont, Wilmington, Del., saw overseas duty in England, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany, and later was chaplain at Camp Cook, Calif.

VA employs 242 full-time and 224 part-time chaplains, about 60 percent Protestant, 30 percent Catholic and 4 percent Jewish.

Court Bankruptcy Ruling Foils Von Leidersdorff Creditors

Richmond, Va., April 10 (Spl.)—The creditors of Baron John von Leidersdorff gnashed their eye-owe-you teeth today.

The United States Court of Appeals ruled that the baron is an honest-to-goodness farmer and as such is entitled to file in bankruptcy as a farmer.

The decision means that the creditors of the Danish nobleman won't be able to lay a hand on his estate, "Guthrie Hall," near Esmont, one of the show places of Albemarle County.

Previously, the Federal District Court at Charlottesville had denied the baron's petition in bankruptcy on the ground he was not a farmer within the meaning of the bankruptcy laws. Attorneys for the creditors labeled him a "playboy" and a "cocktail farmer."

In reversing the lower court ruling, the Court of Appeals remanded the case to the trial court for "further proceedings."

In opposing the baron's petition in bankruptcy, the creditors claimed he still was worth $100,000 and that his financial crisis was reached because he played the horses.

The baron, who came to Virginia to breed race horses, admitted to being a fast man with a dollar, but said that was his business.

The Court of Appeals found him to be "recklessly extravagant, irresponsible and inefficient" but even so a farmer because his farming operations had not stopped at the time the petition was filed.

The Court of Appeals pointed out that the baron "was not compelled to seek other occupation for a livelihood since he could depend on his wife's resources."

The baron purchased Guthrie Hall in 1939 and made extensive improvements. "These operations," said the appeals court, "were of considerable extent during the early years and so long as the debtor was able to borrow money." The baron's bankruptcy petition listed debts of $344,544 and assets of $100,000.

Faithful Few Attend Rites for Binaggio

Kansas City, April 10 (AP).—Charles Binaggio, Northside political boss, and his henchman were buried in the same cemetery here today after a priest had defended Christian services for them by a condemnation of conditions permitting an underworld.

Separate Catholic services were held for the 41-year-old politician and his muscleman, Charles Gargotta, 49, both slain in gangster fashion early last Thursday in their Democratic Club headquarters.

Only a faithful few attended the services. At Binaggio's the Rev. Raymond E. Jackson denounced the supposedly respectable forces that allow the underworld to flourish.

"We condemn the underworld and all its barbarous and cowardly ways. But we condemn also the overworld—liquor executives, public officials in high and low places and the like, who, though able to retain the aura of respectability, sacrifice every decent principle for their own contemptible and selfish ends.

"The same blood is on their hands as upon the hands of the villainous characters whom they both use and protect."

A small crowd attended the two services for the two Northside figures but the flowers poured in. There were about 1000 at Binaggio's and 300 at Gargotta's. About 1400 went to the cemetery.

Floral pieces banked the two copper caskets, costing about $2500 each. Some came from Miami, Fla.; Reno, Nev.; Chicago, Detroit, Dallas, Los Angeles, San Francisco, St. Louis and New York.

Who sent them remained a secret. The funeral director took cards accompanying them and gave them to relatives.

Many of Binaggio's own political associates were there but the Pendergast organization, of which President Truman is a member, was conspicuously without representatives at the services.

Several St. Louisians, including three State senators, were listed among the honorary pallbearers, but only John W. Joynt, former circuit judge, was seen in the group of mourners. Five St. Louisans earlier had said they would not attend.

GOP Charges 'Manipulation'

of members of the Judiciary Committee, which originally sponsored a Senate crime investigation, and the Interstate Commerce Committee, which approved a somewhat more limited investigation last week.

Presumably Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), author of the original resolution introduced January 5, would head the proposed joint committee.

The plan was put up to Kefauver by Lucas at a luncheon yesterday in the office of Senate Secretary Leslie Biffle. Later Kefauver declined to say flatly whether he would go along with the compromise.

He said he wanted to hear more of the details at today's meeting of the party policy committee. If the substitute resolution provides for a "full and complete" investigation he indicated he may support it.

The Interstate Commerce Committee investigation, rivaling the inquiry proposed by Kefauver, meanwhile was scheduled to get under way at 10:30 a. m. today in executive session.

A subcommittee headed by Senator Ernest W. McFarland (D., Ariz.), conducting the inquiry, is looking into the "need" for legislation proposed by Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, banning interstate transmission of gambling information.

McFarland said officials of the Justice Department and Federal Bureau of Investigation will be heard at the meeting, called to "map out" further hearings.

Lucas meanwhile invited ranking Democrats on both the Judiciary and Interstate Commerce group to today's party policy luncheon.

Besides Kefauver and McFarland, Senate Judiciary Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) and Senate Interstate Commerce Chairman Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) have been invited to attend. McCarran told newsmen he still feels the two committees should proceed separately.

Lucas said, however, that since both committees would cover the same ground they should conduct the investigation jointly. He said the joint target would be the organized crime "syndicates," who comprise them, and how they operate. The Democratic leader said he further favored employing a "high class counsel, with a national reputation" to head the investigating staff.

"I'm not dragging my feet on this thing," he said. "I hope we can have a hard-hitting investigation."

Senator Ferguson, No. 3 Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee and one of his party's ace investigators, told reporters Lucas' plan for a 5 to 7-man investigation has "apparently euchred me out of it."

"They don't want members of the Judiciary Committee, which should have jurisdiction in anti-crime matters, to run it," he continued.

"Why don't they come right out and say they don't want any investigation at all. They've been kicking the Kefauver resolution around ever since it was introduced. Now they are trying to put it in a pigeonhole and padlock the door."

Asked if he thought the Kansas City vote frauds case, and the recent slaying of Charles Binaggio, political and underworld figure, should be probed, Ferguson said: "I'd hate to slight Kansas City—and I'd want to include my own city of Detroit."

Sawyer Backs Lee as 'Loyal' U. S. Employe

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer yesterday said he believed Michael J. Lee to be "a loyal citizen and (Commerce) department employe."

Sawyer spoke out at a news conference in defense of Lee, chief of the Far Eastern branch of the department's Office of International Trade.

Senator Malone (R., Nev.), calling Lee a Manchurian-born Russian, has been trying to get Lee ousted from the post. He accuses him of blocking vital war shipments to the Chinese Nationalists during their fight against the Communists.

Records Studied

Sawyer said he had carefully studied records of his depratment's loyalty board, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the Immigration Service, with the result that: "I saw nothing to show that he (Lee) shouldn't be hired or retained."

The Lee matter came up when a reporter asked comment on a statement by Undersecretary of Commerce Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney that on the basis of certain published reports about Lee, he wouldn't have hired him.

"If Mr. Whitney said that, I disagree with him," Sawyer said.

Whitney's statement was made recently to a Senate Commerce subcommittee. The Senate group has been holding hearings on a resolution by Malone for an investigation of Lee.

Reasons Not Given

Whitney recently submitted his resignation as Undersecretary to President Truman, but has said nothing about his reasons for resigning except that they were in his letter to Mr. Truman and that he (Whitney) did not feel at liberty to disclose them.

Asked about that, Sawyer said Whitney "told me he wanted to go back to his private business." Sawyer did not connect the resignation with the Lee case.

On the general subject of charges of "Communists" in Government, Sawyer said "the whole subject has been talked about much too much."

The Commerce Department's loyalty board is now conducting a supplemental investigation of Lee after having cleared him in August, 1949.

Assistant Secretary Thomas C. Blaisdell told the Senate committee last month that the basis for the supplemental investigation was "certain additional information forwarded by the Civil Service Commission."

Illinois Voters Head Spring Poll Parade

By The Associated Press

Illinois voters today will lead off the spring parade of primary fights, the outcome of which will be reflected in decisive congressional elections next fall.

At stake is the fate of President Truman's Fair Deal program in the next two years.

A third of the 48 States will hold primaries and conventions running through June 30 to nominate major party candidates for Congress and State offices.

Senator Scott W. Lucas, Administration floor leader, has the Illinois Democratic senatorial nomination without challenge. Former Representative Everett M. Dirksen is expected to win easily over two opponents in the Republican primary.

This will assure a hot, clear-cut race in November. Dirksen wants to halt deficit financing, calls further foreign aid spending "pouring money down a rat hole." Lucas says deep cuts in the Truman spending proposals would endanger national defense and encourage communism abroad.

Seven of the State's 23 Congressmen running for renomination have primary foes. They are Democrats O'Hara and Sabath, and Republicans Chiperfield, Jonas, Hoffman, Reed and Bishop.

The Illinois primaries are but a warm-up for the big bouts in May. Candidates will be picked then for seven United States Senate seats, and there is at least one first-rate battle in each of six States, with contests in Alabama over State committee memberships having an important bearing in 1952. New Jersey will hold House primaries April 18.

Senate Passes Bill for Aid to 2 Indian Tribes

By the United Press

The Senate yesterday approved and sent to the White House an $88,570,000 bill to raise the living standards of some 94,000 Hopi and Navajo Indians in the Southwest.

President Truman vetoed a similar bill last year on the ground that it would have subjected the tribes to State laws of Arizona, New Mexico and Utah. The new bill was revised to meet his objections, and he is expected to sign it promptly.

Actual cash for the long-range rehabilitation program must be provided later in separate money bills.

The legislation, passed by the House last Thursday, authorizes a 25-million-dollar program of school building on the tribal reservation, and other projects to improve health, build roads, provide irrigation facilities for farming, and open up business and industrial opportunities for the Indians.

The program was requested by Mr. Truman last year on the basis of Interior Department surveys showing many of the 90,000 Navajos and 4000 Hopis in a state near destitution.

A companion bill to authorize a 10-million-dollar aid program for the Creek, Seminole, Choctaw and Chickasaw Indian tribes in Oklahoma was approved last week by the House Public Lands Committee.

Film Writers Denied Review by High Court

case and that Justice Clark took no part in the decision.

At the same time, the high court, in an unsigned opinion, reversed a lower court ruling in another case involving the Un-American Activities Committee, that of Richard Morford and the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc.

In the 8-to-0 opinion (Justice Clark took no part in the case) the court said the trial court was wrong in not permitting Morford's lawyers to question prospective Government employe jurors on the possible influence of the President's loyalty program "on their ability to render a just and impartial verdict."

The opinion cited the majority ruling in the Eugene Dennis case, decided two weeks ago, that "preservation of the opportunity to prove actual bias is a guarantee of a defendant's right to an impartial jury." Justice Douglas noted that he agreed with yesterday's ruling but on the ground of the dissent in the Dennis case expressed by Justices Black and Frankfurter. Dennis, the court held, received a fair trial though some of the jurors were Government employes and he is secretary of the American Communist Party. He contended a fair trial was impossible because Government employes had to oppose communism because of the loyalty program in order to hold their jobs.

In still a third ruling yesterday, however, the Court refused to consider the case of George Marshall, chairman of the National Federation of Constitutional Liberties, a group of the Un-American Committee in 1944 called "one of the viciously subservise organizations of the Community Party." Only Justice Black favored hearing Marshall's appeal.

In the Marshall case the trial court had refused to permit his attorney to ask prospective Government employe jurors about the effect of the loyalty program on their ability to give a fair decision. The Government contended, as it did in the Morford case (and in almost identical language) that the question the attorney suggested would have "tended to raise groundless fears" that the House committee would put down in its little black book the name of any juror voting for acquittal, whatever the evidence.

Some time ago the Supreme Court refused to consider an appeal by Dr. Edward K. Barsky of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, another group which tangled with the House Un-American Committee. The effect in this case, as in the Lawson-Trumbo ruling, was to leave standing a Court of Appeals decision that witnesses must answer when asked if they are Communists.

The net of all these Supreme Court actions is to leave the Un-American Committee, and any other congressional committee, free to probe into Communism, with its action backed by the threat of a jail sentence. The Court has consistently refused to consider attacks on the constitutionality of the committee and its activities brought on the grounds the committee has violated free speech, the right to keep silent on one's political beliefs and other individual rights under the Constitution.

The Court has been willing to examine the trials of persons cited for congressional committees to see if they were fairly conducted, however. But tha tappears to be as far as the Court majority is now willing to go.

In the Lawson-Trumbo case the Court of Appeals here, in a unanimous opinion by Judge Bennett Champ Clark, ruled last year that "the right of free speech is not absolute, but must yield to national interests justifiably thought to be of larger importance. The same is true of the right to remain silent."

Both writers were sentenced to pay $1000 fines and serve a year in jail. Eight other Hollywood figures who likewise refused to tell the Un-American Committee if they were Communist Party members at the time of the 1947 hearings have been awaiting the outcome of the Lawson-Trumbo case. The eight agreed to waive a jury trial if the high court upheld the appeals court, which it now has done in effect.

The next move against the eight is up to District Attorney George Morris Fay. Once the legal formalities are disposed of, a matter that could take several weeks, he is expected to submit the cases to District Court for decision on the submitted evidence. The eight are Ring Lardner, jr., Albert Maltz, Alvah Bessie, Samuel Ornitz, Herbert Biberman, Edward Dmytryk, Adrian Scott and Lester Cole.

Lawson, a former president of the Screen Writers Guild, wrote the scripts for such movies as "Blockade," "Action in the North Atlantic," "Algiers," "Smashup," "Sahara" and "The Jolson Story." Trumbo, who once was paid $80,000 a year, wrote the scripts for "Kitty Foyle," "A Guy Named Joe" and other movies.

Lawson was cited for contempt after he was led from the witness stand in one of the stormiest sessions in the House Un-American Committee's stormy career. Cheers and boos were mixed as Lawson accused the committee and its chairman, then Representative Thomas (R., N. J.), of "Hitler tactics" in repeatedly asking if he was a party member.

In the only regular opinions yesterday, the Court in two similar cases twice ruled, 7-to-1, that State and Federal courts have no power to make primary findings in railroad union disputes. Justice Black spoke for the majority in both decisions with Justice Reed twice dissenting and Justice Douglas taking no part.

One case involved the Delaware, Lackawana and Western Railroad and the order of Railroad Telegraphers and the Brotherhood of Railroad Clerks. The other case involved the Southern Railway and the Order of Railway Conductors.

Pheasant Gets Vicious When Handouts Halt

Canton, Ohio, April 10 (AP).—A visitor is wearing thin the welcome mat at the Herbert Sherlocks.

He arrived in their back yard several days ago, gratefully accepted a handout, gulped it down to the last grain of corn and stuck around. Now, when he doesn't get the daily ration, he flies into a rage and attacks his benefactors' ankles.

A few more days and the Sherlocks may be tempted to break the law. Their unwelcome guest is a pheasant—and pheasants are out of season in Ohio until November 15.

Halting Aggression

No one can mistake the firmness with which the Council of the Organization of American States has acted respecting the disturbances in the Caribbean. It has backed up the report of its investigating committee in calling on the Dominican Republic to prevent its officials from instigating, encouraging or tolerating subversive movements against other governments, and on Cuba and Guatemala to break up the so-called Caribbean Legion which has been plotting against the Dominican Republic. By themselves, these directions would not mean much; they are backed, however, by a five-nation watchdog commission created to insure maintenance of the peace. More important still, the council explicitly mentioned sanctions under the Rio defense treaty in the event the offending governments ignore their responsibilities.

Nothing less would have sufficed, and council members are to be congratulated on meeting the issue forthrightly. To be sure, there is room for more positive steps along other lines to bring stability to the Caribbean—measures to limit armaments, to halt the illegal arms traffic, and to change national conditions which provoke exile. These are corollary, however, to the main consideration, which is the halting of aggression. In speaking frankly, the OAS Council has set an excellent precedent for other hemisphere relations.

Shadow Of The Censor

A hearing of great importance to the radio industry and the public has recessed in California. It involves charges of bias and news-slanting against George A. Richards, the owner of KMPC in Los Angeles and two other powerful radio stations. Three former employes of Mr. Richards charge that he ordered them to distort and color the news so as to discredit some individuals and groups and to reflect credit upon others. Since the Federal Communications Commission has no powers of censorship, the issue boils down to whether or not the licensee is a fit person to operate radio facilities subject to regulation in the public interest.

Of course, no broadcaster is free to operate his station, using public facilities, solely as he may see fit. In the broad sense of the word he must serve the public interest or give way to someone else who can. But the public interest thus to be served necessarily has a very broad meaning. The FCC is not at liberty to put a broadcaster off the air because it may disagree with his viewpoint or because he may fall short of perfection in the management of his broadcasts. The history of broadcasting in this country shows relatively few abuses of the freedom that Congress has granted to the licensees in shaping their own programs. That record is not such as to warrant the disciplining of broadcasters by the back-door method of finding them unfit persons to operate a radio station, unless their activities fall hopelessly below the minimum standards of public service.

If the Silver Shirts, the Communist Party, the Ku Klux Klan, or a gang of outlaws were operating a broadcasting station to further their own interests, there would be no question about the necessity of withdrawing their license. But these are extreme cases. It would be a very different matter for the FCC to undertake to discipline a broadcaster because of the manner in which he "played" the news. If Mr. Richards should be put off the air for trying to slant the news against the persons and groups that are anathema to him, where would such a policy end? To be consistent the commission would then have to withdraw the licenses of stations slanting the news against other political figures and organizations. We do not believe that the commission has any standards that would be a safe guide in such a venture, and if it did the enforcement of such a policy would go seriously against the grain of our traditions.

Every decision as to what shall go on the air and how it shall be "played" is likely to be influenced by the broadcaster's or the newscaster's prejudices. The best radio stations and the best newspapers hold these prejudices in check, struggling for fair and unbiased presentation of the facts. But it is common knowledge that slanted newspapers flourish, presumably because the people wish to read them. Would it be feasible for the commission to put off the air a broadcaster catering to prejudices that were common with big metropolitan dailies in the same city? To be sure, the number of broadcasting channels is limited, but so are the opportunities for publication of a daily newspaper. We doubt that the FCC can apply stricter policies in the regulation of broadcasting than the press generally applies without taking upon itself an unmanageable problem of censorship. The public interest demands a wide range of freedom on the air as well as in the press. The danger of the FCC embarking upon a policy of censorship seems to us much greater than the occasional abuse of freedom by licensees whose prejudices color their judgment.

Communist Line

The spy hunt has now turned into a man hunt for those persons who have expressed views helpful (according to the neophyte McCarthy's yardstick) to the Soviet expansionists. This is a tall order. Who knows at the time what is helpful? A view was expressed to us the other day that as events turned out those who held out against an American declaration of war on Finland in 1944 were (unconsciously) "playing the Soviet game!" Why? Because the United States, by staying neutral against Russia's enemy, denied herself the advantage of participating in the peace agreement with Russia. If she had been present, she might have ameliorated the harshness of the peace terms. However, Senator McCarthy has reference only to the Far East, and the quest for views helpful to Soviet designs in that great area opens up just as fantastic and just as interesting possibilities.

Clearly the quest would begin by a determination of the basic policy of Russia in the Far East. Easy! The elimination of the power of Japan. The Moscow pattern came in full view of the world Christmas, 1936. Up till that time the Soviet Union and China had been playing a poker game with each other trying to divert the aggressive Japan to the other's territory. The game seemed endless till the Chinese Communists and the Manchurians suddenly brought the game to an end by kidnapping Chiang Kai-shek at the ancient Chinese capital of Sian, and holding Chiang till he had agreed to be activist against Japan. This made up the Japanese mind. The next year there was a trumped-up incident near Peking, and Japan launched a full-scale attack on Chiang's China. The Sian exploit, as we have said before, was the best day's work the Chinese Communists ever did for Russia. The Russians simply retired to the sidelines, and let Japan and China fight it out.

However, China was clearly too weak to absorb all the expansionist spirit of Japan. Another step had to be taken, and that was to drag in the United States, and to this task the Soviet now addresed all its effort and propaganda. The job was not very difficult, for Japan was treading all over America's legitimate interests in the Far East. Nevertheless China and the Soviet Union left no stone unturned to stir up anti-Japanism in America. The Soviet line at that time was "a united front against fascism," Japan being put in the same category as Nazi Germany. The climax came even before the American embargoes of mid-1941. Early in 1941 war became inevitable—so certain in Russia's mind that she negotiated a neutrality pact with Japan in April, 1941. She later double-crossed Japan, with Anglo-American connivance by getting into the Pacific war eight days before it ended. The embargoes, for which Americans had been hollering for a year or so, made war certain.

So the United States went to war, and removed the greatest check on Russian expansion in the Far East, viz, Japan. In other words, we won a great victory for Russia. At Yalta we compounded it. The point is that you could say that everybody who fomented war with Japan, such as propagandizing for embargoes on Japan in mid-1941, followed the Communist line. If this seems a reductio ad absurdum, it is the logic of the present foolishness. Are the millions of proembargoists to be castigated as following the Communist line? Nobody except the completely irrational would be so silly. To attribute motives to persons when their views happen on occasion to have corresponded to the Soviet line would be to sow seeds of suspicion and division the country over. And that's the real Communist line. When differences of opinion are regarded as treasonable, then the day of free speech is over, and government by discussion blighted. Yet, such is our topsy-turvy world, that Senator McCarthy gets a prize for Americanism for advocating this very thing.

Rules Of Fair Play

While Senator McCarthy is making a farce out of the investigative process, creeping progress is being made toward the establishment of a fair code of procedure for congressional investigators. The Labor-Management Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare, of which Senator Murray is chairman, has adopted a set of rules to govern all its future hearings. It is the third congressional group to take such action since our "Turning On The Light" series of editorials two years ago. The first was the Bender subcommittee of the House during the Eightieth Congress and the second the Senate Investigations Committee, then under Senator Ferguson's chairmanship.

The new rules of the Murray subcommittee, like those previously adopted by other groups, are admittedly a compromise. Sworn testimony may not be taken by staff members unless at least one member of the subcommittee is present. All hearings will be public, except that the full Committee on Labor and Public Welfare may authorize the subcommittee to hear public officials in executive session when the public interest warrants such a deviation from the normal course. At least two committeemen and a staff member must be present for any examination of witnesses behind closed doors. Recorded testimony must be made public when any part of such testimony has been released by the subcommittee or when it has been made the basis of a report by members of the subcommittee. Witnesses may obtain a transcript of their testimony at nominal fees.

Every witness will have the right to file a sworn statement for the record and to read a summary of it before the subcommittee. Other persons believing that their reputations have been adversely affected by testimony before the subcommittee may also file sworn statements for the record, the subcommittee reserving the right to decide whether such statements are relevant and to require conciseness. All witnesses may be accompanied by counsel. The subcommittee may not publish any report until it has been approved by a majority of a quorum present at a duly called meeting.

We do not suppose that these rules are an absolute guarantee against abuses even in the subcommittee to which they apply. But they are a long step in the right direction. The difficulty with this piecemeal adoption of rules is that the committees needing them most are left free to continue operating without rules or any sense of self-restraint. Another powerful argument for the adoption of a general code of fair procedure is to be found in the decision of the Supreme Court yesterday not to review the conviction of John Howard Lawson and Dalton Trumbo for contempt of Congress. That ruling confirms the power of Congress to compel a witness to testify whether or not he is a member of the Communist Party. We think the ruling is right. But it throws upon Congress a tremendous responsibility to prevent the abuse of its sweeping investigative powers by setting up rules of fair conduct by which all its committees would have to abide.

Runaway Korea

Secretary Acheson's blunt warning that Korea must clean up its financial morass may be salutary. The tough talk from the State Department (and ECA) would have been more honest, however, if it had preceded instead of followed the congressional vote for another 60 million dollars in economic aid to Korea. From the official statements at that time, one would have thought that Korea was well on the way to stability. ECA Administrator Hoffman dwelt glowingly, for example, on the 50 percent increase in Korean production, and the ECA statement began: "The year-old Republic of Korea offers impressive proof that the Marshall Plan is indeed a potent weapon for peace."

This statement was made early in February. Yet on March 23 Mr. Hoffman wrote the Korean Premier that unless inflation is immediately controlled "it is my real fear that the point will be reached in the not too distant future where our afd would make no further net contribution to the welfare of the people of Korea." Surely, if conditions were bad enough to warrant this sharp rebuke, there were evidences of them at the time the earlier rosy statement was put out. Such apparent lack of candor is undoubtedly one reason why Mr. Hoffman's assurances on western Germany are being questioned. Soft-soaping cuts two ways: It misleads Congress, and it gives the government of the country in question a false idea of what the United States expects of it.

Late as the Acheson note is, it is unequivocal. It states:

> Government expenditures have been vastly expanded by bank overdrafts without reference to limits set by an approved budget. Tax collections have not been increased, aid goods have been underpriced, and governmental subsidies have been expanded. The dangerous practice of voluntary contributions has been used as an inefficient substitute for a sound taxation system. These uneconomic practices have in turn served to expand the currency in circulation, unbalance the Korean national budget, and cause a sharp rise in wholesale and retail prices, thereby strengthening the growing forces of inflation.

Korean leaders are, to be sure, largely untrained in administration, and they have been preoccupied with the Communist threat to their security. Nonetheless, the American moral commitment respecting Korean independence implies no responsibility for underwriting mismanagement or such high-handed tactics as the postponement of elections. Aside from considerations of prestige, on a practical basis Korea is a strategic liability that would surely be lost in a full-scale war.

Congress, in passing the last Korean aid measure, expressly stated that no further commitment is involved. Koreans ought to understand further that the wisdom of even current aid is being seriously weighed. Inflation has made ECA counterpart funds virtually useless. Desperately needed are an expansion of industry and a revival of foreign trade. If Koreans cannot demonstrate that they are applying the first principle of recovery and, indeed, the condition of Marshall aid—self-help—then the situation is indeed hopeless.

FOR TWO MOUNTAIN PIGEONS FLYING HOME

Hurry, who can! to the sparse-leaved pinyon
Under the rim of the rock-held canyon.

Abortion Deaths

During the week of March 20, the official crime statistics for the District of Columbia for 1949 were given publicity in the newspapers and a trial for murder in the tragic death of a young mother through abortion was begun in the court. The questioning at the trial repeatedly brings out the fact that abortion is wrong and illegal and is a crime against society.

As a social case worker in a large Middle Western city during the depression, I had to take care of the family of a young mother who died of a self-inflicted abortion, leaving three small children and her unemployed husband. The difficulties confronting the prospective mothers which cause them to seek abortion run along very similar patterns. Unemployment or inadequate earnings, crowded and poor housing, fear of the future, ignorance and lack of humane guidance at the right time. The fathers no less than the mothers suffer from ignorance and lack of guidance. A county doctor, in answer to my questions, at that time, on how many abortions took place in the county each year, and how many resulted in death, said that there were no reliable statistics. He estimated a minimum number of 6000 abortions a year in the city of 500,000 population.

Dr. Frederick J. Taussig, author of the White House Conference Report on Child Health and Protection estimated that in 1939 the annual figure for abortions for the United States is 682,000. Another authority gives one million as a possibility. As to the number of deaths, Dr. Taussig estimated 8000, with a maximum of 10,000, and that the number of deaths from recorded abortions for the entire country is not less than a rate of 1.2 for every 100 abortions. He feels that the number of concealed abortion deaths at least equals the number of recorded ones.

The Mid-Century White House Youth Conference, to convene next December, is on the general subject of mental health. Abortion conditions indicate how necessary guidance, knowledge and freedom from fear is in the family life of mothers and fathers. The inclusion of such agencies as the Planned Parenthood Federation of America in the conference shows wisdom in facing this problem as the serious one it is.

Air National Guard

I take great exception to Marquis Childs' article of April 1, on the Air National Guard.

Mr. Childs states that high ranking officers of the Air Force and other services believe funds expended for the Air Guard are being wasted. Has Mr. Childs read the National Defense Act? If the Air Guard were unsatisfactory, it could be so rated and units could be disbanded. But that has not been the case, and headquarters USAF considers the majority of Air Guard units as satisfactory.

Mr. Childs' statement concerning the Governors and Air Guard airplanes is misleading, since the Colorado Conference incident was not carefully ignored as he stated. Most Governors only use those airplanes when the law and regulations which apply have been met.

Mr. Childs is also wrong concerning Air Force standards and training directives. The Air Guard is trained in accordance with directives published by USAF and all flying regulations, with only rare exceptions, have been made applicable to the Guard. Air Guard pilots meet the same minimum flying requirements as Regular USAF pilots; they may be stripped of their wings (and by USAF, too) for serious violations of regulations; they fly the same airplanes; wear the same type equipment; shoot the same guns; and they can also get their necks broken. The Air Guardsmen do all this in their own free time, after they've worked 40 hours a week, or more, earning their bread and butter. Yes, we get paid for being Guardsmen, but what this Nation gets in return is multiplied many times.

I challenge any other method which may be devised to get the same protection which is provided by the Air Guard for the same cost. For only a fraction of 1 percent of the Federal budget, this country is furnished 27 Groups of the Air National Guard, which is more than 50 percent the size of the Regular USAF and represents approximately two thirds of the fighter defense of the continental United States.

Of all the waste in the Government, for Mr. Childs to devote his efforts and criticism at the Air Guard is highly ridiculous, and I think that his mind can be changed. To prove that he is wrong, I will personally escort him, with his consent, on an inspection of the District of Columbia Air Guard, or any Air Guard unit.

GI School Supervision

To set the record straight may I correct Mr. Fred Miller's March 26 letter to the editor saying "there is no supervision by the Government as to the qualifications of the teachers or instructors teaching in the GI private vocational schools." Under public law 346, Congress provided that all educational institutions providing training for GIs be under the strict supervison of the State Boards of Educaion. Obviously in some States the supervision is better than thers.

However, it may interest Mr. Miller to know that all GI trade schools in the District operate under standards and criteria developed by the United States Office of Education and the National Education Association and enforced by the D. C. Board of Education. Before a school is approved, a committee composed of the highest qualified teachers checks every phase of the schools plans, including personnel, curriculum, sanitation facilities, etc. The supervision does not stop with approval, for once a month each school is visited by an investigator and a report is made to the Board of Education.

"Murler Most Foul"

Editorials like yours of April 8 would be more convincing in their recommendations to curb crime if the Washington newspapers would cut down on the quantity of liquor advertising they carry. Fire waters was never considered good for Indians and is equally as bad for more civilized Americans. Drunkenness is not only responsible for assaults with dangerous weapons but with automobiles, too.

The Donor Of The Cherry Trees

Yukio Ozaki, the mayor of Tokyo who sent to Washington the cherry trees whose blossoms grace the Tidal Basin, this year recalled the gift of nearly 40 years ago. He sent, by the Japanese Diet group which visited Washington in February, a tanka—the Japanese 31-syllable poem—which was placed in the Library of Congress by the leader of the group. The verses in English quatrain form read:

The cherry trees I sent abroad
With hope of spreading radiance there,
Have blossomed, adding to the spring
Their beauty and perfume so rare.
—Yukio Old Man of 92 years.

As the trees once more are the cynosure of thousands of eyes, it may be interesting to recall something of the man behind the gift. Ozaki-San was a member of the Japanese Diet for 60 years and was mayor of Tokyo in the period just before the war of 1914-18. He was a consistent liberal of the Constitutional Party and a sturdy fighter for international good will and social progress at home.

He was in the United States for several months in 1931, when the Japanese military started their first "China incident." In a few public addresses he emphasized the importance of friendly relations between Japan and the United States, and won some criticism of them at home. In October or November, 1931 he spent some time in Boston, and made my office a port of call.

At the time the newspapers were full of the reports from Manchuria of steady Japanese seizures of towns and the cunning excuses for this sort of "protection." By every mail from Geneva I was receiving dozens of the telegrams which the Japanese government was sending to the Council of the League of Nations to explain the "necessity" of their action and from the Chinese government showing that the attacks were naked aggression. It was these files which brought Ozaki-San to the office and together we spent much time going over them and analyzing the situation.

"Our militarists are on the march," Ozaki concluded, "and they will not stop until you stop them."

Ozaki left the United States to spend a year or so in London, where he expressed himself in positive terms of opposition to the Japanese military clique. At home the Black Dragon Society frothed at the mouth from his strictures and decided that he ought to die. He took the threat in stride. On leaving England in January, 1933, he gave out a tanka translated as follows:

Praise be for the men who may attempt my life,
If their motive is to die for their country.
One of the instructions I received from my mother
Was that one should die with smile.

In a published statement he made to the London press he said: "For a public man, the best form of death is to fall at the hand of an assassin. I would like a death which may prove a lesson to posterity. If anybody feels the necessity of assassinating me, I hope he will do it when I am making a vigorous speech on national policy in the Diet."

He was molested but not hurt on his return home. And Ozaki-San still lives to see his judgment of 1931 vindicated, and to know that his cherry trees still blossom.

Earlier Smear By McCarthy

By Marquis Childs

Malmedy Massacre

THROUGHOUT Germany today, and particularly in underground SS and reviving Nazi channels, Germans are circulating savagely anti-American propaganda. This propaganda represents Americans as brutal, gangster-like oppressors. Some of the Germans circulating the line are working toward an understanding with Soviet Russia that will make it possible to turn against the West and, above all, the hated United States once more.

Senator Joseph McCarthy gave this propaganda an important assist. That was in the Malmedy massacre case, in which McCarthy repeatedly denounced and defamed colleagues in the Senate who had thoroughly investigated the charges of American brutality against German prisoners and found them to be completely unfounded.

Since Prof. Owen Lattimore so thoroughly demolished the false accusations brought by McCarthy in his latest outbreak, most Republicans in the Senate would prefer to forget the whole miserable business. But, as Lattimore pointed out, there is an issue here of official responsibility and that issue is directly related to the standing of the United States Senate in the country.

The McCarthy performance in the Malmedy case points up this issue of responsibility. It parallels in the most striking way the McCarthy outbreak in the State Department.

Eighteen months after they were convicted of massacring about 350 defenseless American prisoners of war at the Battle of the Bulge, former German SS Panzer officers and men made a series of affidavits. These affidavits charged American pretrial investigators with brutality and unspeakable torture.

AFTER only the most cursory inquiry, certain Americans and certain organizations took these charges as truth. One was the National Council for the Prevention of War headed by Frederick J. Libby, ardent Republican and pacifist.

An Armed Services Subcommittee was appointed, headed by former Senator Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, a Republican, with Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Lester Hunt of Wyoming, Democrats. With the aid of Col. Joseph Chambers, a staff member of the Armed Services Committee and a Marine Corps officer with a lengthy combat record, the committee went to Germany and made a careful investigation.

The committee unanimously found the charges to be untrue. The official report said their wide dissemination by American citizens had done the "country a great disservice."

McCarthy meanwhile launched a savage attack on Baldwin. He repeatedly impugned Baldwin's honor and integrity, implying that Baldwin was motivated by the fact that a former law partner in Connecticut had had a part in the pretrial investigation of the German prisoners. McCarthy carried this to such lengths that Senator Charles Tobey of New Hampshire finally compelled McCarthy to surrender the floor by pointing out to the presiding officer that the Wisconsin Senator was violating the rule against personal calumny of another Senator.

McCARTHY at about this time had in his office as his chief assistant Thomas W. Korb of Milwaukee. Korb is a lawyer for Walter Harnischfeger, wealthy Milwaukee manufacturer who is reported to be one of McCarthy's chief financial backers. Korb says he had little to do with the German charges.

Harnischfeger has frequently expressed the view that American occupation authorities in Germany have been too harsh. After Korb was installed in McCarthy's office, a Wisconsin friend said jokingly:

"Well, now you've become inside man at the skunk works."

Just as the charges against Lattimore appear to have come from the files of the Nationalist China lobby, so in this instance McCarthy seems to have taken the German prisoners' accounts and without verification put them out as truth.

At the time the attacks began, Baldwin had received an offer of a judgeship on Connecticut's Supreme Court. His friends believe that if he had not already decided, the McCarthy attack convinced him that he should leave the Senate. Baldwin, a fair-minded man, was appalled at the McCarthy technique of repeating in committee or on the Senate floor a charge previously repudiated, merely altering the form a little. In some instances McCarthy had previously agreed that the original charge was false.

The Baldwin committee concluded that the activities of the National Council for the Prevention of War "have been most damaging to the national interests of our country and to the cause of peace. The subcommittee feels strongly that the proper investigations should be made to determine the real motivation in back of the activities of this organization and the influence it has had on many individuals within the United States who have accepted as fact the allegations publicized by it." No such investigation has ever been held, nor has McCarthy's motivation in discrediting the Baldwin committee ever been made clear.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Next Great Decision

MUCH OF what went on at the military conference at The Hague, which was held on the first anniversary of the Atlantic Pact, is, of course, secret. But there have been reports inspired without doubt by "experts",—in plain words military commanders and defense officials—who are in the know. These reports raise broad issues and questions of policy.

Lippmann

AMONG the most important of the reports are that (1) the time needed to create a western European army of modest dimensions is perhaps four to five years; that (2) the cost is of an order which will require an American contribution of about the size of the annual installments of the Marshall Plan; that (3) the question of German military forces will have to be faced; that (4) the Bonn government is now determined to exert pressure on the Western powers about the security of Germany; that (5) our European allies are asking whether American forces can be kept in Europe after—if and when—the occupation of Germany ends.

All these different questions rest on one common assumption — that while war is not likely in the near future, the situation is developing towards a climax—a few years hence—when there will be a showdown: a war, a settlement imposed by the stronger coalition, a settlement negotiated by the two coalitions if the balance of power is such that neither has achieved decisive military superiority. This, estimate which can be deduced from The Hague meeting, appears to agree with the judgment of Mr. Churchill in his important speech of March 28. This speech unfortunately was not well reported in this country,—perhaps because it was obscured by the McCarthy excitement.

NOW AMONG all these questions the most critical are those of the German forces and of German security. When we discuss these questions we must, however, have no doubt in our minds about our military policy —namely our determination to have a striking force in being which is a recognizable deterrent against overt military aggression. That almost certainly means an increase in the rate of airplane production—certainly to the Eisenhower level now and perhaps beyond it later on.

The question of German forces is of supreme and critical importance because the future of Germany is the highest stake in the cold war and because the power of Germany—for good or evil—is the greatest factor which has not yet entered into, but will now increasingly enter into, the world balance of power.

THE PROBLEM of west German forces is posed by the existence of German forces in the Soviet zone of Germany. Reports differ about the strength of the east German forces but there is little doubt that there is no comparable force in western Germany. It is obvious, therefore, that the unification of Germany and the end of the occupation cannot take place until there is a western force sufficient to balance the eastern and to make sure that the all-German government will have a loyal all-German force to uphold its authority.

It is necessary, therefore, to contemplate the approval of a west German force on a scale sufficient to balance the east German force. This should not be confused with the notion that a German army can be recruited and incorporated in the Atlantic system. There is no ground for thinking that the Germans would agree to that, or that the Russians would permit it if the Germans actually began to rearm for international war.

The German forces we have to think about are not international but domestic forces—essentially police, constabulary, and militia of a size and with arms designed not for war against the Red army but to neutralize the east German forces. Their purpose would be to prepare western Germany for the negotiations, which must take place some time in the fairly near future, for the reunion of Germany and its evacuation.

AN ALLIED decision to do this will raise grave questions. One is how the danger of a German civil war is to be averted. This, I believe, is the first and most critical question which we shall have to discuss with the Russians. They may be willing to discuss it with us when they see that a west German force, at least as big as the east German force, has been authorized and is forming. For that will mark a change in the balance of power within Germany which the Russians will not be able to ignore.

The next question—after a basis has been found by the Germans for their own reunification—will be that of the withdrawal of the occupying armies. It is plain that we and our Atlantic allies would not regard a withdrawal of the Red army to the Polish frontier as a withdrawal. Only a withdrawal to the Russian frontier would be a withdrawal. Where, then, would the American forces withdraw to?

THIS QUESTION, which has often been asked, can only be answered when we make it specific and remember that we are talking about our small ground forces now in Germany. Apart from their function in the control of Germany, their importance lies in the fact that they are in the front line, and that western Europe cannot be invaded without an automatic participation of the United States. Nobody thinks the American Army in Germany can stop the Red army. But we hope and believe that the Russians will not move, knowing that the American token army in Germany has behind it the whole military power of the United States.

If this American Army were withdrawn from Germany, would there be any place in western Europe where some token force could be stationed which could serve the same purpose—that of an automatic guarantee of American intervention? That is a question on which the French government will have eventually to make a proposal. It is not inconceivable that the answer can be found in an agreement to maintain a small American guard—the size of it would not much matter—in the Saar. Such an arrangement would provide the automatic guarantee which is the great deterrent to war.

THE WITHDRAWAL of the armies of occupation—assuming as this argument does that there will not be a military vacuum inside Germany—would simplify radically the defense of Europe and reduce radically the danger of war. No one, I think, can have any serious doubt that if a great war is to be prevented and an imposed settlement avoided, the first and the decisive condition is that the two military coalitions —now in direct contact within Germany—should cease to be in direct contact. If that can be brought about, there would lie between them a broad area comprising Germany and eastern Europe which neither could reoccupy except at the risk of war, which neither could reoccupy in the event of war without running into fearful trouble.

Can it be brought about? Not, I think, by negotiation today. For the situation is frozen. But the reemergence of the national power of Germany, the German push towards German unity, will, I believe, unfreeze the situation.

Truman Back From Key West; Meets Barkley, Lucas Today

President Truman returned to Washington yesterday after a month-long Florida vacation and promptly invited Democratic leaders in Congress to confer with him today.

A White House aide said Vice President Barkley and Senate Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.) will call on Mr. Truman to discuss affairs of major importance.

Stepping from his plane at National Airport, Mr. Truman shook hands with well-wishers and told them he was glad to be back. Then, accompanied by his daughter Margaret, he rode to the temporary presidential mansion, Blair House, in his new limousine with gold-plated fixtures.

Less than an hour later, Mr. Truman was at his desk in the White House.

Before the take-off from Boca Chica Airport, near his vacation headquarters at Key West, Mr. Truman had told newsmen he "never felt better." He begins his sixth year in the White House on Wednesday.

Sun-bronzed and in jovial spirits, Mr. Truman prepared for a busy schedule, including urgent congressional problems connected with his "Fair Deal" program and later a coast-to-coast stumping tour in behalf of Democratic candidates for Congress.

As one of his first acts since returning to the Nation's Capital, he is expected to announce the appointment of a new chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission within a few days.

A White House aide said the President already has someone in mind for the AEC post, left vacant by the resignation of David E. Lilienthal, and hopes to persuade him to accept it.

On Wednesday night, the President and Mrs. Truman will play host at a formal dinner welcoming President Gonzales of Chile to this country.

Name of 'Mystery Witness' Is Submitted by McCarthy

Morgan, chief counsel of the special Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee looking into charges of Communist infiltration.

Morgan said he would make the name public today, after the subcommittee acted to subpena the man, possibly for a public hearing here on Tuesday.

Last night, Deputy Undersecretary John E. Peurifoy flung the latest punch in the State Department-McCarthy boxing match. It was in the form of a letter to the Senator, replying to a telegram McCarthy sent on Sunday to Secretary of State Acheson.

In that telegram McCarthy said he was "shocked" by an earlier statement of Peurifoy, in which the latter had observed sarcastically that McCarthy, having roared his charges like a lion, was "bleating like a lamb" when he spoke on Saturday without congressional immunity from lawsuit.

McCarthy said he was shocked to find the State Department springing to Lattimore's defense.

Peurifoy's reply last night simply pointed out that his earlier statement had not referred to Lattimore at all, nor even mentioned him, for the reason that Lattimore "is not connected with the State Department."

The statement, Peurifoy went on, referred to Ambassador Jessup and consular officer Service, because they are connected with the department.

Meanwhile, Senator Lodge (R., Mass.) said yesterday he had reached "no final conclusions" about any phase of the Lattimore investigation.

Lodge is one of five Senators on the subcommittee. He said in the Senate last Monday that "all we can learn so far shows clearly that none of the current charges have been proven."

Lodge told reporters yesterday that his ultimate decision will wait "until I have questioned a number of witnesses in executive (secret) session." Then, he added:

"When I do reach conclusions, I shall announce them myself."

"No one," he said, "is authorized to speak for me."

This was an obvious reference to Senator Tydings (D., Md.), chairman of the subcommittee. Tydings had told Lattimore after hearing his formal denial before the group last Thursday that an FBI summary of his FBI loyalty file "puts you completely, up to this moment at least, in the clear."

Four of the five committeemen had heard the file read and Tydings said his opinion was shared by all four, which included Lodge. The chairman said he spoke out at this stage of the investigation only because of what Lodge had said in the Senate about the McCarthy charges.

The fifth committeeman, Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), who was out of town when his colleagues checked on the FBI record, heard it read separately and announced that he completely disagreed with Tydings' conclusion. He said he himself had reached no conclusion for or against Lattimore.

Lattimore Denounced By Communist Radio

Hongkong, April 10. (U.P.).—The Communist radio today attacked Owen Lattimore and John Foster Dulles as "reactionaries" who are trying to push United States aggressive designs in the Far East.

The broadcast criticized Lattimore as a "so-called Far Eastern expert" whose State Department memorandum on United States policy in the Far East proves the United States is "planning to dominate Asia."

Despite charges by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wisc.) that Lattimore follows the Communist line, the memorandum definitely reveals that he is of "imperialist countenance," the Peking radio said.

Peking termed Dulles the "No. 1 warmonger in the United States" and said he was a typical representative of United States monopoly capitalism although repudiated by the American people during the last election.

Patterson Asks Full Support of Acheson

New York, April 10 (U.P.).—Former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson threw his full support behind Secretary of State Dean Acheson tonight for his loyalty and integrity and denounced charges against the State Department made "recklessly from the immunity of the floor of the Senate."

Without mentioning the name of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), Patterson made it clear he does not believe McCarthy's charges that the State Department is riddled with Communists.

"Our foreign relations, we may be certain, could not be in hands more capable or more trustworthy than those of Secretary Acheson," he said in a speech before the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants.

"In the performance of its task in these difficult times the State Department, I submit, is entitled to have the full confidence of the American people," he continued.

Patterson said that without full confidence of the American people the State Department is hampered in its efforts to fight a successful cold war.

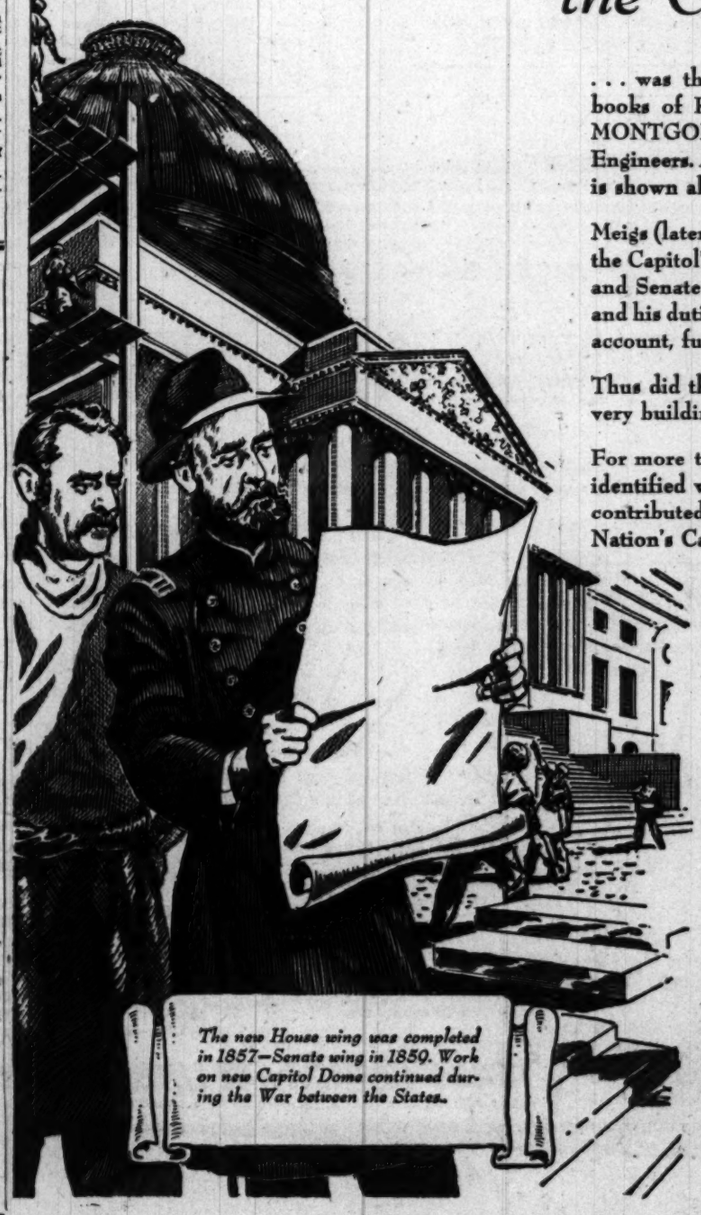
"Extension of the Capitol account"

. . . was the title of a relationship opened on the books of Riggs & Company in 1853 by Captain MONTGOMERY C. MEIGS, U.S. Army, Corps of Engineers. A check to his order dated March 1, 1853, is shown above.

Meigs (later Quartermaster General) was in charge of the Capitol's enlargement . . . building the new House and Senate wings, adding the present great Dome . . . and his duties included disbursing, through the above account, funds appropriated for the work.

Thus did this institution play a financial role in the very building of the Capitol structure itself.

For more than a century the name RIGGS has been identified with projects, great and small, which have contributed to the beauty and development of the Nation's Capital.



The new House wing was completed in 1857—Senate wing in 1850. Work on new Capitol Dome continued during the War between the States.

Flip of Coin at Anzio Altered Hyde's Fate, But He Wins High Ranking as Analyst

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

You can knock yourself out on the "ifs" in this world. James Hyde, if he were the kind, has a shattering "if only" to haunt him. The mere fall of a coin.

As commander of a battery of self-propelled 105's, Hyde put the first artillery onto the beach at Anzio. He was at Anzio 101 consecutive days, which for anyone who was there is description enough and for anyone who was not is pointless to describe.

Finally, it was so one officer could go back for a brief rest at Sorrento, and no prettier place to go. Hyde and another having been at Anzio longest they matched for it. Hyde lost.

Exploding Grenade

Three days later a grenade blew up in his face. As it happened, it was an American grenade which exploded prematurely in the hands of his lieutenant standing by him. But if a grenade explodes in your face, it makes little difference about its nationality.

Today James F. C. Hyde, jr., who went to West Point, sits at a desk in the Bureau of the Budget, a blind man, but running through his mind no "ifs" about head having come tails.

Much too busy a man to think about "ifs."

His superiors say Hyde, who is but 31, is doing a brilliant job as a legislative analyst, and this after only six months with the bureau, the kind of job that is making a number of people go out of their way to comment about it.

When they say this they do not say or mean: "Hyde is doing a brilliant job for a blind man."

They say and they mean: "Hyde is doing a brilliant job, a very outstanding piece of work." Period please.

His job is clearing and coordinating reports from the executive branch to Congress on pending and proposed legislation. Also of making recommendations to the White House on various bills.

It is important work indeed. One bill may involve Hyde's dealing with five different Government agencies. Above all, the work calls for keen, strictly on-the-ball analysis of reports that are frequently both voluminous and intricate.

Owns Rare Memory

The story of how Hyde does this is an interesting one, and a bright and startling proof that "handicapped" is one of the most misused words in the English language.

His secretary, petite, likable Ida Mates, reads the reports to him. The simple parts Hyde remembers. His memory, believe you, is a rare one.

At particularly difficult sections he switches on the compact "Sound Scriber" on his desk so he can play them back for further digestion.

Jim Hyde is a memorable person.

His conversation ranges intelligently and at instant ease over wide fields of subjects from Government to books to sports. He reads voluminously, attends concerts frequently. Above all, his portion of that disappearing virtue, a sense of humor, is immense.

Six feet and 175 pounds, boyish, very broad-shouldered, he looks like a blocking back. Indeed he works out vigorously twice a week at the University Club, swimming and belting the bag.

His sharp mind makes his talk about being blind fascinating, and quite often amusing.

It has happened he has been called into Government conferences where the other party didn't know he was blind and didn't find out at once, since Jim can make his way around rooms.

Once it went on clear to the point where one executive handed him a letter. "I'd like for you to read this."

Jim was amused. "I don't want to embarrass you—but I can't read."

"Travel Vision" Category

In degree of blindness, he said, the blind can be classified informally thus: Total blindness, light perception, travel vision, ability to recognize people, ability to read.

Himself, he is in the "travel vision" category. This means that the light, being right, he is able to distinguish contrasts—between the grass and the edge of the sidewalk, for example, to tell doors if they're painted differently from the wall, to "see" large objects such as approaching automobiles.

He can cover ground right well by himself and it is amusing to hear him tell:

"I do a lot of traveling. And in railroad stations especially you virtually have to shake people off. And heaven help you if you make one mistake after you've declined their help, if you stumble over a suitcase. They come running over and . . ."

About getting around a town: "Knowing a town is the best thing. I know this area around the State and War Building (where he works) very well. I can get up to 17th and K to catch a bus very simply.

"There are little tricks. When you get off a train you stand a moment and see which way the crowd is flowing.

"In Philadelphia the street lights are along the curbs and I make an offset on those and go along."

Jim has an operation coming up this summer which he hopes will promote him into the "ability to recognize people" class. There's no way of telling about this now, though.

Comes of Army Family

James F. C. Hyde, jr., was of an Army family and went to West Point, where from the class of 1942 it was into the war.

After the grenade blew up in his face at Anzio, Captain Hyde spent two and one half years in a hospital. In addition to taking his sight away, the grenade double-fractured his right leg and many skin grafts were required. He considers himself a very lucky man today to have two legs.

In six years he has undergone 13 operations, half or so on his eyes.

After graduating from Valley Forge Hospital in Pennsylvania, Jim Hyde looked around for a profession a blind man might enter and have a rather even go. He picked law.

Accelerated Course

He went through the University of Pennsylvania's law school's accelerated course in two and one-half years, a man in a hurry anxious to make for the lost time of Valley Forge. He was good enough to be picked for the staff of the university's Law Review. Last year he was admitted to the District Bar here.

A very busy man indeed today, no time for lingering "ifs." An absorbing Government job plus self-assignments on the side. Such as editing a pamphlet "Law As a Profession for the Blind" to show other blind what it offers.

He hopes to make a career of Government.

The Government will be very lucky to keep a man like James Hyde, who traveled the long road from Anzio, where 104 days were an eternity and where coins fell two ways.

Two Dog Shows Scheduled for Fort Myer

It may be a long way until August, but on April 21 and 22 it will be dog days in Greater Washington and every outstanding dog will have his day.

The Potomac Boxer Club of Washington and the Capital City Cocker Club will hold their fourth annual specialty show at the Fort Myer post gymnasium on April 21 for the benefit of the Army Relief Society.

The following day the Old Dominion Kennel Club of Northern Virginia will run its sixteenth annual dog show at the municipal ball park along Route 1 in Alexandria. The show is sponsored by the Alexandria Business Club for the benefit of Children's Hospital in Washington and Alexandria Hospital.

Entries will close Monday at noon for both shows.

The Fort Myer program will be open from 4 to 11 p. m. and judging will begin at 5, with the canines contending for a series of cash prizes running from $5 to $50.

A special feature will be a children's handling class, with boxers and cockers shown in the same ring by youngsters aged 10 to 16. Any boxer or cocker over 6 months old may be entered and shown by owner or handler.

The Alexandria show expects about 1000 animals contending for cash prizes ranging from $2 to $10 and silver awards.

Good Manners Bad Blow To Toothpick Industry

Lorvao, Portugal, April 10 (AP).—Good manners in Latin America are threatening to throw about 9000 Portuguese workers out of a job.

The manufacture of toothpicks has been a flourishing industry in Penacova, Lorvao and Coimbra, with Argentina and Brazil the chief clients.

But now they apparently don't pick their teeth over there any more, because recent trade treaties make no provision for the purchase of toothpicks.

Honolulu City Board Member Once Was Red

Honolulu, April 10 (U.P.).—Richard M. Kageyama, Nisei member of the Honolulu city-county board of supervisors, admitted at the first session of the congressional Un-American Activities Committee hearings today that he was formerly a member of the Communist Party.

Kageyama, a surprise witness, said he was led into the party by John E. Reinicke, high school teacher on the Island of Hawaii in the 1930s. Reinicke later taught in Honolulu, but he and his wife, Aiko, also a teacher, lost their jobs two years ago for their asserted affiliation with the Red party.

Kageyama said he quit the party after nine months in 1946 because "I felt the Communist Party was not meant for people who live in a democratic nation . . . They had proved they were not for the common people."

His admission surprised Honolulu Democratic circles and Territorial Central Committee Chairman Lau Ah Chew immediately called for a committee meeting to throw Kageyama out of the party.

The witness, a 34-year-old real estate man and war veteran, also was expected to lose his seat as delegate to the state constitutional convention. Along with 62 other delegates, he had signed an oath declaring he had not belonged to any subversive organization during the past five years.

Senators Name Movie Colony Morals Prober

By The Associated Press

The Senate Commerce Committee hired an investigator yesterday to make an on-the-spot check on morals in the Hollywood movie colony.

Chairman Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) announced that Stephen S. Jackson, formerly in charge of the production code office of the industry in Hollywood, had joined the committee staff "as a technical consultant in connection with problems arising from consideration of legislation involving the motion picture industry."

Jackson will leave for Hollywood next week to get information for committee hearings scheduled to begin May 15, Johnson said.

The hearings will be on Johnson's proposal to license actors and the interstate shipment of films in an effort to combat what the Colorado Senator has called "exploitation" by the movies of the bad morals of some of the stars.

Trade Conference Of U. S. Officials Called in Orient

By the United Press

The State Department yesterday announced plans for a major Far Eastern trade conference this month which is expected to tackle the problem of keeping Communists from capturing the Orient's trade and raw materials.

The conference, to be held in Tokyo April 17 through 22, will be strictly an American affair. State and Commerce Department experts from Washington will join United States Far Eastern economic envoys from the Philippines to India.

William J. Sebald, acting United States political adviser to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, will preside.

The State Department said the conference is similar to periodic meetings of American officials all over the world, and will be devoted to "economic problems of the entire area."

But informed United States officials said the conference will be far more important than the State Department announcement indicated.

Sen. Smith Has Operation

Trenton, N. J., April 10 (U.P.).—Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) was reported "progressing satisfactorily" today after an emergency appendectomy. Attendants at Mercer Hospital said the 70-year-old Senator would be discharged in about a week.

White House Work Ahead Of Schedule

Reconstruction of the White House is progressing "faster than expected," White House Architect Lorenzo Winslow said last night, and completion is hoped for by Christmas, 1951.

Winslow spoke before the Alexandria Association at Gadsby's Tavern.

He said one major reason for the weakened condition of the presidential mansion is that each occupant has installed "his own favorite devices" without technical advice. As a result, he said, supporting walls have been cut through to make way for pipes, air ducts, ventilators and wiring.

Winslow said he was "attempting to foresee the alternations and improvements which might be needed" in the present remodeling.

President Truman was not the first President to express concern over the deterioration of the White House, Winslow told an audience of 100. Its first occupant, James Madison, complained of a leaking roof, although the cornerstone had been laid only seven years before.

Symington, Pace Win Confirmation; No Adverse Votes

The Senate yesterday confirmed W. Stuart Symington, now Secretary of the Air Force, as chairman of the National Security Resources Board.

Frank Pace, jr., present budget director, also was approved as Secretary of the Army.

There was no opposition to the nominations, which earlier had been reported favorably to the Senate by the Armed Services Committee.

Truman Sends Senate Telegraph Convention

President Truman yesterday asked the Senate to ratify—with several reservations—the international telegraph regulations signed at Paris last year by 57 nations.

The regulations provide for unified rates effective July 1 at 75 percent of those in effect on February 1 this year. They eliminate the former reduced-rate deferred class of messages.

Rep. Burton Seeking Reelection to Congress

Roanoke, Va., April 10 (AP).—Representative Clarence G. Burton of Lynchburg said here today he will seek another term in Congress.

The Sixth District Congressman limited himself to this bare statement on the August Democratic primary.

But other than saying he will seek reelection he kept quiet on the primary in which the current political question is: Will he have opposition?

The anti-Byrd faction of the State Democratic Party has indicated several times there will be a candidate to oppose the Lynchburg manufacturer. But so far no candidate has announced.

Benny Meyers Loses 11th Freedom Bid

Former Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers yesterday lost his 11th bid for freedom from jail.

The United States Court of Appeals ruled against the former Air Force purchasing officer on both motions under which he sought his release.

Meyers was sentenced to serve from 20 months to five years in prison for persuading a witness to lie before the Senate War Investigating Committee in October, 1947. He has been denied parole.

Meyers was convicted of setting up Bleriot LaMarre as dummy president of the Aviation Electric Co., of Dayton, Ohio, and getting LaMarre to lie about this.

In the first motion, Meyers sought to vacate his conviction on the grounds that a quorum of the Senate group was not present when the perjury ocurred. The court ruled a quorum was present.

In his second motion, Meyers sought his release from the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va., on a writ of habeas corpus against Donald Clemmer, director of the District Department of Corrections.

Both motions were denied unanimously yesterday, Judge James N. Proctor writing the opinion and Judge Wilbur K. Miller and E. Barrett Prettyman concurring. Judge Prettyman dissented from Judges Miller and Proctor in November, 1948, when the same court upheld Meyers' conviction.

Previously Meyers has appealed twice to the District Court, twice to the Court of Appeals, twice to the Supreme Court, twice to the Federal Court of Alexandria, Va., once to the Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit and once to the Parole Board.

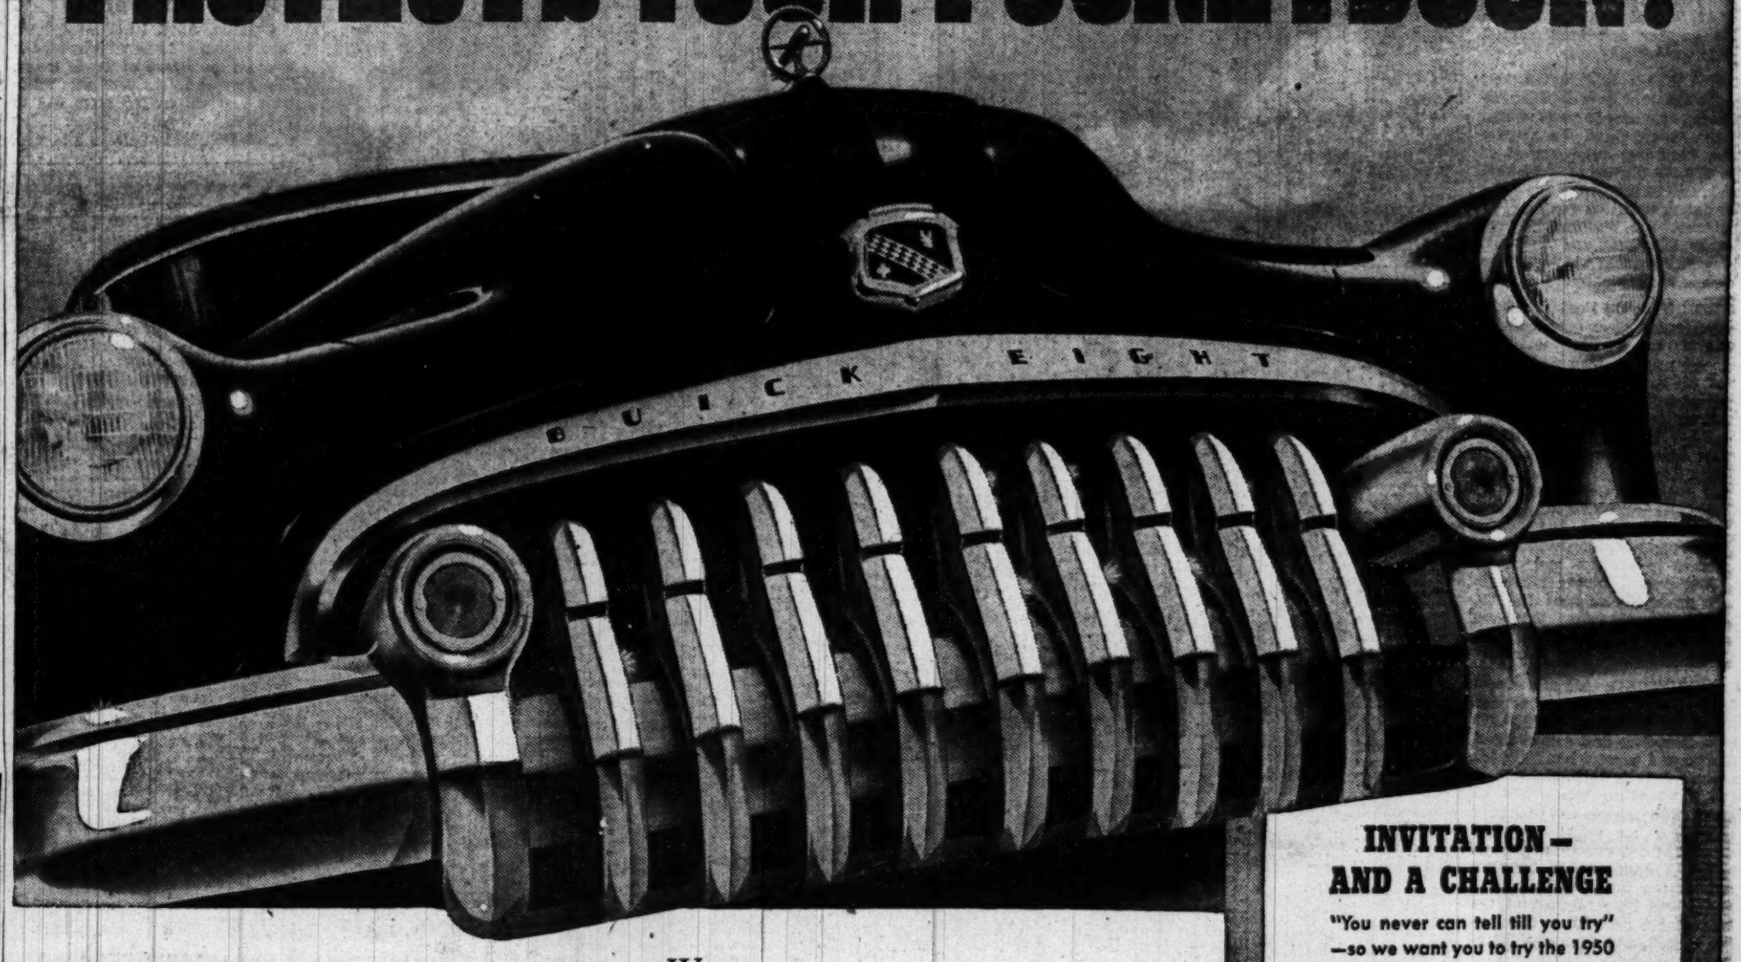
PROTECTS YOUR POCKETBOOK!



RAP your fist against these stout bars—feel the gauge of the bumper stock they're made of—and you know you've got stout protection here.

But then figure:

Here are nine bumper guards (not counting the two that hold the parking lights) so that's one extra item you needn't buy.

And each is individually replaceable—if damage should occur you have only a simple part or two to replace, instead of a complete, cast-metal grille.

Thus this stunning new design—freshest front-end style note on the highways—protects your pocketbook as well as your car.

Avoids costly repair bills as it avoids "locking horns" with the car ahead. Cuts upkeep as it cuts inches from the car's total length, thus making parking and garaging easier.

What you really have here is a four-way forefront. A design that sets the coming style note—avoids many a tangle with the car ahead—makes handling easier—and costs less to repair.

And note that parking-light lenses, made of plastic and set deep in recessed sockets, are well out of harm's way—even when pushing a stalled car.

You'll find this bold front end only on Buick—as you'll find Fireball power, Dynaflow Drive,* Buick's wonderful ride, and many another headline value only on these beauties.

Why not see your dealer now for the whole story—including the happy story on prices to fit practically any budget?

CTC Elevates 4, Names 5 to Board

Four promotions and five new directors for Capital Transit Co. were announced yesterday after the annual meeting of stockholders and directors.

The new board members are all members of the Wolfson group which bought stock control of the transit firm last summer. The group now has nine representatives on the 15-man board, or working control.

J. A. B. Broadwater, formerly vice president, was advanced to executive vice president and Doran S. Weinstein, assistant to the president, was named assistant secretary. Both are members of the Wolfson group.

Also elected was C. B. Koontz as treasurer, succeeding Henry D. Crampton who retired after 54 years service with the company and its predecessors. S. E. McCormick, former cashier, was elevated to assistant treasurer.

More than 190,000 out of the 240,000 outstanding Capital Transit shares were voted at the meeting, largest such representation in the history of the company.

President E. D. Merrill pointed out to stockholders that Capital Transit paid more than two million dollars in taxes last year. He generalized that the company's financial difficulties could be partially solved if some tax relief were granted.

He deplored the "present tendency" of subsidizing the use of private autos by the use of Government money for public parking places.

Merrill emphasized the economy measures so far taken and said about 500 employes had been dropped since last July. Higher fare rates on the Maryland line, in effect since February, have increased revenues from that source about 25 percent, he said.

First Quarter Shows Loss

The company operated at a deficit through the first quarter, he remarked and pointed out that a rate increase petition is still pending before the District Public Utilities Commission.

The five new directors are Cecil Wolfson, New York City; E. B. Gerbert and S. W. Wolfson, both of Jacksonville, Fla.; Jack Surasky and Doran Weinstein, both formerly of Florida but now residents of Washington.

They replace Alfred H. Lawson, David McCoach, jr., John M. Perry, S. Percy Thompson and Merle Thorpe.

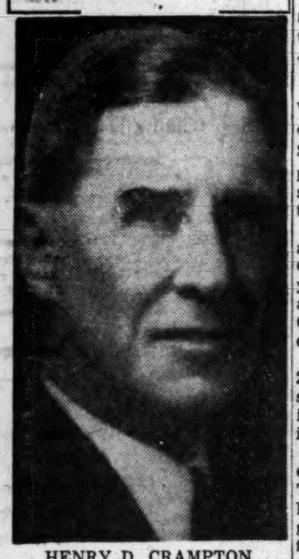
Henry Crampton

Transit Aide Retires After 54 Years



HENRY D. CRAMPTON
. . . 54 years of service

Henry D. Crampton went to work for the last time yesterday, after 54 years of service to the Capital Transit Co., 20 of them as treasurer.

Fellow employes gave him a red silk dressing gown, some fancy leather slippers and a radio.

"Looks like they expect me to do nothing but sit, but I'm going to fool them," the slight little man said, his bright blue eyes twinkling.

Hugh Lynch, director, D. C. Savings Bonds Division of the Treasury Department, presented Crampton with a personal citation, in recognition for his work in selling more than $6,400,000 worth of bonds, at the rate of $6000 a working day.

At 79, Crampton said he did not have any particular plans for retirement,—"Just a little fishing, a little golf as soon as the weather warms up"—but his memory was working overtime, reminiscing with fellow oldtimers.

Pointing to a picture of "the great fire" in 1897 in the power plant of the old Capital Traction Co., on the site of the present District Building, he started off:

"The day after the fire I got orders to buy all the horses and mules I could, so that we could keep the cars moving. I bought 650 of them in one day. Those were the days when conductors got two dollars for a ten or 12 hour day."

Raised to $2.25

Crampton was born in Frederick County, Maryland, in 1870, and came to Washington at 21.

A bachelor, Crampton lives with his sisters at 1323 21st st. nw.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, April 10 (AP).—Grains raced upward on the Board of Trade today, many contracts getting into new high territory. Biggest gains were scored by May and July soybeans, representing the old crop. Both made new seasonal peaks. Also at new seasonal highs were all corn and oats deliveries. Wheat, although strong, did not make new highs.

Wheat closed 1¼ to 2¾ higher, corn was ⅞ to 1¼ higher, oats were ⅞ to 1¾ higher, rye was ⅞ to 1¼ higher, soybeans were 2¼ to 7¾ higher, and lard was 10 to 15 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Bridges Sentenced to 5 Years For Naturalization Perjury

in 1945 when he denied he had ever been a Communist.

Robertson and Schmdit vouched for him at that same hearing, although, the jury decided, they knew he was or had been a Communist.

Before passing sentence, Harris denied defense motions for an arrest of judgment, a new trial and probation.

Harris said Bridges' guilt was "established to a moral certainty and beyond any reasonable doubt by the devastating and overwhelming evidence." The same was true of the other defendants, he said.

"Looking back on the rather broad vistas (of the trial), it becomes increasingly clear," Harris said, "that Harry Bridges lied in the naturalization proceedings."

Government attorneys had demanded that Bridges' bail be increased to $100,000, reminding the judge of the case of Gerhardt Eisler, who escaped to Germany while an appeal was pending.

Before he passed sentence, Harris declared:

"I say the verdict and the verdicts herein are fair and just. The verdicts will stand as a compelling decision on the part of a courageous jury after serious deliberation.

"This verdict will be a lasting memorial that the naturalization laws of the United States must be upheld. By lying, cheating and defrauding the U. S. Government, Harry Bridges was granted a naturalization certificate and was aided and abetted by Robertson and Schmidt.

"The jury has spoken and the mandate of this court is clear. The dictates of justice demand the verdict be carried out."

other on the rear of the bear cage.

It was hard to determine how the adventure got launched as each twin tried to give the "credit" to the other.

Mrs. Rogers had a couple of good clews. She said the boys had been promised a trip to the Zoo Sunday, and a view of the Connecticut ave. fashion parade was substituted, but not by mutual consent. Yesterday morning she took a nap shortly before 9 a. m., and when she awoke, things were suspiciously quiet in the twins' room. The twins, their Easter suits and their little red wagon were missing.

Johnny filled in the blanks. "Jimmy said, 'Let's go up to the Zoo.' I said to tell mama, but he said we shouldn't, so we didn't."

Asked who guided them the three-fourths mile to the Zoo, Johnny, wriggling uncomfortably at the unexpected limelight, said they had met a man who helped them across the street and bought them some jelly beans. This was a help, since the hikers had had no breakfast.

Upon arrival at the Zoo, according to Johnny, the more talkative, "Jimmy was trying to put a jelly bean in the bear's mouth—a big brown bear. He did it, too."

Police interrupted the feeding shortly before 1 p. m. and took the pair home after hearing a missing persons report broadcast. The little red wagon, however, is still missing, and neither Rogers knows where to find it.

Helping Stork Has Become Habit For This Father

Norfolk, Va., April 10 (AP).—For the third time in 3 years, Mrs. Carl Rautenkranze has lost a race with the stork.

Two years ago, Mrs. Rautenkranze gave birth to a daughter aboard the Norfolk-Portsmouth ferry. Last year, she was closer to the delivery room — having another daughter in the waiting room of the Portsmouth Naval Hospital.

And on Saturday, she made it to the hospital door, having a 7½-pound son in the front seat of an automobile. Her gunner's mate husband, an old hand at such impromptu deliveries, assisted at aturday's blessed event.

'You Can't Cheat'

Goldwyn's Credo: Make Better Pictures

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

THEY TELL a lot of stories about Samuel Goldwyn.

There are of course, the hilarious "Goldwynisms"—the manglings of language attributed to him. There's also a story of him as a teen-age, immigrant youth with enough pride in himself and his job to come to work 10 minutes early each day to be at his bench when the factory whistle blew.

The origin of many a "Goldwynism," like some of the phrases attributed to Dorothy Parker, are downright dubious. But without a doubt Sam Goldwyn is still a man of pride in his work.

Sixty-eight now, and one of Hollywood's top producers, Sam Goldwyn explained his philosophy—about movies and other things—here yesterday. Perhaps it was because he was relaxed, among friends, but it went like this:

"You can't cheat. You must please yourself. If you do a picture well the public will come to see it.

"My solution is to do it better."

That last statement, Sam Goldwyn said, goes for the current movie slump.

"Every picture you do," he added, "has to have something in it."

TO GOLDWYN, his Oscar-winning production of "The Best Years of Our Lives" had more than the perquisite "something"—it had everything.

SAMUEL GOLDWYN
. . . "We . . . lead the world"

"There's one picture, over the years, that I'm proudest of—one picture I made. That was it.

"Artistically and financially," he said, "it was great . . . It had Democracy at work.

"To me there are three great pictures. There was Griffith's 'Birth of a Nation,' you know, and 'Gone With the Wind' and 'The Best Years.'"

YET Goldwyn's greatest compliment, to hear him tell it, was not winning the Oscar—"at home I've got a closet full of awards"—but praise that came his way from a professor at Oxford for the production of "Wuthering Heights."

"At a party in a crowded room he said to me: 'You know, for 15 years in my classes I've been trying to explain the Bronte sisters. But in one movie you say what I can't get across'."

At this point, Goldwyn became defensively self-conscious—perhaps because of the legend of the "Goldwynisms."

He said: "That was a compliment because I had never had much school."

AS A pioneer movie producer—he came to Hollywood 37 years ago, he said—Goldwyn isn't too much concerned about television as a long-range threat.

"It has created a greater demand and appetite for all entertainment," he said.

Nor is he worried about charges that American movies show America in a poor light to other countries.

"If our pictures are such bad propaganda, why doesn't Joe Stalin open the movie houses in Russia to show them?"

In fact, no threat to the Nation's film industry concerns Goldwyn.

Goldwyn said so:

"We in Hollywood lead the world."

Richard L. Coe has been ill. His column will be resumed upon his return, probably later this week.

WHAT A MAN!—Washington's "Samson," James N. Maktos, 29, of 705 18th st. nw., named yesterday at the Capitol as the cream of 216 he-males, poses with "Delilah," model Ginny Coughlan. It all has to do with a movie coming to the theater called, oddly enough, "Samson and Delilah"

Postlude

Gala Pan American Concert Performed by Chamber Group

By Paul Hume

The Pan American Union is celebrating its 60th anniversary this year.

Last night, in its impressive Hall of the Americas, Pan American Day was observed in gala mood. A chamber orchestra drawn from the National Symphony was led by Eleazar de Carvalho, Brazilian conductor. Pia Sebastiani appeared as guest pianist and composer.

Carvalho, who this year is conducting the Colorado Springs Symphony, opened his concert with the sole music of the evening by a United States composer. It was Aaron Copland's haunting Quiet City.

We have waited a long time to hear Lloyd Geisler in the wonderful trumpet solo of this piece. He played it with all the restraint and marvelous quality of tone at his command. The performance was good without being polished. Wind instruments outshone violins in intonation and precision. The latter problem may have been aggravated by Carvalho's less than precise methods of conducting.

Eight miniatures by Roque Cordero, of Panama, followed. They started casually enough, but upon reaching numbers four, five, and six, they took on a note of imaginative invention in both rhythm and color. A dialogue for trumpet and flute in one was particularly striking. Then they subsided into the pleasant mediocrity which marked their opening.

Guarnieri of Brazil is an older more assured writer. His "Flor de Tremembe," with maracas forming a sibilant background, made a lush close to the first group. Typical Latin rhythms and melodic lines are as at home in this symphonic treatment as in dance routines.

Pia Sebastian played four composers' music in addition to her own. The very naivete of much South American music, in its insistence upon a dominant-tonic progression, makes it not too satisfactory as piano literature. The music often needs the accent of percussion instruments, or the color of strings and winds to enliven its cadences. But in Ginastera's Criolla both instrument and artist passed into handsome fields of true pianism.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

GASTONIA, N. C., April 10.—Jim Ferrier's blow-up on the final nine of the Masters when his 5-over-par 41 deposited the title in Jimmy Demaret's lap, recalls Tommy Armour's golf truism: "Tournaments aren't won, they're lost," Armour always maintained . . . None of the golf pros went away from the Masters empty handed. The sponsors voted $100 to each pro who didn't figure in the prize money, a $3000 goodwill gesture . . . After he holed the 225-yard spoon shot for the famous double eagle that helped him win the 1935 Masters, Gene Sarazen was hoping his feat would be commemorated by some kind of a monument at the spot of the shot . . . "But when I returned to Augusta a year later, I learned that their only action was to plant a little Italian rye grass seed the better to cover up the divot I took." Demaret's outlandish golf costumes net him more in royalties on sales of sweaters, slacks, and shoes he endorses than most of the pros earn in prize money. He submits samples of the varicolored slacks in his wardrobe to a shoe manufacturer who skillfully dyes suede brogans to match . . . So fast were the greens at the Masters that Lloyd Mangrum declared, "On these greens, the distance of the putt is actually more important than the direction of it" . . . Roberto de Vincenzo, the handsome Argentine pro, was a combination of the tournament's longest driver and worst putter . . .

POVICH

THE PRESIDENT of the Lewis Motors Co. of Gastonia, N. C., greeted the Nats on their arrival here today. He is their old teammate, Outfielder Buddy Lewis, now prospering in the automobile business. Lewis' firm sponsored the broadcast of today's game . . . The Philadelphia Athletics are beginning to evaporate as a first-division threat, with their pitching staff somewhat shot. Phil Marchildon's attempted comeback landed him back in the minors, and Dick Fowler and Joe Coleman have left the club to be treated for sore arms . . . And there is a growing feeling that if Hal Newhouser's arm soreness is not exaggerated, the Tigers are no longer a pennant threat . . . On the hospital front, the Yankees, too, are genuinely worried that Tom Henrich won't be available for the season's opener, what with his bum knee, and at his age . . . His choice of a third baseman poses another problem for Casey Stengel. Veteran Billy Johnson rates the job on his ability, but young Bobby Brown who is the better hitter may quit and hang out his shingle as a medical doctor if he is not used regularly . . . The A's have squawked at playing the scheduled April 21 night game in Washington and it will be rescheduled in the daytime.

IN THE BEST tradition of lefthanders, Southpaw Diz Sutherland of the Nats has spurned a berth with Chattanooga in the Double A Southern Association, and insists on rejoining Charlotte in the Class B Tri-State League. Sutherland picked up his marbles and went home from Orlando when he was told to join Chattanooga . . . The ball players are speculating there will be aitch to pay in the World Series, with National and American League umpires putting different interpretations of the new balk rule . . . And the pitchers are moaning that the baserunners are getting all the best of it . . . The overhand pitchers like the new regulations that require a 15-inch mound, but the sidearmers are unhappy about the new height . . . If the Browns get off to a bad start at the box office, they may listen to Yankee offers for Cliff Fannin, their best pitcher . . . Joe Haynes of the Nats credits his new effectiveness to the observation of Bobo Newsom, who told him, "You're pitching with too long a stride and losing your wrist-snap." Bucky Harris, who managed Luke Easter in the Coast League last year, pooh-poohs the oft-heard claim the big Negro "can be pitched to." Says Harris: "The best way to pitch to Easter is carefully."

LEFTY GOMEZ and Earl Whitehill who encountered each other in many a pitching battle are still rivals, as salesmen for competitive sporting goods firms seeking the business of major league clubs . . . The White Sox are the latest club to attempt to make a deal for the Nats' Eddie Robinson who is still avidly sought by both the Yankees and Red Sox . . . The pitcher the Nats are most likely to land within the next month is Fritz Dorish, Red Sox left-hander with much stuff and little control . . . When Red Rolfe headed the Tigers farm system he engaged only two former ball players as scouts, because too many former players lacked the social graces with which to impress the parents of boys the Tigers might be interested in signing . . . Their doctor-hypnotist, David Tracy, or somebody, has been doing a job on Al Demars, the Browns' rookie shortstop. He has been hitting and fielding with all the earmarks of a big leaguer . . . President Truman, by the end of his term, will set a record of having seen more Washington opening games than any other Chief Executive. The late FDR, despite his four terms, missed the war-year openers.

Widmar May Bring New Suit Against Baseball

Scranton, Pa., April 10 (AP).—Al Widmar, 25-year-old St. Louis Browns' righthander, threatened today to sue baseball under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

He said, "The Browns are preventing me from earning a decent living in baseball."

The big pitcher quit the Browns recently and came to his home at suburban Dunmore to sit out his bid for a higher salary.

And, said Widmar, "If I don't get at least $10,000 this year I'll sue baseball in the courts the way Danny Gardella did."

Gardella brought a $300,000 damage suit against organized baseball after he was banned from baseball for jumping to the rival Mexican League.

Widmar contends he made $8000 last season with Baltimore of the Triple-A International League. He won 22 games for the Orioles and barely missed being named the league's most valuable player.

But, he said, the Browns first offered him the major league minimum salary of $5000. Further offers weren't much better, Widmar said, stating the highest the Browns went was $7000.

Dewitt Silent

In San Antonio, Tex., President William O. Dewitt of the Browns said he doesn't care to discuss the case, adding, "If Widmar is going to court, it becomes a battle with baseball, rather than with the Browns."

He played with the Browns in 1948, winning two and losing six.

At the close of last season, he was returned to St. Louis under terms of a working agreement in which the Browns had the choice of two Baltimore players for a nominal sum.

"Frankly," Widmar said last year, "I won't report if the Browns claim me in the working agreement. The Browns gave up on me and I don't care to return to that club.

"My own suggestion is that I be dealt to another major club. I'd rather pitch for Baltimore than for the Browns, for that matter, even if St. Louis is in the major leagues."

Widmar said he would rather be placed on the voluntary retired list than play with the Browns.

He told newsmen he wrote Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler "but I've never gotten an answer in my request for help."

Chandler was "traveling and unavailable" for comment today.

However, Walter Mulbry, Chandler's assistant, said that Chandler has received no request from Widmar to be placed on the voluntary retired list. He declined any further comment.

Widmar said he will get in touch with attorneys who handled the Gardella suit in Federal courts.

Ray Allows Only 5 Hits, But He Also Walks Six

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Gastonia, N. C., April 10.—Ray Scarborough stepped up his spring training program today with a full nine-inning pitching chore in preparation for his opening game assignment in Griffith Stadium April 18. It was quite satisfactory. He held the Charlotte Hornets to five hits.

The Nats' right-hander, who has been bumped with frequency in recent appearances, wasn't beating much today, but he ended up with a 7-2 victory, and first success in a couple of weeks.

There was some difficulty with his control—he walked six—but when he was getting the ball over the plate he was quite pleasing to the critical view of Manager Bucky Harris. Scarborough struck out six and one of the two runs he surrendered was of his personal doing—a balk and his own fielding error.

Scarborough had much more to brag about than the Nats generally. They didn't terrorize any of the three pitchers, southpaw Dick Hagan and Righthanders Larry Clark and Al Berling—who toiled for their Charlotte farm hands.

The Nats could collect only seven hits all day, and nothing more than a single in contrast to the homerun and brace of two-baggers that Scarborough yielded up to Charlotte in producing his five-hitter.

The 3000 Gastonia natives who celebrated the opening of their new park in the Western Carolina League, saw little with which to be impressed by the Nats, except Scarborough's flashes of good pitching. Four of the seven runs they scored stemmed from walks and errors.

Nats Get Mad in 3d

Only in the third inning did the Nats act like big-leaguers against Class B pitching. That is when they came up with a four-run cluster against left-hander Hagan. Scarborough led off the inning with a single to left, Yost beat out a bunt, and singles by Dente and Stewart, with Mele's long fly, got 'em the runs.

Scarborough was guilty of one of three balks committed in the game, with Plate Umpire Lecounte putting a strict interpretation on the new pitching rules.

A Scarsborough balk figured in the Hornets' first run and a Scarborough pitch figured in their second. Outfielder Al Braziel hit the pitch far over the right field wall in the fourth inning for a homer.

Second Bonus Hurler Lost by Phillies; Braves Get Bicknell

Philadelphia, April 10 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies disclosed today the Boston Braves grabbed one of their star bonus youngsters, Pitcher Charley Bicknell, for the $10,000 waiver price.

Bicknell is the second highly regarded bonus pitcher to be lost by the Phils. The other, Hugh Radcliffe, was grabbed up by the New York Yankees.

The Phils paid $20,000 to sign Bicknell out of Plainfield, N. J., high school two years ago. Owner Bob Carpenter disclosed today he put Bicknell's name on the waiver list in an effort to send him to the minor leagues for a year of seasoning.

Anderson Withdraws From NBA

New York, April 10 (AP).—The Anderson, Ind., team withdrew today from the National Basketball Association.

Maurice Podoloff, president, said owner of the franchise presented a list of conditions for remaining in the professional circuit and the conditions were turned down.

"So the league purchased the Anderson franchise and disposed of it," Podoloff said.

'We will make some provision about the players at a later meeting."

The league executive declined to say what Anderson's conditions were and what type of settlement was made.

Podoloff, describing the present sprawling league at 'unwieldy," said a preliminary meeting of directors today also voted on these steps:

1. Each team must post a $50,000 performance bond within a week, specifying it will open the 1950-51 season.

2. A meeting will be held in Chicago two weeks from today to plan next year's setup and hold the annual draft of college talent.

Caps Plan to Stick, Post $50,000 Bond

The Washington Caps, who lost $35,000 last season, are prepared to post a required $50,000 performance bond to stay in the NBA.

"It's a good idea to make all the teams liable," Uline General Manager Bob Foster said last night from New York, where he's attending the basketball meeting. Foster admitted that there's a chance three more teams will drop out.

Terps Trail, 4-0, But Beat Out Pittsburgh, 8-5

Maryland spotted Pittsburgh a 4-0 lead but rallied behind the relief pitching of Don Soderberg and whipped the Pittsburgh Panthers, 8-5, at College Park yesterday.

Soderberg came in in the second inning after Don Wagner had pitched the visitors to a 3-0 lead. Soderberg allowed only two runs and three hits in eight innings.

Catcher George Howard put the Terps back in the game in the second with a three-run homer and Maryland broke a 5-5 tie in the sixth to wrap up the decision. The winning run was fashioned on John Hunton's single, coupled with an outfield error which permitted him to go to second, and another single by Shortstop Johnny Noske.

The victory was the fifth for Maryland against two defeats.

Smith Stops Dancosse in 2d

Washington's Gene Smith won his ninth straight professional fight, a smashing second round knockout over Danny Dancosse, from Manchester, Conn., at Turner's arena last night.

It was Smith's seventh knockout triumph, and came in 40 seconds of the second round after a terrific body and head attack by the 18-year-old featherweight sensation. The fight was scheduled for seven rounds.

Smith opened up on Dancosse in the first round, flooring him twice. The bell saved Danny who was on the canvass when it rang.

Gene jumped at him in the opening of the second round and ended the fight with a left and a right to the chin.

Pat Thomas, 128½ pounds, avenged a previous loss to Little Dynamite by pounding out a seven round split decision over him in the semi-final bout. Col. Robert Kilmartin, one of the judges voted a draw, but Harry Childs, the other judge and referee Charlie Reynolds gave the fight to Thomas.

Pat dropped Dynamite for a count of five in the third round.

In the preliminaries Young Lee Q. Murray of Baltimore lost a five-round decision to Washington's Eddie Gilchrist; Kenny Leach, 136, Baltimore, knocked out Frank Ball, 139, Washington, in 2:08 of the third round, and in two other all-local four - rounders, Johnny Shields, 178, kayoed Batling Moore, 188, in 2:34 of the first round and Jimmy Sewell, 132, won a decision over Joe Davis, 136.

Tom's Knee Hurts

Henrich and Reynolds Ailing, Leave Yanks to See Doctors

Quincy, Ill., April 10 (AP).—The New York Yankees arrived here today for an exhibition game with their Quincy farm club minus two key players, Tommy Henrich, star infielder-outfielder, and Pitcher Allie Reynolds.

Both left the club at St. Louis, Henrich to go by plane to John Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore where Dr. George Bennett will examine his ailing left knee, while Reynolds remained in the Mound City, to receive diathermic treatment.

Reynolds' case is not considered serious. He will rejoin the club as it passes through St. Louis again, on its way to Indianapolis, where the Yankees will play tomorrow. He has been troubled by an ailing arch in his left foot.

Henrich, however, was causing the world champions more concern. Bothered by an old knee injury, Tommy appeared very little in spring exhibition games until last Sunday in New Orleans, when he played three innings. He played three more in Memphis yesterday and hit two home runs.

Rally Short, Hoyas Lose, 4-3

A ninth-inning Georgetown rally fell short yesterday and Rutgers came away with a 4-3 victory at Georgetown.

Behind 4-1 in the last of the ninth, the Hoyes scored twice on two singles and three walks. They had the bases loaded when Shortstop Buddy Korfonta grounded out to end the game.

Hoya Catcher John Moskal, playing his fourth year of varsity baseball, broke his thumb trying to hold a foul tip and will be lost to the team for seven weeks.

Hockey Finals Start Tonight

Detroit, April 10 (AP).—The National Hockey League champion Detroit Red Wings dug in today for the opening of their Stanley Cup championship series with the New York Rangers here tomorrow night.

The Red Wings are 12-5 favorites.

Throughout the Detroit camp was an awareness that the team might have a letdown after its nip-and-tuck battle with Toronto in their semifinal series that went the full seven games.

New York had an easier time winning its way into the final round, as it took Montreal in five games.

The Rangers are unable to use their regular home ice at Madison Square Garden because a circus is playing there. Hence, the New Yorkers will play their two home games of the series at Toronto on Thursday and Saturday. All other games will be played in Detroit.

Both Shaughnessy and Albert are going on Stanford's athletic payroll as advisory coaches during spring football practice, which starts today.

'He Should Be a Crackerjack'

Nats Will Go Soarin' With Noren, Says Griff, Returning With Praise for $70,000 Rookie

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

CLARK GRIFFITH, who rarely passes the buck, thinks he passed $70,000 of them wisely when he purchased Irv Noren last winter.

"Hes going to be a crackerjack ball player," said the old gentleman yesterday upon his return to the stadium from Orlando.

"Reminds me a lot of Goose Goslin. He's the key to our ball club. If he comes through, and he's given every sign of it so far, we're going to cause a lot of trouble.

"Tell you what I like about him," added the Nats president as he reluctantly withdrew himself from the pinochle game, "Noren goes up to that plate wanting to hit the ball. He ain't like a lot of those humpty-dumpties who are looking for a walk. Noren wants to hit that ball.

"And he can hit it, too. It's gonna take more than a country curve to fool him. Hits lefthanders as well as righthanders.

"He's made a whale of a difference in our team. Why, down at Orlando the boys would watch him hit the ball over the fence and they'd go up to the plate tryin' to do it, too."

As partial as you'd expect a president of a team to be, Griffith was still restrained enough in his esteem of the Nats not to say that he expects the team to crowd New York, Boston and Detroit for the flag.

Calls It Better Club

"But we've got a much better ball club today than we had last year," he volunteered. "Robinson is off to a great start. He's hitting somewhere around .450, isn't he? And with Noren batting in front of him, that gives us a strong 1-2 punch. Mele, Vollmer, Dente, Kozar and all those fellows have been hitting this spring, all except Yost, but he'll come around.

"Our pitching ain't what it should be. We're gonna be a hittin' ball club and if we get reasonable pitching we could make it rough. That fellow Nagy has looked good and will help us, if his arms holds up. Harris looked fine, but that young buck, Weik, is kinda disappointing.

"Funny thing about him. I watched him in batting practice and he could put the ball anywhere he wanted to. But when he gets in a game and throws hard—and he can fire that ball—he's wild. But he's not as wild as he was last spring, so I guess he's improving. If he ever gets control, nobody will ever beat him. Until then, we'll have to sit back and weep and hope."

GREENWICH $10.95

Greenwich makes sun-baked fairways as cushiony as a well-watered green. The reason: A foam-rubber cushion innersole! We strove for comfort here—but you'll have to admit this moccasin design will "outlook" as well as outwalk other golf shoes. Oil treated soles and a snug-seal storm welt to keep your feet dry. Replaceable broadbase spikes to help your follow-through... OTHER JOHN WARDS ARE PRICED FROM $8.95 TO $15.95—NEITHER TOO HIGH NOR TOO LOW.

Gumptious Wins at Charles Town

3-Year-Old Pays $13 for 2d Victory

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., April 10. "There are horses for courses" they say on the back stretch and Charles Town evidently is the right track for Mrs. G. O. Russell's Gumptious. At least the brown gelding, out of the mare Church Supper, brought home the bacon here today and served dessert in the form of a $13.20 mutuel.

The only 3-year-old in the line-up for the Shenandoah Purse, Gumptious came from off the pace to win going away by a length margin from J. B. Royston's Whizz Happy, the favorite. Three additional lengths back came Ralph Bloom's Syllabub to be third.

This was the second victory of Gumptious' career. Since getting home on top here last May, he has tried in excellent company up to $10,000 claimers but got nothing. Today he was the lightweight of the party and turned in time of 1.19 4/5 for the Charles Town course of 120 feet more than six furlongs.

Jackey Jose Pelaez was aboard Gumptious and made no mistakes.

Charles Town's officials are confident that the meeting will be a success despite conflicting with Havre de Grace. Betting here last Saturday was just under the $200,000 mark, but the nearby Warrenton hunt races, which drew a reported 25,000 fans, were blamed rather than 'Graw competition.

Although the program opened with a favorite victory when Woofie won at $6.40 for J. M. Rogers of Washington, the longshots and near-longshots were popping most of the day. In the second race the winner was J. K. Halsey's Spuyten Duyvil, a $13.60 shot.

The daily double on the 7 and 3 combination paid $147.60 as compared with a $42 parlay on the pair.

Prominent among the "shots at the moon" that were successful was Little Savage, saddled by J. G. "Huppy" Davis, which took the third event at $42.20.

District Boy Wins by KO

Boston, Mass., April 10.—Washington's Norval Lee, National Golden Glove champ who's a favorite for heavyweight honors in the 62d National AAU tournament here, easily outclassed Bunn Pitts, Atlanta, tonight, scoring a second-round knockout.

Other first-round trial winners from the Washington area included Willie Davis, 135-pound D. C. stylist, who stopped Baltimore's Herman Thompson in the second round and Lightheavyweight Eldridge Thompson who decisioned Fred Brown, Seattle.

Bob Leeper, 118-pounder from the Capital, lost a split decision to Robert Agena, Honolulu.

Walter Stepanovich, 160-pound Leatherneck comrade from Washington, lost a decision to Robert Jackson of Cleveland after he had outpointed Emmanuel Britt, Hamilton, O.

Idema Has Ace At Anacostia

Jake Idema, Anacostia Naval Receiving Station, made a hole-in-one on the 123-yard sixth hole at Anacostia yesterday. Idema used an eight iron to rack up his first eagle. He posted a 74 for the par 67 course.

Idema played in a foursome with Michael Rinick, Wayne Rinick, and Bob Duval. It was the first time he ever played on the course.

Here's Good News

Hickory Shad Biting Near Chain Bridge

By Ralph Murdock

ANGLERS, here's good news. The hickories are now at Chain Bridge. It comes from Bob Nungesser. Yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, Bob got his first hickory shad. The catch was made on the turn of the tide, about 200 feet above the bridge. It represented his fifth attempt at the shad.

Murdock

The catch consisted of nine shad. Bob hooked five more that got away. The fish were taken on a stainless steel shad spoon. The method was by casting.

It appears that the herring run in the Upper Potomac has just about proved a dud. If you are herring-minded, the upper Patuxent is still producing large catches. The spot is near Queen Anne's Bridge, approximately 7 miles from Largo. The shad fishing at the latter location was only lukewarm over the weekend.

ON FEBRUARY 16, a staunch advocate of "Better Fishing" died. He was the Hon. S. Otis Bland, who represented Virginia's First District. Before the Congressman passed into the great beyond, he introduced a bill (H.R. 6973) which would set up machinery in the United States Fish and Wildlife Service for a full investigation of the biology and whereabouts of the croaker, often termed the hardhead. (Your friend and mine.)

When the above species first made its appearance in the Chesapeake Bay area, the croaker was given the gentle "go-by" and was considered of little value. Not until 1910 did the hardhead receive any recognition. The peak year for the fish, which has furnished the most fun for local anglers, was in 1945, when 57,705,000 pounds of hardheads were taken.

Our prophesy for 1950: hardhead fishing will be good. Best of all, it's not too far off.

Cook, Hanson Set National Rifle Record

Arthur Cook, former University of Maryland student, and Master Sergeant Richard Hanson, coach of the Terps rifle team, set a national doubles rifle record at College Park last night.

Firing in the prone-sitting match of the fourth annual United States Aggies gallery rifles championships, Cook hit a perfect 200 and his partner a 197x200. Hanson scored 100 from the prone position and 97 while sitting.

The 397 total broke the 396 set in the same tourney last year by John Courtney of Newport Va., and Simon Oster, of Haverstown, Pa.

Hotel Guests Will Fill Out Census Forms Here Tonight

Posters in the 55 larger hotels of the District will ask guests this evening, "Have You Been Counted?" as the census enumerators move into a special count of transients.

Managers of the hotels, tourist camps and other lodging places of 50 or more accommodations will distribute individual census questionnaires to their guests early tonight.

The guests will be asked to fill out the forms and return them to lobby desks to be set up by census enumerators.

Census officials, citing an estimated half-million transients missed in the 1940 census throughout the Nation, emphasized yesterday that all visitors are expected to count themselves in for the census, regardless of whether they have previously been "caught" at their homes.

Officials pointed out that the reports will be returned to the visitors' home districts for checking against block canvass reports, so none will be counted twice.

Policy Group May Rule Today On Fate of FEPC Legislation

The fate of the long-postponed fair-employment-practices legislation may be determined by the Senate Democratic Policy Committee today.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) said the policy group will decide whether to call up FEPC immediately following the pending flood-control bill, or give Economic Cooperation administration legislation the priority.

Organizations pressing for FEPC action told Lucas last week that further postponement of the key civil rights measure would weaken prospects of breaking a Southern filibuster, and might kill the bill for the session.

Lucas told newsmen he hoped to discuss the program dilemma with President Truman today.

Elmer W. Henderson, director of the American Council on Human Rights, a member of an informal civil rights committee that conferred with Lucas last week, meanwhile addressed the following wire to President Truman:

"American Council on Human Rights urges you to press for action in Senate on FEPC bill in accodrance with schedule previously agreed to by majority leader. Understand there is great pressure to postpone further and substitute other bills. If don't (follow present schedule) it would seriously impair chances of breaking filibuster and passing FEPC bill this Congress. . . . Please allow no further delay. We ask action now in Senate on FEPC."

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz

Defense Preparations Are Being Pressed by Government Agencies

Several Federal agencies here are quietly taking steps to prepare for defense—just in case. Within the next month or so, every agency here can be expected to join the preparedness campaign. The two big steps being taken are:

1. The appointment of alternative personnel outside of this city to take over the key jobs in their agencies in event this Capital City is bombed and some of the officials here are killed and wounded, and,

2. To microfilm the important records of Federal agencies here and to ship them to isolated places throughout the country.

If the worst comes—God forbid—and headquarters officials and records here are destroyed, the alternative personnel in the field offices would take over the records and continue to operate the agencies from cities throughout the country.

It's a good guess that the National Security Resources Board will push the preparedness program after W. Stuart Symington takes over as its chairman. A few agencies already are working actively on the program.

LOYALTY: The latest of Civil Service's Loyalty Review Board reveals that 195 Federal employes have been fired on loyalty charges. In addition, 136 persons were cleared after appeals to the top loyalty board; 107 cases are in the process of appeal, and there are 582 full field FBI reports on employes pending in the various agency loyalty boards. A total of 1041 employes left the Federal service while they were being investigated by the FBI.

JOBS: Civil Service today will begin to accept applications for engineer jobs to pay from $4600 to $6400 to start . . . VETERANS' CREDIT: The full Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee will meet Thursday on the House-approved bill to give World War II employes in the postal service credit toward automatic promotions for time served in the armed forces.

A subcommittee yesterday decided to take the bill to the full committee with these reservations:

1. That the bill covers only World War II veterans in the postal service, and therefore it discriminates against veterans in the classified and per diem services in the Postoffice Department as well as in other Federal agencies, and

2. The cutoff date of July 1 in the bill would put World War II veterans who entered the postal service after that date at a distinct salary disadvantage, as they would be given the promotion credits.

The Administration is opposing the bill, which has the aggressive support of the big postal organizations.

Silver Spring Boy Awarded $30,400 in Suit

U. S. Must Pay Youth For Injuries; Rest Of Family Killed

Baltimore, April 10 (AP).—A Federal Court jury today awarded a Silver Spring youngster $30,400 in damages from the Government for an accident in which all the others in his family were killed.

Lewis

Their car collided with an Army truck on U. S. 240 near Hyattstown, between Washington and Frederick, just a year ago.

Lewis Edward O'Hara, jr., 8, and his guardian, are beneficiaries of the verdict.

The guardian is his grandmother, Mrs. Beulah R. Price, with whom he lives at 10116 Brunett ave., Silver Spring. She said yesterday the lad is now in third grade at Four Corners school. But, she said, he will have to be treated for head and eye injuries until he is 14.

The verdict included $10,000 to the boy for the loss of his father, $1,000 for the loss of his mother, and $15,000 for his own injuries.

The grandmother was awarded $2500 for medical expenses, $1000 for damage to the car, and $300 each for burial expenses for Mr. and Mrs. O'Hara and their 4-year-old daughter, Sandra.

Attorneys for the boy could not present a single eyewitness at the trial. The boy was asleep at the time of the smashup. The Army driver and other personnel in the truck denied all blame for the accident.

James R. Miller of Rockville and Howard Larcombe of Silver Spring, attorneys for the plaintiffs, built their entire case on a sheaf of photographs and a mass of physical evidence.

Kavanaugh's tie was ripped off nd his finger broken in the tussle, he officer said. Connelly was convicted earlier on the drunk-driving harge and fined $100 in Bethesda 'olice Court.

Visitors, Construction Work Slow Traffic on Two Spans

A combination of the usual heavy traffic flowing to and from Virginia, plus an influx of Easter season visitors and construction work on the Highway Bridge, slowed evening travel on the Highway and Memorial bridges yesterday.

Veteran commuters, however, declared the creeping pace was "no worse than usual" and praised the eight District traffic cops assigned to the Highway Bridge, who put gusto into their arm-waving and thus into the lines once the lanes were clear.

The usual police detachment at the Highway Bridge was augmented yesterday afternoon as northbound travelers were shunted into part of the southbound lane, using a temporary connection to get back on the 14th st. overpass.

The temporary conversion was arranged to permit workmen to start work on approaches to the new East Highway Bridge. The bridge is scheduled for completion May 1.

Traffic police thinned the southbound rush-hour traffic from three to two lanes east of the Jefferson Memorial to prevent bunching up near the bridge. No accidents were reported.

Ferris Wheel Fall Fatal To Md. Boy, 13

Thirteen-year-old James Franklin Prentice died yesterday at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, Md., as the result of a 20-foot fall from a ferris wheel.

The boy's father, Clarence C. Prentice, 515 70th st., Seat Pleasant, Md., had erected the ferris wheel on a carnival lot in the 4900 block of Branchville rd., Branchville.

While completing the installation Sunday night the father permitted the boy to ride on the wheel as he was testing it. The seat in which the boy was riding had been improperly fastened, police said, and came loose, dropping the boy 20 feet to the ground. The father did not see the actual fall, he said.

The boy was taken to the hospital by the Branchville Rescue Squad and died at 3:30 a. m. yesterday.

A certificate of accidental death was issued by Dr. John T. Maloney, county medical examiner.

The boy is survived by his parents, two brothers, Richard and Robert, and a sister, Alice, all younger than he. He was a fifth-grade student at Seat Pleasant Elementary School.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 1 p. m. at the Gasch funeral home in Hyattsville, Md. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery, Bladensburg, Md.

Lottery, Race Bet Charges Lodged Against 2 in Raid

Two men, allegedly coowners of a pool hall at 937 9th st. nw., were arrested yesterday afternoon on gambling charges after a vice squad raid.

They were booked as Frederick R. Murdock, jr., 27, of 1336 Missouri ave. nw., and Jacob S. Farmer, 28, of 212 Wayne pl. se. Both men were charged with setting up a gaming table, possession of numbers slips, and operating a lottery. They were held under $2500 bond each for arraignment today before U. S. Commissioner C. S. Lawrence.

Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the vice squad, said the raid was made under a U. S. commissioner's warrant.

Blick said the men were using a rear pool table in the place for taking numbers and horse race bets. He said that $297 in cash was found on Farmer, and numbers slips on both men.

Man Vs. Woman

Slapping Incident Costs $60

Judge Hugh Reid of Arlington County Court doesn't believe that old saw: "Sticks and stones may break my bones, but words will never hurt me."

"The theory," he said yesterday, "that words never justify an assault is archaic . . . words can be just as clearly provocative as assault."

In the case in point, the words were not very nice ones and they were uttered, Mrs. Margaret Adams, of 4636 16th st. nw., said to her by Harvey Herndon, jr., 20, of 5738 N. Washington blvd.

The upshot of the matter was $60 and costs for Herndon, a steel worker with a construction firm, on counts of disorderly conduct and assault upon Mrs. Adams.

The two met each other over a disputed parking place last Saturday when Mrs. Adams, who contended she was legally parked, asked Herndon, parked behind her illegally, she said, to move so that she could leave the parking place.

Mrs. Adams contended that Herndon, with a single slap, struck both her and her 68-year-old mother, Mrs. Nora Peters, who was a witness to the fracas. Herndon denied hitting Mrs. Peters.

Warning Issued In Montgomery On Tick Season

Montgomery County residents were warned yesterday that the tick season has begun in the area and will last until September.

Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer, urged residents to examine themselves carefully for ticks after walking through tall grass or bushes. Daily tick inspections are the best prevention against spotted fever, he asserted.

Dr. Ellicott added that immunization against spotted fever is recommended only for persons who are heavily exposed to ticks.

Self-Operated Gas Pumps Are Debated

Self-service gas stations were labeled both a fire hazard and a boon to free enterprise yesterday as the Commissioners held public hearings on proposed regulations for the new-type stations.

Opposition to letting the public fill gas tanks was voiced by Lad Mills, president of the Association of Retail Gasoline Dealers of Washington.

He urged the Commissioners to refuse to license the self-service stations and to strengthen present regulations for gas stations by requiring attendants to pass fire prevention tests.

Fire Hazard Cited

Under self-service it always would be possible for the inexperienced, careless or intoxicated motorist to throw away a cigarette and cause a disastrous fire, he said.

W. C. Wills, gas station operator, told the Commissioners that he will open the first of the self-service stations in the Washington area the first of next month on River road in Alexandria.

The self-service gas station, like the self-service laundry and grocery store, is part of progress, he said.

Proposed District regulations would prohibit coin-operated pumps and, in the case of self-service but not coin-operated stations, require one attendant to supervise each six pumps. The pumps would be equipped with automatic shut-off nozzles to prevent gas from spilling or running over.

Wills received permission to set up the self-service station in Alexandria after the City Council pointed out that the city has no ordinances that apply. Wills took out only a general use permit.

McGrath Aide Testifies

Chalmers Hamill, special assistant to Attorney General Howard J. McGrath, testified that the Justice Department is very much interested in self-service stations as outlets for independent petroleum producers.

Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the Washington office of the American Automobile Association, said that in California where self-service stations were started gas generally was selling from 3 to 5 cents cheaper at the new type stations.

Fire Marshal Raymond C. Roberts testified that the Fire Department, while not opposing the self-service stations, favored strict regulation.

Husband Charged With Two-Weapon Assault on Wife

Samuel Willis James, 27, of 4809 East Capitol st., was held yesterday under $5000 bond for grand jury action on a charge he used two dangerous weapons to assault his wife, Delores, 20, Sunday at their home.

According to Municipal Court testimony, James, during an argument, first shot at her with a pistol containing a blank cartridge, inflicting a flash burn. Then, it was testified, he cut her on the left thumb with a butcher knife.

He was arrested, police said, after he took Mrs. James to Gallinger Hospital for treatment.

Clouds and Apathy Mark Capital's Easter Monday

Holiday Letdown In Evidence; Blooms, Egg Rolling Contests Draw Modest Crowds

A dull and cloudy day, plus a sort of let-down feeling after the activities of the Easter weekend, apparently had Washington in a semibe-calmed state yesterday.

Even the traditional egg-rolling ceremonies of Easter Monday weren't too well attended. And while an estimated 235,000 persons visited the cherry trees Sunday, only "a few thousands" toured the Tidal Basin yesterday.

From the weather standpoint, at least, the situation is due to improve today. Forecasters called for mostly sunny skies and a high near 70 degrees. A few showers were expected at night. Wednesday will be clearing and cooler.

But yesterday was overcast through the middle of the afternoon. The day's high was 51 degrees at 4:55 p. m. and the low was 40 degrees at 6:45 a. m. The predicted overnight low was 46.

Plenty of Visitors

Easter Week visitors, meanwhile, were very much in evidence in downtown sections. The Board of Trade estimated between 25,000 and 28,000 persons were remaining in the city at least overnight.

Department stores reported crowds, but attendance at the city's monuments and shrines dropped off considerably—the weather was blamed—from Sunday's figures.

The Zoo, for example, was expecting 40,000 Easter Monday visitors but reported a total of about 20,000.

8000 at Magruder Park

The annual egg-rolling contest at Magruder Park in Hyattsville drew about 8000 persons, most of them youngsters. It was held under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club of Prince Georges County and the Sidney Lust Theaters.

The "finders" of the two "golden" eggs—each worth $5—were Richard Eckley, 1[illegible], of 5403 56th ave., East Riverdale, and 8-year-old Marie Kraus of 6311 Rhode Island ave., Riverdale. Ten other youngsters found "silver" eggs—worth $1.

In the pie-eating contest, Larry Robertson, 13, of 5710 29th st., Hyattsville, won in the boys' division while Sidonie West, 14, of 6117 42d ave., Hyattsville, won in the girls' division.

Crowned as queen by Hyattsville Mayor Caesar Aiello was Lucy Viverette, 12, of 7500 Colesville rd., University Park. Lucy's maids-of-honor were Sally Groome, 13, of 5731 43d ave., Hyattsville, and Barbara Reeves, 12, of 4015 Madison st., Hyattsville.

Winners of the child-calling contest—a competition open to mothers only—were Mrs. Lawson F. Sanders, of 4707 40th ave., Hyattsville, and Mrs. Francis Santangelo, of 3812 72d ave., Landover Hills, Md.

E. E. Heaton, Baltimore Lawyer, Collapses And Dies While Testifying Before FTC

Eugene E. Heaton, 49-year-old general counsel of the Commercial Credit Co. of Baltimore, collapsed and died in a Federal Trade Commission hearing room yesterday in the midst of an argument against proposed new auto-financing regulations.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald ruled that Heaton died of a heart attack.

Representing one of the largest financing companies in the country, the Baltimore attorney had been speaking for about 10 of the 15 minutes allotted him when his voice broke and he fell to the floor at 3:10 p. m., as 75 persons in the hearing room looked on.

He was pronounced dead at 3:20 by a Gallinger Hospital physician. Commissioners Lowell B. Mason, John Carson and James M. Mead, sitting at the time, recessed the hearing until May 5. The body was removed to the morgue.

Observers said Heaton died almost instantly. W. Russell Mules, associate counsel of the Commercial Credit Co., said Heaton had been in good health and had given no indication of illness during their drive from Baltimore yesterday morning.

Proposals under discussion called for an itemization of charges in auto installment purchase contracts. The provisions were designed to protect buyers from hidden overcharges in current financing deals.

Mules said Heaton, after indorsing such regulation, had been arguing that it should be left to State legislatures. He had just outlined proposals passed and pending in State legislatures when he was stricken, Mules said.

A graduate of Columbia University, Heaton had been associated with the Commercial Credit Co. for about 20 years and lived at 505 Drury la., Baltimore. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dorothy L. Heaton, and two sons, Eugene E. Heaton, jr., 16, and Robert Heaton, about 10.

Indecent Exposure Appeal Won As 2 Girls Refuse to Testify

A 33-year-old Bureau of Standards employe, appealing a six-month sentence for indecent exposure in Prince Georges County Circuit Court yesterday, went free after two 7-year-old girls broke down and refused to testify about the alleged act.

Special Prosecutor Ignatius J. Keane nolle prossed the case against William Clayton Fogg, of 203 Garland ave., Takoma Park, Md. The two young witnesses burst into sobs in the courtroom.

Earlier, Judge John B. Gray, jr., threw out a confession which Fogg said he made on the promise of Prince Georges County Detective Earl J. Huber that he would get off with a $50 fine.

Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie sentenced Fogg to six months in the House of Correction after a trial in Hyattsville Police Court March 30. The indecent act was alleged to have taken place before four girls, ranging in age from 7 to 9, in Green Meadows Park.

After Judge Gray threw out the confession yesterday, the jury was called to the courtroom and the trial started. Both of the prosecution witnesses were dressed in their Easter finery.

One of the girls was called to the stand and answered preliminary questioning satisfactorily. When the questioning reached the alleged act, however, she began crying and was soon joined in her tears by the other witness. Efforts by court officials and the girls' mothers failed to coax further testimony from the children.

Keane, acting for the ailing State's attorney, A. Gwynn Bowie, conferred with the judge and Defense Attorney Henry A. Babcock and finally requested the nolle prosse.

John McGrath Dies; Undercover Agent

John J. McGrath, 57, retired assistant chief of the United States Secret Service, a specialist in counterfeiting cases and an expert on foreign currency, died Sunday at St. Margaret's Hospital in Boston, following a heart attack at his Needham Heights (Mass.), home.

Mr. McGrath

Mr. McGrath, who retired December 31, 1948, after 31 years in the Secret Service, was described by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder yesterday as one of the best undercover agents in the history of the Secret Service and one of its shrewdest investigators.

Appointed assistant chief on January 1, 1947, he had previously served as supervising agent here and worked on protection details for Presidents Coolidge, Hoover and Roosevelt.

He also accompanied President Truman to the postwar Potsdam Conference.

A New York counterfeiting group headed by Joe Martello and Joe Albano, one of the best organized syndicates in the underworld, was smashed by agents under his direction. Other notorious counterfeiters also were arrested by them.

A native of Boston, Mr. McGrath attended Dartmouth College and worked in the Railway Mail Service for three years before joining the Secret Service in 1917. He started his crime fighting career as an assistant operative at $4 a day.

Since his retirement, due to ill health, he had resided in Massachusetts.

He is survived by his wife, the former Anastasia Driscoll; two sons, William F. and Paul, and a daughter, Miss Marjorie McGrath, all of Boston. He also is survived by his father, Lawrence J. McGrath of Boston, and two brothers, Paul McGrath, of Foxboro, Mass., and Dr. Lawrence W. McGrath of Boston.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Needham. Burial will be in Needham.

Hearings Open On D. C. Jobless Increase Bill

Representatives of labor union and employer groups are expected to clash today at a Senate hearing on a bill to boost unemployment compensation here.

Last night 21 witnesses were listed to testify on the controversial measure, sponsored by Chairman Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), of the Senate District Committee.

The hearing will begin at 10 a. m. in the Senate District Committee room at the Capitol. Neely will preside.

Urged By AFL

Highlights of the bill, drafted by the District Unemployment Compensation Commission and urged by local AFL officials, include:

1. An increase of the present $6-$20 weekly benefits to $8-$33.
2. Payments for 26 weeks instead of the present 20 weeks.
3. Elimination of the one-week waiting period.

The measure also closes several loopholes in the present law to the advantage of employers. For example, the five-week period of being ineligible to receive unemployment benefits—the period is less now—would be imposed against persons who leave jobs voluntarily without good cause, persons who are fired for misconduct, and persons who fail to seek or accept suitable new jobs.

Generally, the Neely bill is in line with President Truman's program to extend unemployment insurance benefits nationally. His proposal was sent to Congress early last week.

Ready to Testify

The Washington Board of Trade, the Merchants and Manufacturers Association and 12 other employer organizations are slated to register their views before the Neely committee. In the past the board has vigorously opposed moves to liberalize unemployment benefits. President Frederick P. H. Siddons will speak for the board.

The measure's supporters will be led by C. F. Preller, president of the Central Labor Union.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West will represent the District Commissioners.

Senate hearings, which may run two or three days, also will include testimony on two other District labor bills. One would require employers to pay workers at least twice a month; the other would extend local minimum wage orders for women and minors to men over 18 years.

1 Errand Doesn't Make One Errant, Court Decrees

A handyman-for-a-night in a brothel isn't a vagrant in the eyes of the law, Judge Frank H. Myers of Municipal Court ruled yesterday.

The decision acquitted William H. Grey, 20, of 937 M st. nw., of the vagrancy charge. Gray was arrested when he opened the door to undercovermen who raided a disorderly house. He pleaded that he was just a grocery delivery boy hired for the night to take the place of an ill maid.

Judge Myers said that the activities of the one night didn't show a course of conduct of profligate or unlawful endeavor. There was no evidence that Grey was a "procurer," said the judge.

Man Is Concerned About Beau Brummel Son, Who Got Engaged to Lovely Girl But Thinks He Doesn't Want to Marry as Deadline Nears

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Our son Wayne is 22, a tall, dark handsome blade, well built and perfectly groomed. During the years from 14 to 20 he was sought after by many girls. Thus he had opportunity either to become extremely selfish, or to learn to recognize and appreciate fine companionable traits of character that qualify a girl to be a good wife and mother.

His activities and late hours often gave me cause to wonder if he would mature into a good citizen or digress into the gigolo type who refuses to grow up and seems satisfied to prey upon women. Then two years ago he came under the influence of a lovely, refined, intelligent and sensible girl—a member of a fine family of means.

One year ago he and Nan became engaged and their arrangements had the encouragement and approval of both families. I felt with relief that his future and happiness were assured.

They were to be married this spring, but to my surprise, Wayne told me yesterday—when I queried his plans—that he isn't too sure he wants to get married, because his girl is too affectionate, too generous, too considerate of his welfare, etc. Now I wonder if he is a bigger fool than I thought; and I want to do what I can to keep the lovely girl from being disappointed and humiliated, and to make this young scamp realize the value of the opportunity that is knocking at his door.

Son Has Subtle Nature

I HAVE TRIED to explain to him that if if he is developing normally, he should be interested in establishing his own home and building for a secure future. Also, that no one can find fault with another for being too generous, that the complaint of most men is that their wife isn't interested in their welfare; and that a fine woman's willingness to give herself in marriage should be honored and appreciated.

His is a subtle nature that deals impersonally with everyone he contacts, and a shrewd observer probably would say that he is selfish and self-centered, a person who hasn't the balance to discern real values and sidestep trouble. He doesn't understand my counsel, based on a lifetime's experience, but maybe he will give more attention to your disinterested comment.

D. A.

Normal Fear of Captivity

DEAR D. A.: A man of good sense invariably starts sweating the nervous dubiety when on the verge of getting married for the first time.

Only if a young blade is completely irresponsible about the costs of conduct, or madly hungry to possess a tantalizing charmer, does he forfeit the single life for married cares, without taking a last lingering anxious look in both directions. And this is especially true of a socially experienced man to whom much has been given by family and friends, and who is still verdantly young in years.

Thus I see nothing peculiarly blameworthy about Wayne's emotional stalling at this point, and if Nan offers him "smother-love," maybe he's right to back away. Character cannot grow strong and mature in a hot-house climate of possessive inordinate solicitude for one's welfare, and perhaps Wayne has been trying to escape too much of that sort of "protection" all his life—in relation to doting parents.

Listen With Open Mind

YOU SAY "his is a subtle nature that deals impersonally with everyone he contacts,"—and this suggests that he fears close intimacy as a threat to personal dignity. In relation to you at least, or when under your observation, he is cautiously on the defensive against investigation, manipulation, criticism, etc., it seems; and perhaps, this defense mechanism does carry over into all his personal dealings, unconsciously blocking all his attempts to forge meaningful relationships.

As to whether Wayne should marry Nan, I feel it is for them, not you, to decide. But if you wish to help him see the light, you should try to listen with understanding while he talks—the process that usually dissolves uncertainties,—instead of arguing your reasons for wanting to join forces with Nan's parents.

The chief obstacle to understanding is your selfishness, which relishes the prospect of getting him tied to a fine wife and prosperous in-laws, so that you can be rid of him, in the sense of letting them worry about making him a creditable citizen.

Post-Easter Merry-Go-Round Begins With Trio of Gay Parties

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

A SEAT on the Washington merry-go-round yesterday was worth twice the price.

There was Mrs. Truman's luncheon at Blair House for Mrs. Henry F. Grady, wife of our Ambassador to Greece, and a dozen friends of the honor guest.

There was the reception for Sir Basil Brooke, Prime Minister of North Ireland, and Lady Brooke, given by Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip at the Carlton Hotel.

Then there was former Ambassador and Mrs. William S. Culbertson's cocktail party in honor of Francisco Troncoso, former Dominican Ambassador to the United States and Senora de Troncoso—he's now Governor of the Dominican Central Bank. And also on the party schedule was Mrs. Tomas Cajigas' tea—for ladies only—at the Shoreham, one of a series of parties being given to welcome Mrs. Henry F. Grady home.

Diplomats, Military Greet Irish Visitor

THERE was top rank at the Haislips' party as well as some of the hosts' personal friends.

Mrs. Haislip in a toast brown satin jacket frock, wore a hat of pale beige and Lady Brooke was in dark blue with a hat of pale blue flowers.

A number of helpful aides were stationed about the room to assist in making introductions, with Col. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle as head man.

The British Ambassador, Sir Oliver Franks, came in alone, found Gen. Sir Neil Ritchie, new head of the British Army Staff, and Lady Ritchie, in a group which included Gen. and Mrs. Carl Spaatz and Gen. and Mrs. Anthony McAuliffe.

The British Minister, Sir Derek Hoyer Millar was there—I didn't see Lady Millar—and from the British Embassy also was the Attache Miss Irene Boyle; the Naval Attache, Capt. J. Holmes and Mrs. Holmes, and Group Capt. and Mrs. R. C. Jonas.

Mrs. Regan Wears Her Paris Hat

SAW Gen. and Mrs. Virgil Peterson going down "the line" and chatted with Col. and Mrs. Horace Smith, Mrs. James Kem, pretty in her pale pink hat; Mrs. Ken Regan in her "that looks just like Roberta" red Paris hat, brought to her by a friend.

The Ecuadorean Ambassador, Augusto Dillon, and Senora de Dillon in a wide black hat and flared skirt black frock, were guests. Others were the Netherlands Ambassador Eelco Van Kleffens, Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Alfred Gruenther, Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas B. Larkin, Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Raymond S. McLain.

Easter Bonnets Take the Spotlight

MRS. George Maurice Morris and Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, talked garden tours together; Mrs. Katharine Byron with three green orchids on her lapel and oranges, apples and peanuts on her hat, had everybody guessing "who?"

Here and there were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Harry Vaughan, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Houghteling, dressed for a dinner party; Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Arthur Harris, Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark in a tiny white flower hat; Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Jack Logan, Mrs. Joseph Davies in gray with coral feathers on her grey hat, Mrs. Henry Flood and Miss Carolyn Nash.

Sir Basil and Lady Brooke who'll be off on Wednesday for Canada, tasted for the first time yesterday the Senate's famous black bean soup. They were guests at luncheon of Senator and Mrs. Homer Ferguson.

Culbertsons Entertain For Former Ambassador

IT WAS reunion time for Senor and Senora de Troncoso at Colonel and Mrs. Culbertson's party, for they made many friends when they were at the Dominican Embassy. Unhappily their stay here will be short; they're to leave on Wednesday for New York and then back to their island home.

Senora de Troncoso, who has eyes the color of forget-me-nots, wore navy blue yesterday with a wide natural colored straw hat faced in navy blue and a pale pink rose tucked under the brim. Mrs. Culbertson's gown was a rustling gown of black lace over blue taffeta, vastly becoming with her silver hair and blue eyes. Mrs. Walter George was with the early arrivals which included also Mrs. Joseph Davies, who made the circuit of three parties yesterday; Mrs. Dennis Chavez and Mrs. John L. McClellan, who came together, their husbands still in session at the Senate; Mrs. Emerson Howe and Mrs. Parker West, a twosome and neighbors of the hosts in the same building.

Mrs. J. E. Saugsted, who had worn a long dress to assist at Mrs. Cajigas' tea, had gone home, changed to a dark blue costume and picked up her husband in the meantime.

The Peruvian Ambassador, Fernando Berckemeyer, and Senora de Berckemeyer were there, and the Turkish Ambassador, Feridun Erkin, without Mme. Erkin, who's on the sick list.

Then there were Gen. and Mrs. John Greely, Clarence Hewes, Mrs. Curtis Shears, who had been first to the Shoreham to greet Mrs. Grady; Mrs. Cleveland Newton, Paul Daniels, our Ambassador to the OAS, and Mrs. Daniels, Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, and Mrs. Effingham Townsend, with a spray of pink roses on her hat.

Hundreds Greet Mrs. Grady at Shoreham

AT that pleasant party for the indomitable Lucretia Grady, almost every guest was an old friend, almost everyone received a kiss or at least a warm embrace.

Mrs. Grady wore another Greek gown yesterday, one of those designed by Mme. Psoukli. It was of soft metallic brocade in a Persian pattern of tiny blue green and rose figure on gold. The hostess was in gray crepe, gracefully designed with a pointed tunic.

Three tea tables were set up in the Shoreham's west ballroom, with tea and coffee being served by half a hundred friends of the hostess in turn. Among those assisting were Mrs. Owen Brewster, Mrs. Norman Makin, Mrs. Harry Vaughan, Mrs. Tom Connally, Mrs. Harold Burton, Senora de Berckemeyer, Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Mrs. Ellen Woodward, Mme. Pandora Tsaldaris, Senora de Troncoso, Miss Frances Perkins, Mrs. John Kee, Mrs. Paul Daniels, Senora de la Colina, Senora de Dillon, Senora de Baron, Mrs. Victor Alfaro, Mrs. Winfred Overholser, Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. Sdam Gordon, Mrs. Arthur Vennell, Mrs. John English, Mrs. David Fernsler, Mrs. William P. Herbst, Mrs. Joseph Elward, Mrs. Forrest Sherman, Mrs. Hugh Campbell, Mrs. Joseph Horgan, Mrs. John L. Parks and Mrs. Burks Summers.

In a quick look around I saw Lady Berendsen, who introduced me to her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ian Berendsen; Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, Mrs. John J. Shugrue and her sister-in-law, Mrs. James O'Donnell Moran, in blue and crisp white accents; Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Mrs. Edgar Quayle, Mrs. Jesse B. Bennett. Met the new Panama Ambassador's wife, Senora da Herbruger, being introduced by Mrs. Edward H. Conger and said "how-de-do" to Mme. Chautemps and her daughter, Mrs. Tayloe Perry, and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Mrs. Charles McEnerney and Mrs. Lee Brite.

Concert Celebrates OAS Anniversary

IN celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the Organization of American States, a concert was held last evening from 9 to 10 in the Hall of the Americas at the Pan American Union. Dr. Alberto Lleras, secretary general of the Pan American Union, and Senora Lleras were host and hostess on this occasion to several hundred guests, including members of diplomatic, official and residential society.

A program of music of the Americas was played by a chamber orchestra of the National Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Eleazar de Carvalho of Brazil. Miss Pia Sebastiani of the Argentine, pianist, was guest artist.

Paul Guerin Marries Mrs. Auffmordt Here

A wedding of interest to diplomatic circles took place yesterday when Mrs. Simonne Nano Auffmordt became the bride of Paul F. Guerin. The bride belongs to a well-known diplomatic family. She is the daughter of the late Roumanian Minister to Berlin, Constantin G. Nano, and Mrs. Nano, and she is a sister of Senora Lucienne de Cardenas, wife of Juan de Cardenas, former Spanish Ambassador to the United States.

Mr. Guerin at present is writing articles for French periodicals and preparing a book on United States problems in the postwar period. He is the son of Albert Guerin, president of Morrocan railways, retired, and the late Mrs. Guerin. Judge Frank H. Meyers officiated yesterday at the quiet ceremony.

Greek Ambassador Fashion Show Guest

THE Ambassador of Greece, Vassili G. Dendramis, was honor guest at the weekly fashion show luncheon held yesterday at the Statler Hotel. Others seated with him at the celebrity table were Mrs. Oscar Chapman, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, Deputy Undersecretary of State and Mrs. John E. Peurifey, Mrs. Grace Stewart, executive assistant to the Attorney General; Mrs. Bob Considine, Miss Judith Evelyn, star of "Streetcar Named Desire," and Mrs. Alexander Beinoglou, director of information of the Greek Embassy.

Luncheon Honors Pittsburgh Visitor

MRS. WILLIAM L. RITCHIE gave a luncheon yesterday at the Sulgrave Club for Mrs. Wallace McClenehan of Pittsburgh, Pa. Mrs. McClenehan is the daughter of the late Dean of the Cathedral and Chaplain of the Senate, Ze Barney Phillips and Mrs. Phillips, and she came down to Washington to spend Easter with her mother.

Mrs. William Sasscer Hill gave a luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel in the Lounge. Her party was in honor of Mrs. John J. Boland, the former Miss Betty Lloyd Hutchison, who is moving shortly to New York.

Mrs. Hill will entertain this month at a series of small luncheons, and yesterday's was the first. She is the former Miss Lillian H. Willett.

Miss Harrell Feted at Shower

MISS Betty Jeanne Harrell, bride-elect of Turner C. Trippe, jr., was honored yesterday at a linen shower given by Miss Peggy Boyer, a sister debutante of two years ago. Miss Boyer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Washington Boyer. Her party yesterday was given at the American Newspaper Women's Club on 20th st.

Gay Colors Favorites in Summer Shoes

By Peggy Preston

SHOES as bright and colorful as a basket of May flowers are fashion's prettiest offerings for spring and summer.

Such old-time favorites as black and brown are still with us, of course, and remain the choice of the ultraconservative. And, in the past two years, a great many women have learned to accept as classic such shades as red, green and navy in their footwear. But the pastels, in new lightweight fabrics which stylists are decreeing for spring and summer, are dramatic departures from the commonplace.

Preferred Fabrics

Most women will like to have at least one pair of gaily colored shoes in their wardrobe this summer. Shantung and linen are the preferred fabrics, with nylon mesh, colored suedes and patents also in the running.

Linens and silk shantungs are usually bought in white and dyed to order, in a color that matches a specific costume. Because of their coolness and lightweight qualities, shoes of this type are bound to find summertime favor in Washington. One may obtain them in the form of a classic pump, with either high or medium-high heels, or in versions that class for straps. The straps may surround the ankle or cross at the instep.

Straw Beige Popular

Nylon mesh, tinted in a wide variety of colors is frequently combined with calfskin or patent. Straw beige, a color that has replaced gray as a leading neutral this year, is effective when used against black or navy patent.

Casual shoes, with flat heels and a variety of straps and laces are being shown in bright calfskin for the most part. They may be yellow, red, white, green, pink, light blue—sometimes a combination of several of these shades.

Classic Pumps

The classic spectator sports pump, with closed toe and heel, is still out in front for wear with summer cottons and sheers. In color combinations, it remains much the same as in former years, with black and white, brown and white, and navy and white the most popular.

Shoes in general are not greatly different in line and style. There is a continued tendency to lighten the shoe, however, making it daintier and more decorative.

CLASSIC spectator pumps are as good this season as ever in their long history. Two versions are shown here, both with flattering wing-tip toes, and may be had with either high or mid-high heels. At left, white suede is combined with calfskin in navy or brown, or black patent. White handbag is trimmed with color-matching leather. Solid toned pumps at right come in navy, red or ginger brown calfskin. Shoes and handbag are available at Chandler stores on F st. and Wilson blvd., Clarendon, Va.

THIS SPRING-into-summer, day-into-night pump is fashioned in a new "Dress Circle" silhouette. It comes in a wide variety of fabrics, colors and heel heights, each suitable to a season or hour. In black or blue suede for spring and early summer, it is piped in matching patent. For summer, it is made of white linen which may be tinted to match a costume. For evening it is done in black nylon lace over pink satin. Available at I. Miller & Sons, F st. and Connecticut ave.

Ask Anne

For Old-Fashioned Comfort, There's Nothing Like a Rocker, Anne Agrees; But Add Modern Decorative Touches

DEAR ANNE:

Since rockers seem to be coming back in style to some extent, I've gotten interested in refinishing an old one my mother has in the attic. Can you give me any suggestions on giving an old rocker a "modern" touch? I plan to use it in a bedroom. The wood is stained a dark color, not particularly pretty. D. G., Arlington.

DEAR D. G.: There does seem to be a revival of interest in rockers these days. Maybe we need such old-fashioned comfort in this atomic age.

I'd suggest first taking off the old finish with paint and varnish remover, steel wool, and sandpaper. Then paint the wood a pinkish gray, if this goes with your bedroom color scheme. (Any other light shade could be substituted, as desired.) To achieve the pinkish gray, mix one can white enamel with a tiny bit of Venetian red and the same amount of raw umber.

Decorate the back of the chair with motifs (say, about four big flowers) cut from chintz and applied with glue. When dry, shellac entire surface. Cover pillow for seat with matching piece of chintz.

DEAR ANNE:

Is there anything you can do about cream that has been overwhipped? It gets sort of grainy and unattractive looking. Can it be "brought back?"

C. W. G., Bladensburg.

Adding a small amount of cold milk to the whipped cream and stirring it lightly will often return it to a smooth consistency.

DEAR ANNE:

Will you repeat the method for painting fiber rugs, the type of paint used, etc.? F. S. M., Chevy Chase, Md.

This is a popular question at this time of year and seems worth repeating. You can use awning paint for the job or good quality house paint, thinned with turpentine in the proportion of one part turpentine to three parts paint.

Before starting to paint, clean the rug thoroughly from both sides with vacuum cleaner or stiff broom. If the rug is very soiled, it should be shampooed. Use a regular rug shampoo and a stiff brush, working in circular motion over a small area at a time. Thoroughly rinse each section after it is shampooed by wiping with a clean cloth wrung out of clear water. Allow to dry.

When dry, place several layers of newspaper under the rug to protect the floor. Apply one or two coats of the paint, using an old, inexpensive brush and working the paint well into the fibers. Be sure the rug is thoroughly dry before it is used.

DEAR ANNE:

To J. J. H., who wrote about traveling with her 2-year-old son: I found a safety harness excellent in taking my baby on a train trip—as he could not do too much running about. Your youngster will ride free. You will be served a tray which you can share with him. Do not let him handle silver as air travel may be rough. Feed him yourself. Take a few toys and prepare to enjoy your trip.

Mrs. E. Y. W., Sanderson, Washington.

DEAR ANNE:

I think that I can help J. J. H., having traveled both by plane and train with my children since my oldest was 14-months-old. I definitely prefer the plane, because of the brevity of the trip and other considerations. If you are worried about air-sickness, ask your doctor about the new dramamine pills. They are wonderful!

No matter how warm it is when you leave, do take a sweater or jacket for yourself and your son. After you take off, they turn on the airconditioning and if you are dressed for the heat outside, you will find it may become chilly inside. If your boy is too young to chew gum, give him a few sips of water, milk, or something to eat to make him swallow as you land, and his ears will not bother him. A READER, Falls Church, Va.

DEAR ANNE:

Have you a recipe for a chocolate cake made with mashed potatoes?

G. W., Alexandria, Va.

This recipe is from the Congressional Club Cookbook and a favorite with Mrs. Harris Ellsworth, wife of the Representative from Oregon's Fourth Congressional District:

CHOCOLATE POTATO CAKE

2/3 cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 4 eggs, 1 cup hot mashed potatoes, 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup chocolate, ½ cup sweet milk, 1 cup chopped walnuts, 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Cream butter and sugar. Add well beaten egg yolks. Add hot mashed potatoes in which chocolate has been mixed. Sift dry ingredients together three times and add alternately with milk. Add nuts. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in 3 layers for 30 minutes in 350 degree oven. Ice as desired.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

U. S. Aid Cited In Support of Home Rule

Herbert P. Leeman, president of the Federation of Citizens Association, last night cited an envisioned increase in Federal contribution to the District government as being one of the reasons why the federation supports the Kafauver home rule bill.

Speaking before the Glover Park Citizens Association at the Stoddard School, 40th and Calvert sts. nw., Leeman said under the pending bill the Federal contribution would be boosted from 10 to 20 percent.

The association went on record as favoring repeal of the personal property tax, as applied to household effects. Thomas B. Scott, president of the association, reviewed accomplishments of the organization during the last year.

Hillcrest

The Hillcrest Citizens Association last night approved a resolution urging the District Commissioners to bar from civil defense plans any person who has been a member of a group branded as subversive by the Attorney General.

The association, meeting at the East Washington Heights Baptist Church, Branch and Alabama aves. se., approved a 5-day 40-hour week for Metropolitan policemen and urged that four swimming pools be allocated for white use and two for Negroes.

The following were nominated for officers: J. H. Reed, president; Eugene Ramskill, first vice president; Claude E. Cleeton, second vice president; William Roberson, treasurer; Mrs. Evelyn MacIntosh, secretary, and Mrs. Alfred Myers, financial secretary.

Southeast Businessmen

Cleveland Seibert, manager of public telephones for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., was elected president of the Southeast Businessmen's Association last night. He succeeds John F. Donohoe.

Alex J. Berlin was reelected treasurer for the 23d year, and Louis F. Frick was chosen secretary for the 15th year. Others elected were Alonzo Thompson, first vice president, John Holland, second vice president, Michael J. Lane, third vice president, and Frank H. Maxey, sergeant-at-arms.

The association, meeting in the office of the Donohoe Real Estate Co., 314 Pennsylvania ave. se., went on record opposed to any increase in unemployment compensation benefits.

American University Park

The American University Park Citizens Association last night indorsed the District Recreation Board's position against operation of District pools on a nonsegregated basis.

Meeting at Hurst Hall, American University, the group adopted resolutions favoring a five-day, 40-hour week for policemen, daylight saving time, and asking for construction of a stadium and swimming pool at Coolidge High School.

The members also discussed plans for the spring banquet May 8 at the Westmoreland Congregational Church. Kenneth B. Hamilton was appointed chairman of a nominating committee to submit a slate of candidates at the May meeting.

Kalorama

Mrs. Sylvia Wubnig, of 1816 Kalorama rd. nw., was chosen last night to represent the Kalorama Citizens Association at the May 22 health and welfare conference sponsored by United Community Services.

Because of the Easter vacation, the association meeting was switched from Adams School to the home of Mrs. Harvey Wiley, 2345 Ashmead pl. nw. Several resolutions were presented but lack of a quorum prevented action on them.

Detectives Sober At Vincent Arrest, Witnesses Claim

A parade of witnesses, most of them policemen, tesified yesterday that neither Earl A. Douglas, a private detective, nor Ernest R. Amos, Jr., a former police detective sergeant now a private, were drunk the night Amos arrested Gambler Alfred B. Vincent.

The witnesses appeared at a hearing held by the District License Board in an appeal by Douglas whose application for license as a private detective was denied because of Police Department disapproval.

The denial was based on the complaint of Vincent who said that he was beaten last September 30 by Douglas and Amos.

The hearing was continued to April 20 at 2 p. m.

$25,000 Fund Drive Started for CYO

A campaign to raise $25,00 for the 1950 program of the Catholic Youth Organization of the Archdiocese of Washington was launched at a meeting last night at the CYO headquarters, 918 10th st. nw.

The Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., dean of the school of philosophy of Catholic University, principal speaker, praised the organization as a bulwark of moral strength for church and country. A group of 231 CYO directors and assistants from nearly 40 parishes attended.

Montgomery Civic Federation Opposes Apartment Expansion

The Montgomery County Civic Federation last night asked for a slowdown in apartment house development until master land use regulations are adopted for the county.

The action, taken at the Bethesda Elementary School, followed the submission of a report by Dr. Harold P. Morris, chairman of a special committee appointed to study the effects of apartment development.

Dr. Morris produced detailed tables to show that tax revenue per child received from apartment dwellers falls approximately $35 short of paying for the child's public education. The deficit per child for detached homes is $16. The annual cost per child was given at $188.47.

In its resolution, the federation indorsed the committee's report and reaffirmed its previous stand that no extensive rezoning to residential C be made until adoption of regulations providing for more adequate control of all types of land use.

The Federation also urged the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission to appoint a citizens' advisory committee to aid in interpreting the views and needs of citizens in the adoption of master land use plans.

In another resolution, the group urged that wages of public school teachers be fixed in accordance with the existing pay schedule and that provision for this be made in the coming fiscal budget.

Brig. Gen. F. W. Browne, a member of the schools' committee who offered the resolution, declared that 319 of the county's 867 teachers are paid less than the scale established in 1947. He added that the best-educated and most experienced teachers are the farthest off schedule.

GOP Leaders Fail to Agree On Candidate

Baltimore, April 10 (AP).—A meeting of Maryland Republican leaders today failed in its avowed purpose of agreeing on a candidate for the GOP nomination for Governor.

Sponsors had hoped that when he conference was over the four potential candidates attending would be narrowed to one. That didn't seem to be the case.

The potential candidates there were State Senator Roy Tasco Davis of Montgomery County; D. ohn Markey of Frederick County, 946 nominee for the United States Senate; Royden A. Blunt, Baltimore industrialist who lives in Howard County, and Thomas B. . Mudd, Charles County businessman.

At the end of the session they miled at each other and posed for ictures, but admitted each would ontinue his campaign of conferences with county and city political eaders.

The only decision appeared to e that they would meet again in about a month to compare notes nd again try to eliminate all but ne of the quartet of hopefuls.

Looking on while the four men ebated their respectiv potentialities were Jacob France, National OP committeeman for Maryland, nd State Chairman Stanford Hoff, harles County State Senator.

It was the hope of sponsors of oday's meeting that it would proluce a candidate to be put before he central committee when it conenes here Saturday.

Meanwhile there were reports of another Republican ticket-in-he-making, independen of the rance-Hoff organization. This icket has Theadore R. McKeldin, ormer Baltimore mayor, for govrnor; Mayor Herman L. Mills of lagerstown for United States Sentor, and Arthur Keefer, Prince Georges County attorney, for Attorney General.

Sparkman Named Head of New Unit On Small Business

Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.), was named by Vice President Barkley yesterday as chairman of a special Senate committee on small business.

In selecting the 13 members of the group, recently authorized by the Senate, Barkley did not appoint any Senators who have served on previous Senate committees to aid small business.

He explained he felt this was advisable so that some new Senators, less burdened with committee work than their senior colleagues, would have an opportunity "to apply themselves to this problem."

In addition to Sparkman, members of the group will be McFarland (D., Ariz.), O'Conor (D., Md.), Long (D., La.), Gillette (D., Iowa), Humphery (D., Minn., Hunt (D., Wyo.), Benton (D., Conn.), Tobey (R., N. H.), Saltonstall (R., Mass.), Hendrickson (R., N. J.), Thye (R., Minn.), and Schoeppel (R., Kan.).

Battle Signs Measure on Reassessment

Richmond, Va., April 10 (AP).—Governor Battle today signed the reappraisal-reassessment bill enacted by the 1950 General Assembly.

The bill provides that that localities must reassess real estate at least once every six years and that the State Department of Taxation will appraise real estate values used by the Commonwealth in determining a locality's "local effort" toward supporting its schools.

Also signed today were several other bills. These included:

SB-214 relating to the assessment of mineral lands;

SB-220 clarifying definition of the term "State highway system," so as to make it apply to both the primary and secondary systems;

SB-274 providing that reports of the Supreme Court of Appeals be distributed to municipal courts;

HB-229 authorizing the Virginia Commission for the Blind to convey certain property to Virginia Polytechnic Institute;

HB-581 providing that in counties where inoculation of dogs against rabies is required certificate of such inoculation must be presented as a prerequisite to obtaining a dog license;

Friends School Quartet To Entertain Today

The Sidwell Friends School triple mixed quartet will entertain at the school's third building report luncheon at 12:15 p. m. today in the Willard Hotel.

The school, a nonprofit organization with 700 students, located at 3901 Wisconsin ave. nw., hopes to raise $570,000. More than $109,000 has already been reported.

Takoma Park 7-Man Council Is Sworn In

Takoma Park's seven-man council was sworn in last night, and immediately began work by passing an ordinance permitting use of voting machines in a May 9 bond issue balloting.

The machines will be used to determine whether the city should issue up to $200,000 in general improvement bonds for the construction of a new municipal building.

Mayor Ross H. Beville swore in four incumbents and three newcomers named with him in the March 28 election. The mayor took his oath last week from Circuit Court judges in both Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

The ceremony followed a buffet served in the Municipal Building, 8 Columbia ave. Taking the oath for the first time were Charles H. Klinck, James B. Parkhill and Ray H. Eccleston. Others were J. H. Nies, L. A. Oosterhous, W. H. McClenon.

Retiring Mayor John C. Post did not seek election.

Montgomery Zoning Bid Denials Hit

Two apartment zoning applications, bitterly opposed by Bethesda-Chevy Chase residents at public hearings, have been recommended for denial by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Termed unsuitable for apartment development by the commission are the 17-acre White Fathers of Africa tract on the Rockville Pike between Cedar Lane and Pook's Hill and the 46-acre Casey tract off Jones Mill Road behind the Naval Medical Center.

The commission urged approval of three commercial and industrial applications in the same section. Action on all five was deferred by the Montgomery County Council pending adoption of the commission's master zoning plan for Bethesda and Chevy Chase.

In a letter to the County Council, Blair Lee 3d, commission vice chairman, yesterday explained that while the entire plan has not been restudied following its hearing on March 14, final decision has been reached on the five applications.

In opposing the apartment petitions, the commission stated its belief that such developments would encroach upon already established single dwelling communities. It added that "the legitimate apartment needs generated within Bethesda are relatively small at the present time and are apt to remain so for the next five years or even longer."

The three petitions receiving favorable opinions seek commercial zoning at Bradley blvd. and the proposed extension of Arlington st. and both commercial and industrial listings for land along River rd. at the B & O Railroad tracks.

Final Red Cross Reports on Drive To Be Made Today

With hopes that reports will put the drive over the top, workers in the Red Cross campaign for funds will meet at 12:30 p. m. today at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building for their final luncheon.

Goal for the Washington area is $1,039,000. Six days ago, $978,012, or 94.13 percent, was raised.

Principal speaker today will be Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hersey of Selective Service. Honored guest will be Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman, head of the campaign's Government division.

Yesterday Madame Christian de Margerie, chairman of the drive in the French Embassy, handed a $1051 contribution from the embassy staff to Randolph G. Bishop, campaign director.

Audubon Official toTalk On Bird Identification

A bird identification lecture tonight will deal with vireos, thrushes and the 40 species of warblers of the Washington area.

Dr. Irston R. Barnes, president of the District Audubon Society sponsoring the program, will give the talk at 7:30 p. m. in the National Museum, 10th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

Odenwald to Talk

Dr. Robert P. Odenwald, medical director of the Child Center at Catholic University, will speak on the elementary school child at a meeting of the St. Hugh's Parents Guild, set for 8:30 tonight at the St. Hugh's parochial school, Crescent rd., Beltsville, Md.

Pope Pius XII—Priest and Statesman

Audience Reveals the Goodness of Pontiff to Writer

This is the last of 24 daily installments of Kees Van Hoek's biography of Pope Pius XII. Van Hoek, a native of The Hague, is now an Irish citizen.

By Kees Van Hoek

Foreign Affairs Writer of the Irish Times

Chapter XXIV—The Pontiff 'At Home'

Early on a brilliant September morning last year I set out on my way to Castel Gandolfo, summer residence of the Pontiff. The sun shown mightily on St. John Lateran, the crowds of workers on their way to office or shop appeared dwarfed by its vast square. The car took the Appian Way, soon accelerated as the last suburbs were left behind, and only the antique brick arches of Caesar's classic aqueduct haughtily strode the Roman Campagna.

It became cooler the moment one reached the Alban foothills, and there was no mistaking that the Papal residence was near. Every few hundred yards a carabinieri—obviously picked men, for they all looked smart and intelligent—was on duty, their sentry boxes a watchful garland underneath the leafy trees opposite the high wall surrounding the Papal estate.

Nothing looks so undistinguished as the entrance of the Pope's residence. The four-storied building of buff-colored walls, the windows light green shuttered against the heat, forms one side of the small village square. Village women bargain round the fountain and men stretch their legs about the square, which looks right into the Pope's halldoor.

There were no tourists or visitors. Only one Vatican car waited in the courtyard. It had arrived a few minutes before to bring Msgr. Tardini, the Undersecretary of State; Msgr. Venini, the acting Maestro di Camera; one chamberlain; and a secretary. In an hour's time they would return to Rome again, to leave the Pope in that perfect solitude which he prefers for his holiday.

When I stepped out of the borrowed Lancia, the only visitor to be received in audience that day, the colorful Swiss guards in their broad orange-yellow and royal blue puffed sleeves, medieval tunics, on duty at the gate, brought down their pikes to the salute with a resounding clash.

Out of a Dream

TO BE the only caller in such a place appears at first something like a dream. There was a right royal staircase, and the moment one began to mount it, the upper guard stiffened to rigid attention. I entered the throne room, where seven Septembers before I had watched Pope Pius XI give his last public audience, and two Swiss guards sprang to the salute with disconcerting suddenness.

An officer met me and led me from salon to salon, across floors of polished marble, the drawn curtains diffused the light on tables, pictures, vases and decorations which grew more sumptuous as we proceeded, until I reached the antechamber of the Pope's private apartments.

There Msgr. Diego Venini received me, a medium-sized prelate, gray of hair, fine of features, courteous and of quiet dignity. To put me at ease, he took me out on the terrace.

A bell rang. Out of the red damask door in the green damask-paneled antechamhber, Undersecretary of State Tardini emerged from his daily report, a sheaf of documents under his arm; Msgr. Venini went in, and a split second later bade me enter.

Pope Pius XII set on a leather-backed high chair without arm rests, before a large desk. The chair was placed against the wall between two windows, and on the desk stood a square golden clock in front of a pile of documents.

He beckoned me to the only chair beside his desk. When I assure you that I cannot remember any more about the room, it is because from the first moment his coal-black intense eyes grip one so that there is no chance, nor any desire for that matter, to look away from his countenance. In fact, even his first sentences were lost to me. I only realized that he was speaking in a quiet, precise, slowly formulated and carefully accented English.

Pius XII has a magnificent presence, his slim height accentuated by the light white soutane, of which the broad sleeve cuffs and the sash are of heavier and even whiter silk moiree.

Heart Troublesome

HE looked much older than I remembered him from before the war; in fact his drawn face with the lean cheeks was gray, his heart had been giving him trouble that year. I noticed the veins standing out more markedly than before on the temples, the gray hair thinning out to snow white underneath the zucchetta, the small silk skull-cap.

The gold-rimmed spectacles appear to rest on the bridge of his eagle-beaked nose; the high collar, starched white above the rim of his soutane lessens the length of his neck, a length which gives the severely chiselled face its perfect poise. His fine long hands, slim with slender fingers, are harmonious and expressive. His ring has a very large blue stone set in a square of big diamonds.

His voice has a soft, yet deep and slightly husky timbre. It is the voice, and the naturally kindly smile which so easily lights up his ascetic countenance, that thrill one deepest by their great goodness. I dislike the word "saintly;" the impression one gets of Pius XII is one of goodness, his personality has a startling unworldliness.

I had been told that I would have 10 minutes; but the Pope kept me for three quarters of an hour. "What made him keep you so long?" inquired his household, in surprise and not without reprobation when I finally emerged. In one word, the explanation I gave them was, "Ireland."

Simple Observations

HIS Holiness had asked me about Ireland and I gave him simple observations, things which probably had impressed me more in the country of my choice, because I had come to live there from another land. I told him about the noon-hour Angelus in country towns; how, even in the cities one would notice many people take off their hats as they went on their way, their lips articulating the Greetings. I told him about people in train or tram blessing themselves passing a church. I told him how I had taken a Parisian colleague to the Dublin Parliament in time to watch the Speaker's opening prayer, how ministers and deputies all stood with bowed heads, and at the end all made the Sign of the Cross.

I was glad I had chanced on such examples. He listened with eagerness and repeatedly asked elucidating questions.

From Ireland we turned to the world at large. For he had here, in this very room and at this desk, formulated his peace proposals of August, 1939, in a last supreme bid to stave off world disaster.

When I drove back to the Eternal City along roads lined with plane trees, endless autumn bouquets of green, brown and gold, I lived through again every second of this long talk and the unforgettable moment of leave-taking, his benediction, his hand hovering so awe-inspiringly solemn yet so intensely personal over by head.

And I cherish that moment when, leaving his room, just before closing the door, he suddenly looked up—he had bent to disentangle a bell wire—and gave me a friendly smile. Only with that flash did I realize how glowingly warm were his eyes and how taut the skin is drawn in the face of our ascetic Pontiff.

Throat-Cut Rivalry

Overlapping Plays Unfair to TV Fans

—By John Crosby—

COMPETITION among television's hour-long dramatic series—there are six of them now—has become fairly murderous. In general, this open warfare, each trying to outdo the other, has been great fun for the listener.

In one case, however, the spirit of competition has messed up the drama lover's evening. That is on Monday (alternate weeks) when NBC craftily started the Robert Montgomery show a half hour earlier than CBS's fine Studio One, presumably in an attempt to capture the audience and hang on to it till Studio One is half over.

This form of throat-cutting is routine in radio and television, but it is a little hard on the audience. Studio One and the Montgomery show both appeal to the same types of people and it seems a shame they shouldn't be permitted to see both shows, there being an awful lot of balderdash on either network that could be moved around to make room.

The race here is to establish one of the six as the drama series of television, as, say, Lux was in radio. I doubt that any one will be so chosen. There will be, I'm happy to predict, four or five good dramatic series. One will be outstanding one week; not so good the next.

Half-Dozen Contenders

THE SIX competitors, as of now, are Studio One, the Montgomery show, Ford Theater, Philco Playhouse, Kraft Theater and The Play's the Thing (formerly Actors' Studio and probably weakest of the contenders). Week in, week out, Studio One still has quite an edge in consistent general excellence. Worthington Minor, its producer, seems to have a genius for selecting stories, books and plays that transform themselves most readily to television.

Minor has also had the wisdom to avoid selecting the same type of material each week. He has ranged far and wide for stories and plays and presented comedy, melodrama, tragedy, moderns, classics, the ancients, everything. Recently, for example, he tackled Nathaniel Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter," probably the first great American novel, an enterprise of such towering ambition that Minor would have been seriously criticized if he'd failed.

The 100-year-old novel with its great clash of moral forces, its austere and tremendously compelling scenes, and its overpowering characters was projected about as vividly as television, in its present state of development, can manage. The procession of great scenes—Hester Prynne in the stocks, the meeting between Hester and her deceived husband in jail, the forest scene—were all handled admirably except the crowd scenes. (Television still has a lot to learn from the movies about handling crowds.) Mary Sinclair was appealing and lovely as Hester, though she never quite achieved the saintliness or the stature of the original. Richard Purdy, as Roger Chillingsworth, the learned man corrupted by vengeance, was altogether fine.

The Runnersup

HOWEVER, while Studio One is still clearly in the lead, the others are nipping at its heels. Among them—and this is by no means a complete list—are Kraft Theater's production of "The Copperhead," "Valley Forge" and—on a somewhat lower plane—"Ladies in Retirement"; Ford Theater's "Dear Brutus"; Robert Montgomery's "The Male Animal," and Philco's "Van Gogh" in which Everett Sloane contributed one of television's most memorable performances.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Story of a Little Chick And a Dumb Cluck

Al Ornstein of 2321 20th st. nw. reports on a strange sight witnessed on Easter Sunday in a restaurant near Walter Reed General Hospital.

A solemn young man ordered a plate of spaghetti, a bottle of beer and a saucer. When the order was served, he set a green-tinted chick on the table.

The chick nibbled at the spaghetti, then moved over to the saucer of beer and drank its fill. When it was finished, it staggered off across the table, peeping loudly.

PENNY SAVED

Arnold Court of 312 Livingston ter. se. calls my attention to something I should have realized without being told.

If you're going to Baltimore for a few days, it's one cent cheaper to buy two one-way tickets than it is to get a round-trip ducat. "Information" at Union Station confirms that this holds true on a great many fares.

The reason is that a one-way coach ticket to Baltimore is $1.35 and the round trip is exactly double, or $2.70. But the 15 percent Federal tax breaks in fractions of a cent, and makes the round trip ticket one penny more expensive.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Gentle, friendly long-haired dog, shaped like collie, but smaller; also black male puppy." (Temple 2130).

"Small, black housebroken female dog; nice pet." (Taylor 6693).

"Five adorable kittens, sweet, gentle and smart; also two grown cats." (Ordway 2286).

"Five-month-old female pup, very pretty, part-cocker, needs home with yard." (Lincoln 4-2127 after 6 p. m.).

"Two lovely 7-week-old black kittens with blue eyes." (Georgia 7542).

"Gentle, registered 3-year-old cocker spaniel for suburban home only." (Union 4279).

NORTH CAROLINA NEWS LETTER

That Fisher Feller (G. A. Fisher of 1442 Spring rd. nw.) tells me that he "hed sum folks up for tha week-end, and it were a mess fer tha jaybirds."

Most of the commotion appears to have been caused by Uncle Murph. Neighbor Fisher reports that he took Murph on a sight-seeing trip, and that the old boy had no sooner seen the scaffolding about the White House when he exploded:

"This is goin' too durn far. Truman knows he ain't gettin' in agin, so he's cratin' up the White House to take back to Missoury."

MISCELLANY

My account of paying a traffic ticket and then being asked to pay it again brings a topper from L. V. Blake of 1308 45th pl. se. He's had only one parking ticket in 10 years—and lightning struck him, too. But he adds that 6 months after he forfeited collateral he was able to produce the receipt when it was needed, so the story had a happy ending . . . Hal Feyling, formerly of 8910 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., is now working on the copy desk of the New York Post, where he describes himself as a "headline carpenter." Noting that New York will soon observe "Noise Abatement Week," Hal can't resist commenting that the sponsoring committee ought to have its headquarters in "Din Ban Alley" . . . J. Warren McLaughlin of 133 N. Oakland st., Arlington, Va., threatens to send a clipping of my Bus Ham story back to the folks in Kansas. He says: "That's where your sports editor comes from, you know. When I left there, his brother-in-law ran the best garage in Atchison, and when they find out that Bus couldn't cope with a balky car, there are going to be some mighty startled Jayhawkers out that way" . . . 13-year-old Jim Reid of 4819 N. Capitol st. tells me that there's a restaurant in Queens Chapel, Md., which displays a sign which reads "Beer Bar B Q," with no punctuation . . . The Camp Fire Girls are selling candy mints this year, instead of the usual doughnuts, and business has been so brisk that the 15,000-box quota for this area has been sold out, and supply is now catching up with demand again . . . Shirley Swan of Laurel, Md., complains that I'm forever printing the "bright sayings of children," as reported by their parents, but I never print the bright sayings of parents, as reported by their children. Just to start me off, Shirley tells me that when her Dad filled his plate with a heaping portion of rice and Shirley commented that he must be pretty hungry, Mom quipped: "He's raising a bay window, and has to feed it."

OVERHEARD

Mrs. Carl F. Hansen of 3510 Quesada st. nw. reports that she heard an elderly man ask a clerk in Hecht's downtown store the other day:

"Which way to the osculators?"

Without so much as a blush, the modern maid directed him to the moving stairway.

Chilean Flags Festoon City For Gonzalez

Those flags being placed on downtown lamp posts yesterday weren't Lone Star flags of the Republic of Texas, as some may have thought at first glance, but the colors of the Republic of Chile.

The flags are in honor of Chile's President Gabriel Gonzalez-Videla, who will arrive at the National Airport at 3 p. m. Wednesday and will receive a gala reception from District officials and citizens.

President Truman will meet President Gonzales and a motorcade will take them over the Mount Vernon Boulevard, Memorial Bridge, 23rd st., Constitution ave., 12th st. and Pennsylvania ave. to the reception stand in front of the District building.

All Federal employes who can be spared, and those District employes who work along the parade route, will be released from their work to join in the welcome to the Chilean chief executive.

Brother Ends 13-Year Search For Slayer

Richmond, April 10 (AP).—Thomas Terry, a Richmond jewelry store employe, came to the end of an 11-year search yesterday.

It was in April, 1939, that Terry's brother, Otha Terry, was assaulted with a beer bottle and beaten by two men. He died several days later.

Detectives issued a murder warrant against Junius C. Brown, of Church Hill. Brown could not be found, and the warrant was placed in the "open case" files.

Yesterday he heard that a Junius C. Brown was in the Henrico County jail, serving six months for stealing chickens.

Terry and Richmond Detective Capt. Dan W. Duling got out the 11-year-old warrant. Duling questioned Brown. Duling said the man told him he was in the field the night Otha was beaten, but insisted he pulled another man off Terry.

Duling served the murder warrant on Brown in connection with the death 11 years ago.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Chile's Gonzalez—'U. S. Friend'

By Drew Pearson

One of this country's best friends and a courageous champion of democracy arrives in Washington Wednesday — President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla of Chile.

Gonzalez

With Latin dictators popping up all round him, Gonzalez Videla has helped keep Chile as one country which warded off revolution, retained its parliamentary system and purged Communists by peaceful means.

Probably one reason the Chilean President has fought so hard against communism is because he was Ambassador to France during the Nazi occupation and saw the results of totalitarian rule first hand.

Early in his term of President, Gonzalez Videla faced an all-out showdown with the Communist Party—and won. A wave of strikes had swept the country, followed by the most serious strike of all by the coal miners.

As the coal strike continued, and as paralysis crept over Chile, the President finally decided to take things into his own hands and left for the worst strike hotbed, Lota. Accompanied by his wife, he flew to the Lota airport, then drove direct to the chief coal mine, which extends four miles under the Pacific Ocean There at the mouth of the mine shaft he held a meeting with amazed miners who could hardly believe they were talking to the President of Chile in the flesh.

"I did not come to challenge you or belittle you," Gonzalez Videla said, in an impromptu, impassioned plea. "The proof is that I did not come with military escort. I came along as a friend to talk over your problems, which are my problems also."

After he finished, the miners went back to work.

That is the kind of friendly President who arrives in the United States of America Wednesday, again accompanied by his wife, and again unaccompanied by the trappings and folderol of high office.

Two Maine Senators

The two Republican Senators from rock-ribbed Republican Maine are sometimes in each other's hair. Just at present not only Margaret Chase Smith, the junior Senator, but other progressive Republicans are burned up by the maneuver of Owen Brewster, the senior Senator from Maine, to stifle criticism of the evasive GOP policy statement issued in February.

So many Republican gripes were registered against this statement that, in order to satisfy the progressives, a rewritten postcard version is now being mailed with an explanation by Republican Chairman Guy Gabrielson that the revision "grows out of a suggestion by Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, who was consulted in its preparation."

That, however, is not the case. Though Senator Smith did suggest revisions; actually her recommendations were deleted and toned down.

The popular and courageous junior Senator from Maine had proposed a 10-point liberal GOP program, of which Point 10 read: "Smashing the filibuster on civil rights." However, when Gabrielson and Senator Brewster got through toning Point 10 down, it merely read: "Protecting the rights of veterans and minorities."

Mrs. Smith's Point 9, "Oppose any curtailment of veterans' benefits," was completely omitted. So was her Point 5, which read: "Making foreign policy truly bipartisan . . ."

However, the postcard statement being mailed by the GOP national committee makes it look as if Mrs. Smith had indorsed the entire new platform.

Note—At the February GOP meeting, Brewster and Gabrielson proposed a plank for "safeguarding liberty against socialism." But this was opposed by even such a solid conservative as Senator Arthur Watkins of Utah who argued: "After all, reclamation projects are a form of socialism."

Confusion at Key West

Newspapermen covering Key West have only one explanation for the flatly contradictory statements issued from Washington on one hand and the winter White House on the other. They were so contradictory that it sometimes looked as if the President's left hand didn't know what the right hand was doing.

On the night before John Foster Dulles was appointed to the State Department, Charles Ross, presidential press secretary, was queried about the reported appointment and issued a categoric: "It is not so."

Several newspapers were already on the street with the Dulles story at the time of the Ross denial, but knowing the Dulles appointment was a fact, they stuck to their guns. Next day the State Department issued an official announcement confirming the appointment and making Key West look ridiculous.

Simultaneously the winter White House informed the press that Ambassador Jessup's post had not been filled. This played right into the hands of Senator McCarthy, who has been trying to get Ambassador Jessup out. Furthermore, it was not true. Jessup's post is not vacant and the State Department had to issue a press release correcting Key West and explaining this fact.

Courageous New Mexican

A Senator who has shown recent courage is Dennis Chavez of New Mexico. Despite the hot breath of political pressure, Chavez was the only Senator from the Southwest to vote against the Kerr natural gas bill.

A devout Catholic of Spanish descent, Chavez also introduced an amendment to the DP bill to let in Spanish Republicans who had participated in the civil war against Franco. He referred to them as "the first victims of World War II" and compared them with "the Pilgrim fathers."
